POEMS YOU OUGHT TO KNOW.

Whatever your occupation may be, and however crowded your hours with affairs, do not fail to secure at least a few minutes every day for refreshment of your inner life with a bit of poetry.—Prof. Charles Eliot Norton.

ALL FOR LOVE.

BY LORD BYRON.

O talk not to me of a name great in story;
The days of our youth are the days of our glory;
And the myrtle and ivy of sweet two-and-twenty
Are worth all your laurels, though ever so plenty.

What are garlands and crowns to the brow that is wrinkled?
'Tis but as a dead flower with May dew besprinkled.
Then away with all such from the head that is hoary.
What care I for the wreaths that can only give glory?

O Fame—if I e'er took delight in thy praises,
'Twas less for the sake of thy high sounding phrases
Than to see the bright eyes of the dear one discover
She thought that I was not unworthy to love her.

There chiefly I sought thee, there only I found thee;
Her glance was the best of the rays that surround thee;
When it sparkled o'er aught that was bright in my story
I knew it was love, and I felt it was glory.

MORE ARRESTS IN POSTAL SCANDALS.

Two Clerks Held on Charge of Conspiracy by Which Government Is Defrauded of $10,000.

A. W. MACHEN INDICTED.

Washington, D. C., June 5.—[Special.]—One indictment and two more arrests were today's developments in the postoffice scandal.

August W. Machen, former superintendent of free delivery, was indicted by the federal grand jury on nine counts for accepting bribes in connection with contracts for the purchase of mail box fasteners. Conviction on these nine counts carries with it a maximum penalty of twenty-seven years' imprisonment and a fine of $86,000.

Thomas W. McGregor, clerk in charge of supplies for the rural free delivery service, and C. Elsworth Upton of Baltimore, one of McGregor's assistants, were arrested on the charge of conspiracy, with Charles E. Smith of Baltimore, to defraud the government in the purchase of the leather pouches furnished the rural carriers throughout the country. Their cases make seven arrests in all since the investigation began. Other arrests are expected later.

Charges Against McGregor.

The complaint against McGregor and Upton sets forth that they agreed with Charles E. Smith of Baltimore to obtain for him orders for many thousands of leather pouches such as are used by rural carriers. The price agreed upon was 90 cents per pouch. The actual value was less than 50 cents. Smith was to pay to them the difference between 90 and 50 cents per pouch.

It is stated at the department that the actual number of pouches purchased exceeded 20,000, for which the government paid 90 cents each, or $18,000 in all. Smith received and retained of this amount $10,000. The remaining $8,000 was paid to McGregor and Upton. The government could have bought the entire number of pouches from the manufacturers for $8,000.

Twelve Years in Postal Service.

McGregor has been in the postal service since 1891. He came here from Nebraska as a messenger and subsequently was promoted to a clerkship, and finally was appointed by Mr. Machen in charge of the supply work of the rural free delivery service.

Upton is a Baltimorean and has been in the postal service for thirteen years. Both the men arrested are married. They were taken into custody at the postoffice department shortly before the close of office hours. Upton, at his own request, was taken before a commissioner at Baltimore instead of in this city because of his wider acquaintance there and better opportunity of securing bail. He did not succeed and is passing the night in jail at Baltimore. McGregor gave $5,000 bonds and was released tonight.

McGregor has been under the close surveillance of the inspectors for weeks and has been subjected to a close examination for several hours a day during a part of that time. The inspectors say that today they completed the evidence they wanted before taking action.

Assistant Postmaster General Bristow after the arrests would not say whether their investigations in any wise implicated Mr. Machen, who was general superintendent of the system while the alleged transactions occurred in the present matter.

Mr. Bristow also declined to say what action was likely to be taken in the case of C. E. Smith, the Baltimore contractor who is named in connection with the case. Smith has not been arrested.

Indictment Against Machen.

The grand jury returned the indictment against August W. Machen today after ten minutes' consideration of his case. No witnesses were examined. The indictment accused Machen of the violation of section 5,501 of the revised statutes, the penalty for violation of which is a "fine not more than three times the amount asked or accepted or received, and by imprisonment not more than three years." The amount which the indictment states he received illegally is $18,987.79. Mr. Machen was in court with his attorneys when the grand jury reported and immediately gave bond in the sum of $20,000 for his appearance in court.

The grand jurors upon their oath find that on June 1, 1900, Mr. Machen, "with intent to have his decision and action as superintendent of free delivery in regard to a purchase of Groff fasteners influenced thereby, did ask of the Groff Bros. a promise that they would pay to him 40 per cent of any sum which might be received by them thereafter from the United States through the postoffice department in payment of such fasteners, the purchase of which might be procured upon Mr. Machen's advice, and did receive the promise of the Groff Bros. in accordance therewith."

By securing the indictment of Machen before tomorrow, the day set for his preliminary hearing before Commissioner Taylor, the government has scored a victory in that it has avoided the necessity of showing its hand at a preliminary hearing. The proceedings before the commissioner now will be abandoned.

Machen Tells of Checks.

In discussing the case with his friends Mr. Machen says that certain checks which it is maintained were sent to him in payment of his profits in the Groff fastener, and which have been secured by the postoffice inspectors, were sent him by his business partner, George E. Lorenz of Toledo, O., and formerly postmaster of that city.

Machen claims that his partnership with Lorenz was a legitimate one and that the checks transmitted to him by Lorenz were in connection with mining business which the firm conducted.

Machen further states to his friends that he was not a partner of the Groff Bros. concern, and that he did not receive any of the profits from the sale of the letter box fastener to the government. He says that no wrong doing will be proved against him.

Machen's attorneys gave out a public statement declaring that the indictment in advance of the preliminary hearing is unusual, unfair, and unprecedented, and that its legal effect is to deprive Machen of an open public investigation into the truth of the charges against him.

It is expected by the postoffice department that the grand jury will report on the cases of the Groff brothers of this city, the contractors for the letter box fasteners, early next week.

FULL OF FRAUD AT POLLS.

SEVERAL WEST SIDE PRECINCTS FURNISH PROOF OF IT.

Judge Carter Summons Fifteen Men to Answer Charges of Contempt — He Has in These Cases Power of Grand Jury and Criminal Court — State's Attorney Finds West Side Detectives of Little Use in Bringing Evidence of Fraud.

Citations for fifteen judges and clerks of election in three precincts of the Eighteenth ward, charging them with contempt of court, were issued yesterday afternoon by County Judge Carter in connection with the alleged frauds committed at the judiciary election on Monday.

All the clerks in the Nineteenth, Twentieth, and Twenty-seventh precincts of the ward must appear before the court and explain the many irregularities that have been revealed by the examination conducted by State's Attorney Deneen.

The inactivity of the members of the police department assigned from west side stations to assist the prosecutor in his work may later lead to an inquiry as to the influences that rule the police headquarters, and charges against members of the department who are said to be too friendly to the political dictators of the district.

List of Men Cited.

Three of the men cited yesterday already have been arraigned before Judge Carter on charges of "feloniously neglecting to perform election duties as officials of the board." They are H. B. Sherman, J. J. Kelly, and Harry O'Donavan, who acted as judges of election in the Twenty-seventh precinct. They have been released under bonds of $3,000 signed by Ald. M. C. Conlon to appear on June 10.

The other officials cited were:

William S. Duncombe, 96 West Madison street, judge in Nineteenth precinct.
James F. Bell, 107 West Madison street, clerk in Nineteenth precinct.
W. D. Cook, 63 West Madison street, judge in Twentieth precinct.
C. O. Liebig, 63 West Madison street, judge in Twentieth precinct.
Francis Conlon, 50 West Madison street, clerk in Twentieth precinct.
H. D. Brown, 63 West Madison street, clerk in Twentieth precinct.
Joseph Meyer, clerk in Twenty-seventh precinct.
B. G. Bissell, clerk in Twenty-seventh precinct.

Additional charges have been filed against the officials in the last named precinct, and the citations have been made returnable next Monday. The other election officials are ordered to appear today.

Fewer witnesses in the Eighteenth ward cases appeared at the state's attorney's office during the day, but the officials about the office seemed satisfied that the evidence discovered is better and more likely to produce tangible results than the confused mass of testimony received as a result of the previous day's investigation.

Suspicious of the Police.

Lack of confidence in the work of the detectives who had been assigned to the case from the west side stations was manifested by the assistants of Mr. Deneen, and until policemen in whose sincerity they have more confidence are secured the work of the investigation will be conducted alone by Detectives Simms and Tyrell of the state's attorney's office.

Political ramifications that include many commanding officers of the stations and the men assigned to the work are believed to have hampered the inquiry and prevented valuable evidence from being introduced. Although presumably acquainted with the district and its residents, the police accomplished little, and all the evidence obtained by them has been practically valueless.

"It would seem that a conspiracy existed among the men assigned to the work," said an attaché of the state's attorney's office. "They have been instructed to bring in men who certainly would seem to be known to them and told to investigate matters that they should easily comprehend. In every case the work seemed purposely botched."

Detectives Fear "Influence."

The detectives detailed on the case were sent from the various stations about the Eighteenth ward and where Ald. Brennan and his associates are supposed to wield the strongest influence.

"I don't want to and never did want to be sent out in this case," asserted one man. "It's worth a man's job to get mixed up wrong in this, and you never can tell when you're going after the wrong man."

From letters sent to the state's attorney and the efforts of detectives of his office, statements were obtained from many business men of the ward that corroborated the evidence already given in reference to the scenes enacted in the polling places.

One man said that a West Madison street saloonkeeper who was stationed near the booths insisted upon marking the witness' ballot, although the latter declared he needed no assistance. Another said that a republican judge had vouched for the identity of a man who was voting a name not his own. Protests to the officials and the policemen present passed unheeded.

Hard to Trace Voters.

Among the witnesses called were the keepers and clerks of two lodging houses in the Twenty-seventh precinct. All professed ignorance concerning the full names of the many lodgers in the places. One keeper said that a majority of the lodgers were men who preferred to have their real names unknown. Detectives sent out by the state's attorney during the night reported that the lodgers in one place were all cripples, who were known to the clerks only as "Peg," "Army," "Crutch," and similar nicknames.

The difficulty of tracing the "floaters" has decided the election commissioners to order a recanvass of the ward. This will be conducted by the election officials who completed the last one, but under the supervision of employés of the commissioners' office and policemen who will accompany them.

Charles McCarl, sought on charges of acting as "instructor" and paying voters in the Twenty-seventh precinct, was placed under arrest by Detective Norton as he entered the city hall corridor with Ald. M. C. Conlon. McCarl is the fifth man arrested. H. E. Kent, a temporary employé of the election board, having been arrested Tuesday morning.

McCarl is a city bridgetender, stationed at the Lake street bridge, and resides at 108 Center avenue.

No Need of Grand Jury.

At 7 p. m. Mr. Deneen returned to his office, where he remained until 10 o'clock listening to the statements of men brought in by his investigators. From the evidence so far adduced the calling of a special grand jury is deemed improbable by Mr. Deneen.

It was pointed out during the day that the power of the county judge in cases of this kind is equal to that of a grand jury and Criminal court judge. Oral complaint and oral evidence, not a matter of record, can be heard by the judge, sentence of a year in jail can be imposed, and there is no provision to save the sentenced person.

"PULL" CRIPPLES HEALTH BUREAU

Witnesses Say Complaints Are Useless and Inspectors Are Moved if They Report Violations.

INQUIRY IS RESUMED.

Hull House Residents Tell of Insanitary Conditions Which They Strove in Vain to Have Corrected.

That "influence" has interfered with the city's sanitary inspection work was charged before the civil service commission last night, when the investigation of the charges filed by Hull house residents against the health department was resumed in the city council chamber. It was declared that sanitary inspectors who sought to do honest, effective work in forcing property owners to correct evils to health were transferred to other posts. Witness after witness continued the accusations that repeated complaints as to violations of health laws by property owners and agents in the Nineteenth and Twenty-second wards have never been heeded by the health officials.

Bad Sanitation for Years.

"The sanitary arrangements have been bad for twelve years," said Mrs. Mary A. Kiernan, 150 Ewing street, in testifying as to the conditions prevailing on the property at 155-157 Ewing street. "For years the yard has been a cesspool of garbage. The open vaults are overflowing and filling neighboring basements. Once—two years ago last September—an inspector was sent out.

"Two or three days later he came back. 'I can't do anything,' he said. 'They told me that I'd have to go to some other part of the city to work. If a man wants to be honest and do his work right there are so many who hold him back. So they have sent me to another part of the city. I can't do anything in this matter.'

Makes Complaints; Called a Nuisance.

"That's what he told me," continued Mrs. Kiernan. "His name was George, I know, but I have forgotten the last name. I've become tired of making complaints. Not a single complaint ever has been answered or given the least consideration. The last time I called at the city hall to complain the clerk said to me: 'O, go away; you're a nuisance, you complain so often.' There has not been the least improvement and that property is in awful condition. Forty Greeks lived in one building at one time—a two story frame."

President Powell of the commission at once gave orders that every effort be made to ascertain the identity of the inspector named as "George." Miss Gertrude Howe of Hull House described conditions on the property in question as she has found them.

"Complaints were made last July and again last August," said she. "The drain pipes leading to the vault were broken. Families were living over this mass of filth, which could be seen through the crevices of the wooden floors. Despite continued complaint an effort toward improvement was made only last week."

Has "Pull"; Protests Are Useless.

Mrs. Mary Cook, 11 O'Neil street, told of conditions at 919 Halsted street. "I've been reporting the place for the last four years," said she. "No attention was ever given the complaints. The vault there overflows and enters the basement of my property at 921 Halsted street. It has been that way for years. John Perotti runs a saloon at 919, a restaurant at 917, and a fruit store at 915 Halsted street. All the garbage is dumped into the yard. He has a 'pull.' He ran his saloon all last year without a license. He is the kind of man who can come to the city hall, take off his hat, see the mayor, and get what he wants. In the meantime the health department paid no attention whatever to my complaints."

Declares Orders Are Ignored.

That orders of the health department on landlords and agents to correct insanitary conditions frequently are wholly disregarded was shown by Miss Maud Gernon of Hull House, who testified as to an investigation made of the premises at 958 West Polk street. In October a notice was posted signed by Health Commissioner Reynolds ordering an abatement of the condition within five days.

"Instead," said Miss Gernon, "I found in December that nothing had been done. The conditions were changed only during March last."

Dr. Emma C. Hackett, 351 Halsted street, testified further as to conditions on the premises at 324-330 Halsted street. Last August she asserted, she found waste pipes broken and sewage escaping on the floors. She telephoned the health department, but nothing was done.

"When I telephoned a second time," said he, "I was curtly informed that 'no complaints can be entered by telephone.' That was last August. Last December I found the same conditions prevailing, no changes having been made whatever."

She told also of conditions at 117-119-121 Vernon Park place, where typhoid resulted, as the commission was told a few days ago, from disregard of the health laws.

"I had a typhoid patient at 205 Aberdeen street, just across the alley," said she, "and the odor from the Vernon Park property was enough to kill a human being. Absolutely nothing was done by the health department, though frequent and written complaints were made."

Mrs. Paul, superintendent of street cleaning in the Nineteenth ward, told of a case at 447 Canal street.

"There is an old vault there that should be abolished," said she. "I have complained twenty times or so to the health department, but nothing has been done. In other cases I have no reason to believe that the department has not acted as promptly as possible."

Complaints from North Side.

Eugene G. Lies, district superintendent of the bureau of charities, told of complaints he had made as to sanitary conditions at 200 Chestnut street, 177 East Chicago avenue, 279 Orleans street, and 94 East Huron street, asserting that the health department had done little or nothing to remedy conditions which had produced disease. John Mead, 810 Desplaines street, testified as to overflowing vaults at 91 Law avenue, which have continued for a year without correction, despite repeated complaints.

Commissioner Errant holds that a unification of the various departments—health, street cleaning, water, etc.—now having sanitary jurisdiction would work better results. The investigation will be continued Monday afternoon and the Visiting Nurses' association will be asked to present evidence.

MOB AFTER WIFE KILLER.

SPARTA, WIS., JAIL GUARDED BY STATE TROOPS.

Hundreds of Angry Men March from Tomah and Other Towns to Lynch Sam Montgomery, Who Is Accused by the Coroner's Jury of Murdering His Spouse on May 30—Gov. La Follette Orders National Guard to Shoot if Prison Is Attacked.

Sparta, Wis., June 6, 1 a. m.—[Special.]—A mob surrounds the Sparta jail, determined to lynch Sam Montgomery, a wife murderer.

A company of the Wisconsin national guard from Sparta is guarding the jail, with orders to fire if an attack is made.

Mob Forms at Tomah.

The mob formed late yesterday afternoon at Tomah. It was reinforced by 100 armed men from Warren. At dusk the crowd started on the march to Sparta, gaining in numbers at every mile.

The crowd reached Sparta before midnight, and hundreds of Sparta men joined it.

Early in the evening the sheriff, fearing trouble, appealed to Gov. La Follette for troops. The Sparta company was ordered out.

How Woman Was Murdered.

Montgomery and his wife were driving along a lonely country road in Monroe county when Mrs. Montgomery's death occurred. With the dead body of his wife lying in the buggy Montgomery drove to the nearest town on a gallop and there claimed that they had been in a runaway and his wife's neck was broken by a fall out of the buggy. His stories were so conflicting that he was placed under arrest.

An inquest was held at Tomah yesterday and the verdict of the coroner's jury accused Montgomery of murder. A large crowd gathered at the jail and the threats of lynching were so outspoken that the accused man was hurried out of the rear door of the jail, placed on a freight train, and brought to Sparta.

Negro Near to a Lynching.

Madison, Ind., June 5.—[Special.]—Dan Hinds, colored, aged 18 years, was caught and a rope thrown around his neck this afternoon by young men employed at Meilsh's button factory for an attempted assault on a white girl named Humphreys. The sheriff secured the prisoner and held him for a grand jury investigation.

DECLARES PAYING BY CHECK COSTS MEN $100,000 A WEEK.

E. W. Chafin, Speaking at Willard Hall, Says Grocers Do Immense Business in Liquor for Families.

"At least $100,000 a week would be saved to families in Chicago if employers would pay their men in cash and not by check."

E. W. Chafin made this statement at Willard hall yesterday afternoon in an address to the members of the Total Abstinence league. Mr. Chafin, who is superintendent of the Washingtonian home, declared that employés nearly always cash their checks at some saloon, spending there a portion of their pay.

The speaker urged that one of the first undertakings of the league be a crusade against check payments to workingmen.

Mr. Chafin dwelt on another cause of intemperance. It was the great number of grocers, who, he said, send out bottles of liquor packed in unlabeled boxes. This traffic, said he, was causing a considerable increase in intemperance in families. The making of drunkards, he declared, is not nearly all in saloons, but has been transferred to the homes largely through this grocery trade. People of respectability, who would not be seen in a saloon, are indulging in intoxicating liquors at home, the speaker said. Even boys and girls are forming the liquor habit in large numbers.

BOYS STEAL AN AUTOMOBILE.

Twenty Messengers Have Fun in Downtown Streets Until a Policeman Catches Them.

With a messenger boy at the lever and many more messengers clinging to it, inside and out, a gasoline automobile rumbled through the downtown streets last night. The messengers found the machine in front of the board of trade, and after five minutes of investigation located the lever that starts it. Soon the big machine was speeding toward Michigan avenue. A run of several blocks was made, and then the auto was returned to Jackson boulevard and to the west side.

While the boys were enjoying themselves the owner of the automobile was searching for his machine. Not finding it he went to the Harrison street police station and reported his loss.

While he was in the station a report was made over a telephone by a policeman that he had stopped an automobile containing twenty messenger boys. The stranger only waited to learn where the automobile was, and he ran from the station before the police could learn his name. None of the boys was arrested.

SUIT AGAINST "GOLF LINE."

Farmer Wants $5,000 Damages from the Midlothian and Blue Island Railway.

If a suit filed yesterday succeeds the Midlothian and Blue Island railway—the "golf line"—will be compelled to pay $1,000 for each mile of its length. Louis Schwartz, the plaintiff, avers that his property has been damaged by the embankment raised for the roadbed of the railway, the heavy rains of May, 1901, having flowed over his lands and ruined the crops. He asks $5,000 damages against the railway, which is only five miles long.

DROPS DEAD: LOSES INSURANCE.

Montgomery, Ala., June 5.—[Special.]—While indorsing a check to pay the premium on a life insurance policy for $10,000 which he had just taken out, J. S. Farrier dropped dead here today in the Farley bank.

Atlantic's Largest Liner Sails for New York, but Is Detained in the Mersey.

LIVERPOOL, June 5.—The liner Cedric, which sailed yesterday for New York, is detained in the Mersey. It is supposed that it has had an accident to its machinery.

LAUNDRY STRIKE IS ENDED AT LAST; PEACE IN HOTELS

Two Great Chicago Labor Difficulties Give Way Finally to the Spirit of Arbitration.

COMPROMISE THE WORD.

Clean Collars in Sight After Monday; Restaurant Waiters May Return to Work Today.

Two important steps were taken yesterday toward industrial peace in Chicago. The strike of laundry workers, after lasting five weeks, was ended late in the afternoon, and the employing laundrymen proceeded to make arrangements to open their shops on Monday.

The sudden and spectacular hotel strike which had closed two of the largest houses of the city, and threatened all the rest, was likewise terminated, by an agreement to hold a series of arbitration conferences. Pending these settlements, the striking waiters and "help" were ordered back in the Grand Pacific and Chicago Beach hotels, and the Union hotel and restaurant.

The restaurant strikes were not conclusively ended, but meetings were arranged for this morning at which peaceable results are hoped for. A late meeting last night had no definite results.

Rumor of More Trouble Unfounded.

A rumor was spread at 1 o'clock this morning of a renewal of the strike fever and it was said waiters and cooks in various hotels not hitherto affected were being called out. Inquiry at the union headquarters and at all the large hotels produced no confirmation of the report.

It is believed in all quarters that the peace movement is well on the way to fruition. The whole result of the day's development was a victory for the spirit of arbitration.

Employers Gain Their Point.

In the laundry strike settlement the terms of peace give the employers the right to freedom of contract, the only issue that prolonged the strike. All the other questions, such as wages, hours, and working conditions, are to go to arbitration.

This settlement brings to an end the only long continued clean linen famine Chicago or the country has known. During its life, restaurants and hotels, private homes and boarding houses were compelled either to do their own washing or have it sent out of the city.

It also closes the most important labor war ever waged in the west by women and children. Out of the 7,000 strikers over 80 per cent were girls under 20 years of age. These stood by the union throughout the long struggle, and last night held a dance in celebration of the settlement.

Result of Many Conferences.

The laundry peace compact was the result of nineteen conferences held by a joint committee of the union and the Laundry Owners' association. It came unexpectedly. Not even the more optimistic leaders of either side looked for a settlement before next Monday, when the rent of many of the laundries falls due.

The negotiations that were directly responsible for the adjustment were brought about by Sherman T. Edwards of the Chicago board of arbitration, who felt that the public had been inconvenienced long enough. In this he found supporters among the two parties to the fight, and in James H. Payne of the Chicago Federation of Labor.

Mr. Edwards discovered that the laundry owners and the workers had signed a peace pact early last week and that the fight since then had centered in a battle between the drivers and the owners. He then called a committee of each of these factions to meet with him at 206 La Salle street.

The need of the people for clean linen, the rising anger of the public toward both employer and employé, and the uselessness of further strife were pointed out by him. He was supported in his plea for peace by Mr. Payne and together they soon forced the committees into opening substantial peace negotiations.

Drafts Compromise Clause.

The only point at issue was the employment clause of the drivers' agreement and Mr. Edwards and Mr. Payne would not allow the committees to deviate from discussing it.

When Edwards found the men wanted the employers to agree to hire none but members of the union and the employers wanted the freedom of employment he drew up a compromise clause which proved satisfactory to both. This reads as follows:

"Party of the first part agrees to employ members of the Laundry Drivers' local No. 12, T. N. U. of A., in good standing, carrying the regular working card of the organization. Party of the second part concedes the right to the party of the first part to hire whomsoever they please."

Other Points Adjusted.

The other points at issue, such as wages, hours, and working conditions, then were taken up, and the following method of adjusting them was reached:

"It is further understood and agreed that all the differences now existing between the parties which are not as above provided for and which refer to the subjects covered by articles 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, and 15 of the union's proposed agreement, a copy of which is hereto attached, marked "Exhibit A," shall be submitted to the decision of a board of arbitration, which said board shall consist of seven members, three of whom shall be chosen by the union from its members, three shall be chosen by the Laundrymen's association from its members, and the seventh shall be a disinterested, impartial, and unprejudiced person, who shall be selected by the six chosen as above. The members of said board to be chosen, three from each side, shall not include any member of said union or of said association who has taken part in the conference between said union and association.

Such board shall hear and determine the matters submitted to it as speedily as possible, and render its decision in writing, which decision of said board or of a majority thereof shall be binding upon each of the parties for one year from June 5, 1903, on which date it is agreed that all members of said union shall return and remain at work pending the decision of such board of arbitration. Until such decision is handed down they shall work under their former terms and conditions of employment, with the understanding that any increased wages which may be awarded by said board shall date from the date of the return of said union men to work.

Arrange to Resume Work.

Later in the evening the laundry owners sent out men to gather in the executive committee of the inside workers' union and arrange with them for the return of the workers Monday morning. At 10 o'clock a conference was held and an agreement was signed with them which definitely assures peace.

Arbitration in the Future.

This agreement reads as follows:

The employer agrees to deal with the union through its properly accredited committee, and in no manner influence its employés against becoming members of the union. There shall be no discrimination against any employé.

Where and when use of union label is desired by an employer none but members of said union in good standing shall be employed, except in event of said union being unable to furnish said help, the employer shall be at liberty to employ whom he may see fit, with the understanding that such employés shall make application for membership to said union within one (1) week after receiving said employment.

All differences arising between employer and employés shall be submitted to the executive committee of the parties to this contract for settlement. In event of failure to settle it shall be referred to arbitration, and work shall proceed pending settlement or arbitration under the conditions of this agreement.

The arbitration board shall be selected in the following manner: The parties to this agreement shall select one each and those two (2) shall select a third (3d) member or umpire. The third (3d) member shall be a disinterested person and must be acceptable to both parties to this agreement. The decision of a majority of the board shall be final and binding on both parties.

Balance of agreement to be arbitrated as herein above accepted. Work to start when laundry drivers start to work.

Public Must Be Patient.

When work is resumed the laundry owners will find their plants filled with linen that was accepted before the strike was called. This will hold back the new bundles for at least four days, and it will be another week before the old routine of work will be re-established.

As announced in THE TRIBUNE, the prices of laundering collars and cuffs are to be raised. The former price of 2 cents for a collar and 4 cents for a pair of cuffs is to be lifted to 3 cents for a collar and 5 cents for cuffs. The laundering of lingerie and some kinds of table wear will cost more than formerly, and the price of all contract work will be advanced.

The long strike has demoralized the laundry business of the city. Much of the "flat," or table and hotel work, has been sent out of town, and has been done so satisfactorily that it will not come back to the local plants. The Chinese have taken much of the trade, and they, too, will hold a greater part of what they have obtained.

Cost of the Long Struggle.

Chairman J. A. Barkey of the laundry owners' committee, declared that the losses caused by the strike are as follows:

Loss to the employés in wages	$250,000
Loss of business to the employers, some of which will be permanent	500,000
Loss of profits to the employers	50,000
Total	$800,000

"We have had our first experience with labor troubles," said Mr. Barkey last night, "and we are glad it is over. It has been costly for all concerned, and it will take us a long time to recover. The terms of settlement are satisfactory to us, for they give us the main point we have been demanding—the freedom of employment. The question of wages and hours we can adjust without trouble."

"The settlement assures the unions their life and the right to expand," said James H. Payne. "It is unfortunate that peace was not concluded long ago, but the discussion has been a good thing for the labor movement."

Waiters' Strike Ended Quickly.

The spectacular strikes at the Grand Pacific and the Chicago Beach hotels roused both the waiters' union and the proprietors to a realization of what a serious matter a general tie up would mean. The strikers were condemned on all sides during the morning. The officers of the old and tried labor unions of the city called them up and denounced their action. The attitude of the general public frightened them and even the conservative element of their own unions were bitter in their remarks.

The hotel proprietors, on the other hand, were astonished at the ease with which their establishments were tied up and feared that before the close of the week their coal and supplies would be shut off. Many of them became discouraged and talk of breaking with their central association was heard on every side.

In the midst of this demoralization President W. G. Schardt of the Federation of Labor—speaking for the entire labor movement of the city—figuratively shook the strikers until they consented to listen to reason and save the city from again becoming a byword throughout the country.

The peace terms, so far as the hotels are concerned, were along the lines of a compromise. The proprietors will appoint their arbitration committees from the membership of their association. They will not ask the union to receive their representatives as members of the central body, thus giving it the doubtful satisfaction of not technically receding from its position.

Restaurant Men Likewise.

The same scheme of settlement will be pursued by the restaurant men, who would willingly have worked with the hotel proprietors yesterday had the union officials permitted them to do so.

As yet no time has been set for the meeting of the hotel committees that are to adjust the wage and hour demands of the men. The union will set the time, and last night its officials announced that they will probably begin negotiations on Tuesday of next week and have the entire trouble settled within two days thereafter.

When the truce with the hotel men was declared the news was bulletined to every house in the downtown district, and notices were posted in the corridors. These read as follows:

"Strike at the Chicago Beach and Grand Pacific hotels declared off pending arbitration."

This announcement stopped the exodus of transients and strangers who were leaving the city in crowds rather than remain and have to endure the inconvenience that made Thursday an unprecedented day at the Grand Pacific and Chicago Beach hotels.

"Black Friday" in Hotels.

The proprietors of various downtown hotels declared last night that yesterday was the worst day the business has seen for over ten years. The patronage of some houses fell off over 50 per cent. The corridors of the Grand Pacific were almost deserted. Its dining rooms and cafés were silent, the chairs were stacked on the tables, and the doors were locked. Guests came riding up from the depots, looked at the empty lobbies, and then went elsewhere to stop. When the fight was declared off the hotel suddenly resumed its busy aspect. At the Chicago Beach enough of the "help" returned in the evening to make possible the serving of dinner.

Among the restaurants the Union was partly reopened as a hotel. The other restaurants in which the strikers had called a "tieup" will reopen today.

Movement for Peace.

The movement for peace in the hotels began early yesterday, when the state board of arbitration, through its local secretary, L. Grant, induced President Schardt to visit the union headquarters and instruct the leaders.

J. J. Keppler of the machinists was to have accompanied him, but did not appear on time, and Schardt went alone. When he arrived at 122 La Salle street he found the twenty-one members of the joint board of the union waiting for him to appear.

He asked the officials of the organization to explain their position and give a detailed account of the strike. When this was done Schardt took the floor. He opened his remarks by telling the men that organized labor had for years demanded the right of forming a labor union whenever it saw fit. He said this right was now conceded by capital as inalienable.

"You have got that right," he continued, "and yet you say to the employer that he cannot form an organization. In the days gone by we denounced those who opposed us when we wanted to organize. We must now be on guard against a similar charge on the part of our employers.

"How would you take a decree from the proprietors that they would not treat with your union, but would meet you as individuals? That position is no more unreasonable than yours, and you should know it. The course you have taken is a mistaken one, and you, for the good of the labor movement, should rectify it as soon as possible."

During his remarks one of the colored business agents of the union interrupted him, saying:

"It does us good to see these hotel managers come up here, climb the stairs, and treat with us."

"That is not the proper spirit to show," broke in Schardt, "and I want you to understand that it is not right."

Temper Grows Milder.

Questions were put to him by the various leaders present, and for two hours he argued with them. Their attitude against arbitration slowly gave way and their temper was milder when, soon after noon, a committee of the hotel proprietors visited the union headquarters.

This committee was appointed at a meeting of their association Thursday night at the Great Northern hotel. It consisted of the following:

Herman Weber, Union hotel and restaurant; Emil Eitel, Bismarck hotel and restaurant; Abe Frank, Sherman house; Manager Osterreiter, Edelweiss; Owner Milligan, Victoria hotel; Owner Gage, Wellington hotel and restaurant; John C. Roth, Congress Hotel company; J. C. Hately, Chicago Beach hotel; John Cornell, Hyde Park hotel; Carlos Dyer, Del Prado hotel; George B. Ross, Lexington hotel; and John C. Vogelsang, Vogelsang's restaurant.

To Meet in Conferences.

After a long conference the union men agreed they would meet with the proprietors in joint conferences. The proprietors announced they had divided the hotels of the city into seven classes, and that committees from each class would meet with the union members employed in them and adjust the wage and hour schedule to the satisfaction of both.

"You must call off the strikes at the Grand Pacific and Chicago Beach hotels," said one of the proprietors.

"At the Union, too," broke in another.

"That is satisfactory," spoke up Chairman Ben Gorton of the joint board of the union, and the order was issued for all the strikers at those places to return to work.

Late Restaurant Meetings.

Until early this morning the restaurant owners' association and its committees were in conferences seeking a way to avert further trouble. Five representatives went early in the evening to the headquarters of the joint committee of the employés at 122 La Salle street to argue that the waiters and cooks abandon their stand to treat only with individuals and not with the association. On this committee were William Boyle of Chapin & Gore, Manager Usner of the Café Morris, Manager Osterreiter of the Edelweiss, John Z. Vogelsang, and Max Koppel of Kinsley's.

Ben Gorton told of the result of the meeting as follows: "We gave them our ultimatum that we would only negotiate with them individually and would take no cognizance of their union. That was our first position and we have not changed."

This report was taken by the committee to the meeting of the association in Kinsley's restaurant. Hope was not, however, abandoned at the adverse news. A new committee was decided on, headed by President Walton, which is to go again to the joint council today and sue for more favorable terms.

In the afternoon two minor restaurant strikes were called—at the Model restaurant, 123 Fifth avenue, and at Higgins' restaurant, Sixty-third street and Madison avenue. In both places the proprietors refused to sign the union agreement.

"Victory for the Union."

"We are now well on the way to settle this entire matter," said Vice President T. J. Kinnally of the union. "We are demonstrating to the employers that we have a powerful organization and that is all we have to do to win our case. I look to see peace declared tomorrow and an adjustment of the trouble reached within a few days.

"It must not be claimed that we have never agreed to arbitrate these demands. We have always stood for arbitration, but we have claimed that the conditions in the restaurant and hotel business do not warrant an association of employers and we do not see now how we can treat with one. The justice of this position the employers themselves will soon realize."

"Victory for the Employers."

The hotel men were jubilant over the arbitration agreement. Their secretary, Paul Blatchford, declared it to be a victory for the employers.

"While they treat with the employers to a certain extent as individuals, still they meet them as committees," he remarked. "Not once have the employers demanded anything more than that. Of course, the union refused to deal with me or with Mr. Seaman of the Restaurant Keepers' association, but we had to expect that."

HOTEL EMPLOYERS AND EMPLOYES STATE THEIR CONTENTIONS

VIEW OF THE COOKS AND WAITERS.

[BY A CHICAGO WAITER.]

The present waiters' and cooks' controversy marks the formal entrance of the Hotel and Restaurant Employés and Bartenders' International league into the labor life of Chicago. This organization, only three months old, has now a membership of over 17,000 men and women, and all are clamoring for better wages and shorter hours.

For many years the restaurant, bar, and hotel employés have not received a general increase in pay. Their wages have averaged, according to the statements of their officers, not more than $10 a week, and some of them have been forced to work eleven hours a day.

They have to pay for all the broken dishes and make good all the checks that are not paid. They are docked when late to work and when complaints are made against them. In some cases they have to divide the tips with the head waiters or with the firm, and in every restaurant they can be dropped from the pay roll without a hearing.

These grievances they want rectified. They want to be relieved of paying for the crockery and want the docking system abolished. They want all the help employed through the union offices so that they can be assured of fair treatment, and they want to be relieved of the domination of the head waiters, save when they are actually at work.

In addition to that they want the following scale of wages:

MEAT COOKS.

Time—Sixty hour week; ten hours a day. There shall be an increase of 15 per cent over present wages, but it shall be optional with the individual members to accept less where conditions warrant.

PASTRY COOKS.

Time—Seventy hours a week; ten hours a day. A 15 per cent increase in wages.

WAITRESSES.

Seven days a week—First class, $8; second class, $7 a week.

Six days a week—First class, $7; second class, $6.

BARTENDERS.

The minimum shall be $12 a week. All bartenders shall have one-half day a week off. No bartender shall wait on tables.

Extra men, $3 for ten hours' work, 50 cents an hour for overtime. Bartenders at racetracks shall receive $4 a day and at picnics and balls $6 for eight hours' work.

No bartender shall work more than sixty-five hours a week.

WAITERS.

In restaurants, for one week, not exceeding sixty-six hours, $12 for first class help, $10 for second class. In same places for six days not exceeding sixty hours, $10 for first class, and $9 for second class. In hotels, $40 a month; in clubhouses, $50; in summer resorts, $40; and in summer gardens, $12 a week.

MISCELLANEOUS HOTEL EMPLOYES.

All miscellaneous help to work no more than sixty-five hours a week and to receive an increase of 20 per cent over present wages. Bell boys are to receive $25 a month, porters $40, and scrub girls are to work only eight hours a day.

VIEW OF THE HOTEL EMPLOYERS.

[BY A HOTEL MANAGER.]

The employés of both hotels and restaurants in Chicago are well paid and well treated. When they organized a union some months ago we did not offer any objection, feeling that the men would be conservative and fair with us, as many of them have been in our employ for years.

When they gave us their schedule of wages and hours last week we were astonished at its terms. They demanded an increase in wages that would force many of the small restaurants out of business and make the profits in the hotels too small to be seriously considered.

They demanded that we lower their schedule of hours, which our business will not permit us to do. They went even further, and informed us that we must hire our help through their officers, taking whomever they send us, regardless of his qualifications for the place.

The increase in wages they asked would mean about $8,000 a year to a restaurant like the Union or Boston Oyster house, and over $10,000 to a hotel like the Annex. Competition is too strong in this city to permit such an addition to the expenses, unless the price of food is raised, and that the public will not permit.

Now that the waiters and cooks in the hotels have accepted the spirit of arbitration we shall have a chance to demonstrate some of the contentions of our cause, we think even to the satisfaction of the more radical element.

The change in hours that they have demanded is impossible, and we can easily demonstrate that to the union officials. The employment of help through their organization is not practicable. Our chefs are skilled men and most of them are under contract. The kitchen department is the most important branch of our establishments, and we cannot put a man into it unless we know his worth, his temperament, and his ability to deal with the waiters who are dependent upon him.

No union leader can of himself determine the kind of help we need, and it is useless for one to try. Yet that is what the union, in its original demands, wanted to do. We cannot permit it, and I am sure the conciliation boards will so decide.

When this union organized we did not try to prevent it, but when we started to band together ourselves our employés complained. They at first refused to deal with our association and spurned our offers of arbitration. All we have asked is that we be given an opportunity to demonstrate the injustice of their demands, and now that a more temperate spirit seems to prevail I think we shall have ample chance to do this.

G. W. Walton, president of the Restaurant Owners' association, declined to make any statement as to what basis of settlement would be acceptable to them. Mr. Walton said:

"All our efforts thus far have been concentrated on the endeavor to induce the unions to deal with our body and not with the various individual owners. When this point is disposed of we shall give attention to the details as to wages and hours of work. We have not yet time to so much as think out what we will want on those points."

PATCHING UP STRIKE DETAILS.

Arbitration Board Meets to Decide Which Gas Employes Shall Be Reinstated.

Following the recent strike against the People's Gaslight and Coke company, an arbitration board met yesterday to name the strikers who are entitled to reinstatement. When the Chicago board settled the strike it made arrangements for another mediation body to take up individual cases. L. B. Raymond is acting for the company, F. G. Hopp for the men, and W. J. Onahan is the third member of the board. Testimony from General Supt. Williamson of the company and F. G. Hartwell, who holds the contract for transporting the company's supplies, were heard yesterday.

The Metropolitan elevated road has placated the armature winders and carpenters who struck a week ago. The men threatened to seriously cripple the road, so the company paid them for the days they were on strike and agreed not to discriminate against them in the future.

The Baltimore and Ohio and the Chicago Great Western railroads signed agreements with their freight handlers yesterday, giving them the wage increase recently granted by the Lake Shore and Michigan Southern company.

PRISON FOR UNION TEAMSTER.

Abraham Covert, Who Killed Samuel Gates, Convicted of Manslaughter.

A union teamster, Abraham Covert, was found guilty of manslaughter yesterday afternoon by a jury in Judge McEwen's court. Covert killed Samuel Gates, a South Water street commission merchant, at the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railroad freight depot. Union troubles resulting in Gates driving to the depot to receive a shipment of produce brought on a quarrel, in which Covert struck and killed Gates.

"Covert, as a union man, accused Gates of violation of union principles, tried him, found him guilty, and executed him, all within a few minutes," was the substance of Mr. Crowe's argument to the jury.

"Such men are a detriment to the labor unions," said one of the five members of unions who served on the jury.

CALL TIEUP A CONSPIRACY

SCHOOL TRUSTEES WILL TRY TO INDICT MEN AT FAULT.

Contractors Unable to Put Roof on Wendell Phillips Building Because of Trouble with Their Own Association and with the Galvanized Iron Workers—Immediate Appeal to Be Taken to State's Attorney Deneen for a Criminal Charge.

With the interior of the new Wendell Phillips High school exposed to ruin by rain and wind because of the strike of the galvanized iron roofers, the board of education yesterday voted to carry its labor troubles to State's Attorney Deneen in an effort to cause the indictment of the officers of both the Contractors' association and the metal workers' union on a charge of conspiracy.

All other efforts to complete the roofing on the new school having failed, the trustees, aroused over what they characterize the arbitrary conduct of the employers' and the employés' organizations, have appealed to the law for relief.

The labor troubles which have brought the work on the Wendell Phillips High school, Prairie avenue and Thirty-ninth street, to a standstill were brought to the attention of the buildings and grounds committee of the school board through a communication received by Architect Mundie from E. A. Rysdon & Co., contractors.

Letter from Contractors.

The letter charged the Contractors' association and the metal workers' union with conspiracy. It reads as follows:

"Owing to labor difficulties we are at present unable to proceed with work on the Wendell Phillips High school, and have not the least idea when we can do so.

"We regret to say that the strike was brought about by conspiracy on the part of both the Contractors' association and the metal workers' union, the former of which has placed a fine of $2,500, the latter a fine of $500, together with wages during the strike. We feel that we cannot afford to pay these sums, and see no other chance of settlement."

Architect Mundie explained that the contracting firm had signed the union scale, in opposition to the orders of the Contractors' association, and for this reason had been fined by it, and that the fine imposed by the labor union resulted from the employment of union help before the scale was signed. Architect Mundie reported that the building is all enclosed, and that the roof is boarded in.

Waiting for Sheet Metal Men.

"We are waiting for the sheet metal man to put on the galvanized roof," he declared. "We cannot go on with the plastering and finishing, and the building is soaked with every rain. It would be a hardship to compel Rysdon to abide by the penalty clause of his contract when he is rendered absolutely helpless by the act of his own contractors' association in conjunction with the sheet metal workers' union. The firm has other contracts all over the city, and school repairs cannot be made until the contractors and the union say so."

Trustee Downey expressed the view that it was not Rysdon's fault. He asked Trustee Harris for a legal opinion. Mr. Harris declared the whole condition of affairs to be an outrage and suggested that Attorney McMahon be instructed to confer with State's Attorney Deneen with a view to causing the indictment of the officers of both of the organizations on the charge of conspiracy.

DELAY FOR CRIPPLED CHILDREN

School Committee Has No Quorum to Vote on Absolute Segregation Plan.

At the moment that the advocates of the absolute segregation of crippled children in separate, unattached school buildings had lost all hope it was discovered that there was not a quorum at the meeting of the buildings and grounds committee yesterday. This resulted in the postponement of final action for another week.

The temporary stay of sentence of the cripples to a continuation of the ridicule and funmaking of their robust schoolmates brought smiles to the faces of the half dozen little unfortunates who had hobbled into the committee room to plead for a school of their own. It gave their mothers hope and Graham H. Harris another week to work in their behalf.

Just before Chairman Downey announced that there was not a quorum present Trustee James F. Chvatal introduced resolutions calling upon Supt. Cooley and Architect Mundie to report a plan for the establishment of centers in the different parts of the city for the suitable accommodation of the crippled children. The resolutions provided for the location of these centers so as to reduce the travel of the children to and from school to a minimum, not less than fifteen children to be cared for at any one location.

The cripples themselves, their mothers, and Trustee Harris declare that the committee's plan would not protect the cripples from being ridiculed and annoyed by the other school children.

The express companies will close their main offices Saturday afternoons at 2 p. m. during the months of June, July, and August.

MARSHALL FIELD ON LABOR SITUATION.

A report in a financial newspaper yesterday that Marshall Field & Co.'s buyers had received orders to cease buying goods for the present because of widespread labor troubles was shown to Marshall Field last night. Mr. Field, in an authorized and dictated interview, denied this specific statement and said:

"We feel if this agitation continues that labor will be out of employment for the reason that the employer is now paying as much for labor as it is possible for him to pay and live. We are obliged to look far into the future, since we import our goods from all over the world and make large contracts in advance, even in this country; therefore under present disturbed conditions we are necessarily more conservative.

"The prosperity we are now enjoying will not continue unless this agitation is stopped and unless labor is willing to continue earnestly at work at the present high prices. These prices for labor must certainly go down as soon as there is any material let up in business. Personally, I have always been an advocate of good pay, short hours, steady employment, and good, faithful service, trying to keep all our employés thoroughly interested in the business. I have read the president's speech and have been much interested in that part of it in which the president warns us to enforce the laws of our country. In short, he says that 'the supreme safety of our country is to be found in a fearless and honest administration of the laws of the land.' That, I am sure, voices the sentiment of every good citizen of the United States.

"Certainly the weakest point in the government of the country today, and the one that is destined to bring us the greatest trouble unless we have an immediate change, is the lax enforcement of law. The trouble is that the young people of the land are growing up to have no respect for law and order, and why should they have when they are not made to respect it? There is nothing we need in this country so much, I repeat, as respect for and honest enforcement of the law as affecting every citizen, whether employer or employé, and when laws are found to be bad they should be repealed. I know of my own knowledge that we would have had a much greater increase in manufacturing industries in Chicago during the last five years had it not been for labor troubles in Chicago. Why should manufacturers come here when they can go elsewhere and have little trouble?"

JUDICIAL VOTE OFFERS PUZZLE.

MAY SUMMON OFFICIALS.

Vast Difference in Returns for the Candidates on the Same Party Ticket.

The official vote of eight more wards was announced yesterday and the Eighteenth, where fraud was charged at the judicial election, shows some remarkable differences in the vote cast for candidates on the same party tickets. The figures are subject to review and it is probable some of them will be changed before they are certified to the County court.

Judge Tuley, in the Nineteenth precinct, according to the poll books and the tally sheets, received but fifty-six votes, while the other democratic candidates for the Circuit bench received 200 votes, and Judge Hanecy received 216. A majority of the other candidates on the republican ticket received less than thirty votes.

In the Twentieth precinct Judge Hanecy received 117 votes, Judge Tuthill seventy-six, and the other republican candidates received fewer than fifteen. In this same precinct Judges Tuley and Adams received 121 votes each, while some of the other democratic candidates received but twenty-one.

In the Eighteenth ward Judge Hanecy received more than twice as many votes as any other republican candidate, and more than any democratic candidate, except Judge Dunne.

Hanecy Leads His Ticket.

In the Seventeenth precinct of the Nineteenth ward Judge Hanecy received 78 votes, while the other republican candidates received from 21 to 28 votes each, and Judge Baker, on the democratic ticket, received but 12. The judges and clerks of these precincts may be cited to appear to explain these votes today.

The provisional candidates show large losses. In the Eighteenth ward Condee lost 168, Hoyne, 98, and O'Donnell 82. O'Donnell lost 109 votes in the Fourteenth ward and gained 64 in the Fifteenth. Esher lost 51 in the Seventeenth; Rogers gained 80 in the Fourteenth and 46 in the Fifteenth, but lost 86 in the Eighteenth. The county bond issue made a net gain of over 900 votes, of which 706 were in the Eighteenth ward. The canvass will be completed on Monday.

Official Vote of Eight Wards.

SUIT FOR THE PROVISIONALS.

Attorneys Leave to Place the Judges Problem Before the Supreme Court for Settlement.

Assistant County Attorney Frank L. Shepard and Former County Attorney Robert S. Iles left last night for Springfield, where they will commence suit in the Supreme court to decide whether the three provisional judges elected Monday are entitled to hold office. At a conference held yesterday it was decided that mandamus proceedings were the quickest means of deciding the question. A decision will be had on an application for a writ to compel the county clerk of Cook county to canvass the vote and issue certificates of election.

The judges-elect met during the afternoon in the office of Judge-elect Charles M. Walker to consider when they should begin their terms of office. Some of those present favored taking the bench at the opening of the June term of court on the third Monday in June, or June 15.

Others thought it would be better to wait for the opening of the July term. A decision will be reached this morning.

MINERS CLAIM A VINDICATION.

Attitude of Judge Gray Pleases Workers—Operators Likely to Approve Representatives of Union.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., June 5.—Since the reported statement of Judge Gray taking sides with the miners in their contention that their first conciliation committee was elected legally, the miners have taken a new stand, and prominent officials of the mineworkers in this city stated today that there would likely be a suspension of work unless the operators receded from their position. The opinion of the chairman of the coal strike commission is regarded by the miners as a vindication of their position. A prominent official of one of the local coal companies here stated tonight that he believed the operators' conciliators would have no objection to Messrs. Nicholls, Dettrey, and Fahey.

FINDS BIG GAME IN ABYSSINIA.

Tyler Morse of Boston Returns to London from Emperor Menelik's Land.

SAYS HUNTING IS POOR

Declares Americans Who Want Good Shooting Should Go to Uganda.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

LONDON, June 5.—Tyler Morse of Boston has just returned to London from an eight months' shooting trip in Abyssinia, bringing with him about forty trophies of the expedition. His brother, I. Morse, who was his companion on the trip, remained behind in Addis Ababa, and is going on to the Blue Nile with Lieut. Col. J. L. Harrington, British consul and diplomatic agent in Abyssinia.

Mr. Morse was met in Paris by his uncle, Godfrey Morse of Boston, who has been visiting relatives in Germany, and who sails for America in about ten days. Tyler Morse remains over here to drive the Foxhall coach.

Tells of Hunting in Abyssinia.

"I should not advise anybody who wishes to hunt big game to go to Abyssinia," said Mr. Morse tonight. "It is not worth the trouble. The sport in Uganda is far superior, the game is much more easily got at by the Mombassa railway, and the conditions under which one shoots are much simpler. The Abyssinian is a poor specimen of a hunter, being accustomed to go after his quarry only in numbers large enough to surround it. They are gradually killing off the game. Our men were astonished because we would not shoot all the zebras we found."

Of his reported trouble with the natives Mr. Morse declined to give any particulars, saying it was of no importance, but he added the natives as a rule were all friendly. They never will attack a white man if he lets them alone and does not insult their women or defy their customs.

Went to Shoot Ibex.

The Messrs. Morse went to Abyssinia, not as was reported for any purposes of exploration, but to shoot ibex. Starting out from the Italian colony at Erithrea on the Red sea they journeyed north to the province of Semien. Owing, however, to the unfriendly attitude of certain tribes they were unsuccessful, and after about three months in the mountains, where the climate, though excellent by day, was bitterly cold by night, and the roads among the worst in the world. They made for Addis Ababa, Emperor Menelik's capital.

Mr. Morse said he observed that the natives in the north were plentifully supplied with fine French rifles of the Gras type, and since their defeat of the Italians in 1897 have acquired a high idea of their powers.

During their stay of one month at Addis Ababa, the Messrs. Morse were the guests of Lieut. Col. Harrington, who has a polo field there. They were received by Emperor Menelik, who upon learning that they had not been allowed to shoot in the north, insisted upon their returning. This, however, the Messrs. Morse declined to do, and in company with Capt. Duff Gordon of the Highlanders, A. D. C. to Col. Harrington, made for Lake Rasi in the south, where they found excellent sport, bagging plenty of hartbeest and gazelle.

Find Lots of Big Game.

From this point after a month they went back to Hawash river, where, following its bank for two months through the mountains they found good shooting. Hippopotami, aardvarks, zebra, kodoo, antelope, water buck, reed buck, bush buck, and oryx furnished a bag varied enough to satisfy the most exacting taste and helped as well, at least such as were edible, to keep their larder in stock, for they had to kill for provisions.

From Hawash Tyler Morse made his way to the seacoast, through French Somaliland. There were many delays because of men deserting and mules dying, and at the head of the French railway a flood caused by the advent of the rainy season caused another halt of eighteen days, washing out the road, which for half its length of about 175 miles is without ballast.

On the way to the railroad many gazelles, with buck and antelope, were shot for provisions. The coast was reached May 23, where Morse embarked at Djoubitil for Marseilles.

Mr. Morse decided to return and not take part in the shooting excursion to the Blue Nile because he heard that the grass was high in the Soudan and that shooting would in consequence not be good.

RUSSIA PREPARING TO LEAVE.

Troops Will Quit Manchuria by September and Soldiers Are Already Starting for Home.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

LONDON, June 5.—The latest statement in regard to Russia's intentions in Manchuria was issued from the Russian embassy at Paris today. It is to the effect that the evacuation of Manchuria is now proceeding, and the definite retirement of the Russian troops from that portion of China will take place in September.

Rebellion Still Spreading.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

PEKIN, June 5.—Statements issued by the Chinese foreign office today show the aspect of the rebellion in the province of Yunnan is not improved except that communication has been reopened with the treaty city of Mengtse and the disorder has been localized. The Wai Wu Pu claims that when the imperial troops are ready to proceed they will be able to recapture Lingan-Fu, which is now in possession of the rebels.

United States Fleet Ready.

Washington, D. C., June 5.—Coming close on the heels of a long report from Rear Admiral Robley D. Evans, commander in chief of the Asiatic squadron, concerning the grave international situation in China, the assembling of his squadron in Chinese waters is regarded here as significant.

LIBERAL SCORES TARIFF PLAN.

Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman Attacks Chamberlain's Scheme—Calls It a Government Trick.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

LONDON, June 5.—Addressing a liberal demonstration at Perth, Scotland, Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman, the liberal leader, denounced Mr. Chamberlain's tariff scheme as a great diversion invented by a master hand in the cabinet to shroud in controversy the government's past muddles and failures, the premier, meanwhile, yielding a probably reluctant and shivering acquiescence. He (the speaker) never expected to live to witness such a spectacle, and he did not believe that the country would be so easily befooled. Sir Henry then criticised the scheme in detail on the lines already indicated in previous speeches by the leaders of the liberal party.

RUSSIA TO STAND BY AUTHORS.

French Delegates Arrange Reciprocal Relations with Czar's Government—May Visit United States.

PARIS, June 5.—Marcel Prevost and Alfred Capus have returned here from St. Petersburg, where they went in behalf of the French authors and dramatists. They succeeded in arranging terms for reciprocal protection against the pirating of plays and books similar to the American measures. After the conclusion of the Russian negotiations MM. Prevost and Capus may go to the United States to strengthen the present system of protection for authors.

ENERGY IN EACH ELEMENT

SIR WILLIAM CROOKES TELLS OF NEW SCIENTIFIC THEORY.

Professor in Talk Before the International Chemical Congress at Berlin Discusses the Possibility of Finding a One and Ultimate in All Matter — Great Discoveries Predicted if Present Lines of Research Are Followed.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

BERLIN, June 5.—Prof. Sir William Crookes, before the international chemical congress today, dealt with the possibility of reducing all the elements of matter to a one and ultimate, by finding that each and every element is resolvable into a single form of energy.

The subject was, "Modern Views on Matters—The Realization of a Dream." Sir William cited the utterances of Sir Humphry Davy and Faraday as anticipating the possibility of reducing the elements to simpler bases and sketched the significance of the Roentgen rays, and the experiments of the Curies, and the discoveries of radium and others.

Standing on the Border Line.

"All these observations," he said, "find internal connection in the discovery of radium, which is probably the basis of the coarser chemical elements here. Probably masses of molecules dissolve themselves into the ether waves of the universe or into electrical energy. Thus we stand on the border line where matter and forces pass into each other. In this border land lie the greatest scientific problems of the future. Here lie the final realities, wide reaching and marvelous.

"The nineteenth century saw the birth of new views regarding the nature of atoms, electricity, and ether. While our views about the composition of matter are generally satisfactory today, will that be the case at the end of the twentieth century?

Not Only a Temporary Value.

"Do we not again see that our investigations have only a temporary value? Will we be content to see matter dissolving into a multitude of revolving electrodes?

"Such a mysterious dissolution of atoms appears to be universal. It occurs when a particular piece is rubbed with silk. It is present in sunshine, in a rain drop, in lightning, in a flame, in a water fall, and in the roaring sea.

"Although the whole range of human experience is too short to form a parallax whereby we can foretell the disappearance of matter, nevertheless it is possible that formless nebulæ will prevail again when the bourgiass of eternity has run out."

CASSINI NOW MUST EXPLAIN.

Ambassador's Statements Regarding the Russian Demands on China Are a Surprise to Diplomats.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

PEKIN, June 5.—Mail and newspapers containing an explanations of the demands made upon China, as given by Count Cassini, the Russian ambassador at Washington, have reached here and the explanation causes astonishment, as it is held here that Count Cassini was ignorant concerning the nature of the demands.

Further astonishment is caused by his amazing impeachment of the veracity and judgment of Mr. Conger, the American minister here. Minister Conger's knowledge of the demands is based on both the Russian and Chinese texts, which were in his possession and which already have been sent to Washington.

Count Cassini's explanation is accepted here as unnecessary evidence of Russian duplicity, though nobody regards that the full enlightenment of Count Cassini on the real deals of the Russian officials in China by St. Petersburg is possible.

Count Cassini is not regarded here as being qualified to judge of Chinese affairs at present, Mr. Conger has telegraphed demanding that Count Cassini explain his explanation.

Vice Admiral Sir Cyprian Bridge, commander of the British Asiatic squadron, was given an audience by the empress dowager at the summer palace today. Rear Admiral Evans, commanding the American Asiatic squadron, is expected here in two weeks, and he, too, will be given an audience by her majesty.

Four American Vessels Lost, but Crews Are Saved—Storm Is Off the Coast of Leyte.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

MANILA, June 5.—During a hurricane off Kamotes islands, on the west coast of Leyte, the American steamer Pearl of the Visayas was totally wrecked. Part of the crew was saved. The American steamship San Rafael and the schooner Mayflower also were totally wrecked, all members of the crews being saved. It is reported that the American steamer Samuhus also has been wrecked, but this has not been confirmed.

Many delegations from friendly Moro sultans in the vicinity of Iligan, Mindanao, have recently visited the American army headquarters. In order to return these visits a troop of the Fifteenth cavalry under Capt. Ryan has made an extended tour of the highlands. It received a splendid welcome at the various towns they visited. The natives displayed improvised American flags, and the authorities offered the services of laborers for any work that might be required. The country visited was fertile and extensively cultivated. Many army stores which were intrusted to native packers were delivered as ordered, and not a single consignment lost.

GRIEF OVER STUDENT'S DEATH.

University Flag at Half Mast for Miss Frances Moore—Verdict of Accidental Drowning.

The flag of the University of Chicago floated at half mast yesterday in mourning for the death of Frances E. Moore, the girl student who was drowned Thursday morning while rowing with Jesse L. Miller in the Jackson park lagoon. The Rev. C. A. Moore of Davenport, Ia., father of the drowned girl, called on President Harper in the morning and the latter accompanied him to the inquest.

Later President Harper issued the following statement:

"Miss Frances Evelyn Moore, a student for the last five weeks in the junior college of the University of Chicago, while boating in Jackson park lagoon on the morning of June 4, was accidentally drowned. In accordance with a custom greatly enjoyed by many members of the university, she took an early morning row on the lagoon. She and her companion, Mr. Jesse Miller, a young man of exemplary character and reputation, attempted to explore one of the caravels, lost their footing, and were unable to save themselves.

"Miss Moore had won the respect of her associates for her simple, sweet nature and sterling character, and her early and tragic death is deeply mourned.

"WILLIAM R. HARPER, president."

A verdict of death caused by accidental drowning was returned by a coroner's jury yesterday afternoon.

MACEDONIANS AGAIN THREATEN OUTBREAK OF THE PLAGUE.

Sultan to Be Given One More Warning and If He Fails to Heed It Bubonic Bacilli Will Be Liberated in Constantinople, Salonica, and Other Cities of the Ottoman Empire — More Banks and Railroads to Be Dynamited.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

LONDON, June 6, 3 a. m.—A dispatch to the Daily News from Sofia reiterates the story published a few days ago that the Macedonian revolutionary leaders threaten to use Indian plague bacilli to cause an outbreak of that disease if their demands are not conceded. The inception of this plan is ascribed to Boris Sarafoff, the notorious Macedonian leader.

The correspondent says the threat will certainly be carried out within a few days after the rebel chiefs issue a final warning.

Acts of Vengeance Justified.

The Sophiska Vedomosti, a newspaper published in Sofia, which supports the Macedonian cause, prints a long sympathetic article on the subject, in course of which it justifies such actions of vengeance as the explosions at Salonica and predicts the future destruction of banks, commercial houses, railways, and other property owned by European capitalists.

Dealing with what it describes as "the terrific means contemplated by the Macedonian patriots to secure their aims," that paper continues:

"A supply of bubonic bacilli sufficient to spread death and panic in Constantinople, Salonica, and many other places has been in readiness for a long time. In the dirt of Constantinople and Salonica plague germs, once set free, would multiply by millions. The sultan would take flight and his palaces, built with the blood and tears of Bulgarian laborers, would be deserted. The plague would demoralize the Turkish army and disperse it.

Safety in the Mountains.

"As for the Macedonians, they may save themselves as their fathers always did when the plague visited the land. They will take refuge in the mountains, while the Turks in the towns fall victims of the disease or seek safety in flight to Anatolia. In the mountains the Macedonians can subsist for a long time on their flocks of sheep and goats, and can even grow corn without venturing into the plague stricken plains."

Expedient of Despair.

The Vedomosti next considers the question of how can the Macedonians who fight for freedom and civilization reconcile the scheme of spreading the plague with feelings of common humanity. It frankly confesses it cannot answer the question and says:

"We can only say that the new plan is the last resource of the Macedonians. It is the expedient of despair. In despair extreme measures, even if the consequences be anarchy, are natural. The sultan still has time to choose between his last peril and autonomy."

WEST SIDE SALOON HOLDUP DONE BY TWO MASKED MEN.

T. J. Griffin, 242 Congress Street, Narrowly Escapes Being Shot and Is Robbed of $12.

Two masked robbers held up T. J. Griffin in his saloon at 242 West Congress street last night, and fired two shots at him as he attempted to escape and summon the police. Both bullets went through a large plate glass window and missed Griffin. The thieves took $12 from the cash register and escaped after holding up Fred Bloom, 341 West Van Buren street, who was standing near the saloon.

The holdup men then ran north to Tilden avenue, where they were pursued for a short distance by three men, who quickly abandoned the chase when the robbers turned back and showed their revolvers. They disappeared in an alley.

Griffin describes the thieves as 22 years old, short, and fairly well dressed. One had his hair cropped close, which leads the police to think he was lately paroled from the Pontiac reformatory. They answer the description of the men who held up a saloon in Sheffield avenue Tuesday night.

Battling with a burglar in the darkness in the basement of his drug store at 601 West Sixty-ninth street early in the morning, Herbert W. Fryer was shot in the thigh. The burglar escaped without securing any thing of value.

On a North Clark street cable car in the evening Mrs. F. Dingle, 167 Clybourn avenue, was robbed of a pocketbook containing $7 and a check for $15. She was on the platform when a man tore her pocketbook from her grasp and jumped from the car at Chestnut street. He was chased by passengers and policemen and overtaken at Gault court. Most of the money was recovered. The man gave the name of John Sweeney.

With "rah rah" on their lips and trays in their hands, members of the Beta Theta Pi fraternity served as table waiters last night and carried food to their girl friends who had assembled at the Chicago Beach hotel. The occasion was a dinner given by members of the fraternity and the work of the students was made necessary by the unpleasantness between the management of the hotel and the hotel employés. But even though the young men worked as waiters, they had some assistance, as the chambermaids, in view of the truce that was patched up during the afternoon, reluctantly consented to "help out" at the tables.

Capt. John J. Healy of New York, president of the Asiatic and Alaskan railroad company, is defendant in a suit for $180,000 damages filed in the Superior court yesterday by L. Orville Wilcoxon. The suit is said to be the outgrowth of a business deal. DUTIES OF TENDER AT IDLE BRIDGE TO BE INVESTIGATED.

Council Finance Committee Hears of a Sinecure at Belmont Avenue and Decides to Start an Inquiry—Other Similar Cases May Be Found — Will Try Again to Sell Those Bonds, Increasing the Interest Rate to 4 Per Cent.

"What are the duties of a bridge tender when the bridge is out of service?"

The council finance committee is seeking an answer to this query. The question arose yesterday afternoon over Ald. Blake's request for $3,000 to repair the broken Belmont avenue bridge, which has not been opened for two years. Public Works Commissioner Blocki admitted that the bridge tender there has been drawing $600 annually.

"But what does he do?" demanded Ald. Raymer. "Just look pleasant? Or is it feared that some one will steal the structure?"

"O, he takes care of the bridge," returned the commissioner. "He cleans off the footway and hangs out a light at night."

"Well, it's time that this business of giving fellows soft snaps should stop," asserted Ald. Raymer.

The matter was put over for one week to allow of an investigation as to whether there are other tenders drawing salary for bridges that do not swing.

Another Attempt to Sell Bonds.

The committee determined to make another attempt to get bids for the issue of $4,000,000 worth of judgment refunding bonds. An ordinance will be presented to the council asking that the interest rate be raised to 4 per cent. Corporation Counsel Walker asserts that the issue merely involves changing the form of an indebtedness now existing and therefore is legal.

The new smoke inspection bureau recently created is experiencing trouble, the finance commitee having not yet allowed the $12,000 which will allow the department to exist during the year. The excuse for this is that the mayor has not yet appointed the officials of the new department.

Aldermen Generous to a Widow.

Mrs. Steffens, who conducted a delicatessen store at 1518 Milwaukee avenue, was allowed $100 by the committee as recompense for the health department's action in closing her establishment and keeping it closed for more than a week. The prevalence of diphtheria in the family was the cause, the course of the health officials being upheld by the city law department. The committee held, however, that the widow deserved compensation for the loss sustained.

Building Commissioner Williams has given William Bauman, agent of the seven story building at 3716-3718 Lake avenue, twelve hours in which to place in safe condition the iron stairway leading down on the outside at the rear of the structure. WHEDON FEELS GOVERNOR'S AX.

Chicago Man Removed from the Prison Board for Joliet and Place Given to Israel Gudgeon.

As his last act before starting for Europe yesterday Gov. Yates removed James P. Whedon of Chicago from the board of commissioners for the Joliet penitentiary. Mr. Whedon's resignation was requested some time ago, but no reason was assigned by the governor for asking it.

The document was not forthcoming, however, and the commissioner was ousted, the place being given to Israel Gudgeon of Grundy county, to whom it is said it was promised last fall in return for political work in behalf of the governor.

At the Virginia hotel last night Mr. Whedon was reported as ill, and not disposed to talk of the matter at the present time.

ILLINOIS FLOODS COST MILLIONS.

RIVER STILL IS RISING.

Whole Towns Under Water and Loss May Be Trebled—Crops Ruined by the Overflow.

St. Louis, Mo., June 6.—[Special.]—Millions of dollars of damage has been caused already by the inundating of tens of thousands of acres of the richest farming land in Illinois by the breaking of levees along the Mississippi river. Still higher water is certain, and the loss may be doubled or trebled before the waters recede.

The Sny levee, the guardian of some of the most fertile land in Illinois, is broken in a number of places and the flood is sweeping over scores of farms. Crops have been ruined and farm buildings carried away.

Vast Tract at Flood's Mercy.

The Sny is the most important levee on the north end of the river and is seventy miles long. In some places it is twenty-eight feet high and eighty feet across at the base. It incloses a fertile farming section from three to seven miles wide, containing over 100,000 acres.

There are several towns within the district, the population of which is probably 10,000. Many of them remain and loss of life is certain. This district has not been overflowed since 1888.

The Madison levee, north of the Merchants' bridge, also has broken, endangering the lives and property of the citizens of Granite City. Large forces of men are at work in an attempt to fill the gap, but much damage has been done already by the raging waters.

Government Aid Is Asked.

A telephone message was received tonight from Waterloo, Ill., forty miles below St. Louis, situated in the lowlands several miles from the river, saying that the flood has spread to that point and a levee erected for just such an emergency is in danger of being washed away. Government aid is asked to strengthen the levee and avert the threatened inundation of the town. Investigation is being made and if it is found that lives are in danger a government boat will be rushed there at once.

The Mississippi has broken through private levees at two points below Oldenburg and is flooding valuable farms in the bottoms. Several hundred farmers are vainly seeking to fill the gaps with brush, planks, and sandbags.

Hundreds Flee to Safety.

Every family in the bottoms protected by the levee, which is a private one, erected to keep out the backwater from above, is fleeing to the high ground at Mitchell, which offers the best protection in that section.

At 7 o'clock tonight the stage of the river here had reached 34.2 feet, a rise of seventenths of a foot since 7 o'clock this morning. Government Forecaster Bowie tonight issued a bulletin predicting a stage of thirty-five feet by tomorrow noon, thirty-six feet by Sunday, and thirty-seven feet on Monday. The Mississippi north of the mouth of the Missouri is rising still, but the rapidity of the rise has been diminished because of the breaks in levees.

The flood forced a passage today through the levee at Madison, Ill., just north of St. Louis. This levee is fifteen miles long, and for days men have been at work endeavoring to strengthen it, but the river found its weak point and the water broke through like a geyser. Carloads of bags of sand and all other available material were hurried to the break and dumped in, but the force of the flood washed out the filling and the break constantly widened.

Whole Town Is Submerged.

West Granite, a town of 2,000 population, is located in a depression between the levee and a railroad embankment. Ample warning had been sounded and the inhabitants had sought safety when the deluge came. It is believed all escaped, but the town is under water.

The streets of Venice, Ill., almost opposite St. Louis, are waterways and the inhabitants go about in boats. Venice was the first town in this vicinity to feel the full force of this flood, and it has been under water for two days.

In St. Louis the buildings along the river front have practically been abandoned, as the first floors are over a foot under water, which stands tonight two feet deep on the top of the steamboat levee.

Levee denizens are preparing for the worst. All day wagons were hauling away the contents of the flooded stores. Excursion boats did a thriving business, being thronged with sightseers anxious to make the trip down to the southern boundary of the city and return to the Eads bridge.

In South St. Louis fully 100 families living near the mouth of the River Des Peres were forced to leave their houses today by the advancing water, and many families living in houseboats fled to land for shelter.

Stockyards Quit Business.

At Bremen avenue the St. Louis stockyards have quit business and the packers are unable to do anything. Shipping has been interrupted on most of the roads and no cattle are coming in.

Extra police patrolled the flooded district of Jefferson City last night, and at 3 o'clock this morning they awakened residents on West Main street, one of the principal thoroughfares of the city, and ordered them to move out, as backwater was forging into the street. The electric light and gas plants have closed down completely and the water supply will likely be cut off. Nearly all the residences in the bottoms have been abandoned, and this morning the colored school building was turned into a house of refuge for many of the sufferers.

Relief for Kansas Cities.

Kansas City, Mo., June 5.—George Gould today sent $5,000 to the Kansas City, Kas., relief committee, and President Burt of the Union Pacific sent $500 to each Kansas City. There were other liberal contributions of money and supplies, and the total cash received in both cities is about $75,000.

Not all the 30,000 people driven from their homes have received assistance from the public, but food and shelter and clothing were given to all who needed. Nearly all the sufferers had been industrious and prosperous, and they will return to their employment and homes as soon as the water will permit.

Dead at Topeka Seventy-eight.

Topeka, Kas., June 5.—The dead in the Topeka flood now number seventy-eight. Of this number thirty-nine are reported dead on good authority.

People working in the flooded district fear that many more will be found drowned as the flood recedes and that the list of dead will not be far from 100.

GIRL ORATOR WINS FIRST PRIZE.

Miss Elizabeth Kolze of Jefferson Victor in the High School Contest at Y. M. C. A. Hall.

Miss Elizabeth Kolze of the Jefferson High school won the highest honors at the ninth annual oratorical contest of the Literary union of the Chicago High Schools with an oration on "Charlotte Corday." The contest, which was held at the Central Young Men's Christian association auditorium last night, was between the selected orators of the ten high schools. Miss Kolze's prize consisted of $100 and a gold medal. The second prize, $75 and a medal, was awarded to Charles G. Parks of Lake View High school. The third prize, of $50 and a gold medal, was awarded to Bernard I. Bell of South Division. Sydney J. Frank of North Division was awarded honorable mention.

TWO OPERATIONS

First You Must Cure the Grip, Then Banish Its After Effects.

"I was worse after the grip had gone than I was when I had it," says Mr. J. L. Hamsalle, proprietor of the Cosmopolitan hotel, at No. 115 South Madison avenue, Peoria, Ill. Many others who are still suffering from the effects of an attack of the grip will appreciate the statement. Mr. Hamalle continues: "The disease left me in bad shape. I had night sweats, sleep did not refresh me, I could not eat, grew weak and had severe chills. Then, worst of all, rheumatism set in and nearly crippled me.

"After spending considerable money for medicines that only made me worse, I began taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. Then I began to improve and by the time six boxes were taken I was well and strong again. Since then I have always kept Dr. Williams' Pink Pills on hand and my family has taken them at various times, always with good results."

After every attack of grip the health is shattered—the blood becomes poor, the flesh falls away, the sufferer grows irritable and even slight exertion causes shortness of breath. These are dangerous symptoms and indicate that the system is in a state that invites pneumonia, bronchitis, or even consumption. A specific, however, has been found which not only will quickly restore the health after an attack of the grip and expel the lingering germs but, working through the blood, will render the system proof against the disease. In hundreds of cases it has been shown that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People have accomplished this result. The power of these pills in the vast number of diseases due to impure blood or to derangements of the system, has been demonstrated in thousands of instances. No one who is suffering can rightfully neglect this way to restore health.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People are sold by all dealers, or will be sent postpaid on receipt of price, 50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50 (they are never sold in bulk or by the hundred), by addressing Dr. Williams Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y.

IMMENSE LOSS BY FIRE.

ONE TOWN DESTROYED AND HUNDREDS OF BUILDINGS BURNED.

Lumbering Interests Suffer Heavy Losses Throughout Toronto and Maine—Armies of Men Are Partially Successful in Checking the Flames —All of New England Under a Pall—Two Lives Reported Lost—Man Arrested for Using the Torch.

Portland, Me., June 5.—Reports from every section in northern Maine confirm the first reports of tremendous loss to the lumbering and other interests from forest fires. In addition, one town has been completely destroyed, hundreds of buildings have been burned in all parts of the state, and at least two lives were lost.

Lumbering interests are hard hit by this misfortune, following close on the lack of snow in the woods this winter and the drought which caused the loss of more than 25,000,000 feet of logs.

The town of Patten has been completely surrounded by fires at close range for forty-eight hours. Eight townships have been burned over, causing a loss of $250,000 to the lumber interests there.

Immense Damage Reported.

Toronto, Ont., June 5.—[Special.]—Reports show that immense damage, has been caused by the forest fires which are raging throughout Quebec and New Brunswick and Frontenac, Stormont, Dundas, and Glengarry counties in eastern Ontario.

In the two first named provinces the fires have been particularly disastrous, the village of Musquash, N. B., having been destroyed, while in Quebec a number of hamlets have been burned out and only the most desperate efforts saved several towns. It is reported that two reels and a fire engine loaned by the city of Quebec to assist in fighting the fire at a nearby village were burned and the firemen had a narrow escape.

The situation today has improved, but only a heavy rainfall can prevent still greater damage being done. The only loss of life reported is from Piccadilly, Kings county, N. B., where two elderly women were burned to death in the fields. An idea of the fierceness of these fires may be found from the fact that the big game in the Lake St. John district, Quebec, have become terrified. Deer have taken shelter in the villages, and even moose have been driven within the bounds of civilization. Many of the club houses of sportsmen are reported to be in ashes.

Cover a Wide Territory.

Saratoga, N. Y., June 5.—The sun today is still obscured by dense smoke and ashes from Adirondack forest fires. Reports which reached here today from the Catlin lake region are that the fires covered a territory fifteen miles in width and twenty miles in length, and are still spreading. A steamer with a gang of fire fighters has been missing on Long lake for three days. The fires in the Cold river region cover twenty miles square.

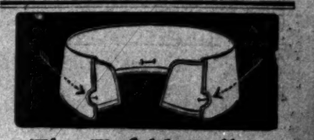

Arrest Forest Fire Fiend.

Glens Falls, N. Y., June 5.—[Special.]—Harry Wood was arrested today in Thurman, this county, for having set fires in the forest. Evidence was obtained and presented to the Warren county grand jury and he was indicted and later arrested. Officers are now after other offenders. This confirms the reports that many of these fires are set intentionally by those anxious to secure work.

COEDS FAIL TO PAY DEBTS.

Two Northwestern Young Women Who Owe a Liveryman Are Reported to the Faculty.

Two Northwestern university coeds who are fond of buggy riding but careless about paying the liveryman, are to be attended to by the faculty. Recently seven coeds were sued by an Evanston liveryman and five of them had a private hearing before Justice Boyer, paying their debts. The other two ignored the suits and now the faculty has been asked to take action.

The Tyfold Collar

The picture shows how the collar is cut out on each side to allow for adjusting a neck tie without springing the collar open. The collar comes close together in front, it keeps the tie in place and you don't see the cut-out part. Besides the tie is retained just over the button, which is also kept out of sight. Your summer comfort will be increased if you wear one, and you'll thank us for the style. Dealers sell them.

POSTAL DEFICIT MAY DISAPPEAR.

Postmaster General Payne Wins Victory by Ruling of Court of Appeals.

TO BE SELF-SUSTAINING.

Inauguration of the One Cent Letter Postage Promised by the Department.

SECOND CLASS MAIL.—Court of Appeals hands down a ruling barring certain publications from being entered as second class mail matter. Postmaster General Payne predicts the early inauguration of 1 cent letter postage.

Washington, D. C., June 5.—[Special.]—An important victory was won by the government in the second class mail rate litigation today. This may result eventually in wiping out the postal deficit and bringing about a 1 cent-letter postage.

The Court of Appeals of the District of Columbia handed down three decisions, two of which sustain the postmaster general in excluding from second class mail certain publications admitted as newspapers but which are, in reality, circulating libraries according to officials. The third case was decided against the department, and under the decision of the court publications giving lists of railroads will continue to enjoy the second class privilege.

Some time ago Assistant Postmaster General Madden issued an order directing that the Riverside literary series publication, owned by Houghton & Mifflin, be excluded from the second class mail privilege. The publishers obtained a restraining order from the District Supreme court enjoining the postmaster general from barring their publication from the class to which it had been admitted. The postmaster general took an appeal, which resulted in the Court of Appeals reversing the lower court and sustaining the government's contention.

Another case, that of the Bates & Guild company, publishers of "Masters in Music," was also decided in favor of the government. The points in these two cases were identical. The third case, involving the admission of publications made up largely of lists of railways, was decided against the government. There are comparatively few of this class of publications, and their admission to the mails at a cheaper rate will have little effect on postal revenues. But in the cases won by the government there will be a large increase in postal receipts, as these publications will now be required to pay postage at the rate of 1 cent for two ounces.

Thousands of tons of book matter have been sent through the mails at the second class rate, 1 cent a pound. It costs the government 4 cents a pound to handle this class of mail, and so large is the volume of second class matter which will hereafter be ruled out that it is almost entirely responsible for the postal deficit.

Postmaster General Payne is delighted over his victory, and predicts the postal service will soon be self-sustaining, and in a short time the 1 cent letter postage will be given the people, at least within certain limits.

Postmaster General Payne will retain on pay George A. C. Christiancy, an assistant attorney in the office of the assistant attorney general for the postoffice department, until the investigation of Christiancy's office is completed. Christiancy is now on an indefinite leave of absence, and has not performed his duties for thirty days. As the law provides for but thirty days' annual leave the postmaster general was doubtful as to whether Christiancy should be given further leave, with or without pay, or dismissed. Controller Tracewell was requested to give an opinion in the case. He holds that under the circumstances Christiancy can be continued on the pay roll until the investigation is finished.

In discussing the decision of the Court of Appeals Assistant Postmaster General Madden said:

"The tide has been turned. The department is today on top. Reform in second class matter is now assured. Let it be understood, however, that while this decision of the Court of Appeals restores full authority to the postmaster general when he exercises his discretion properly within the law, yet the publishers of every legitimate newspaper and periodical have nothing to fear. The administration will in every sense execute the law reasonably, fairly, and equitably, and will protect the publishers of legitimate newspapers and periodicals in their lawful rights.

"The effect of the decision is to defend them against the unfair competition which they have had to meet in the past from pretended newspapers and periodicals, which have been enabled through lax administration heretofore to obtain the benefit of these low rates contrary to the intent and meaning of the law. If I myself had written the decision for this court it could not have been better adapted for effective administration. The lawful discretion which the court said the postmaster general possesses in passing upon applications for admission to second class mail matter will be conservatively and reasonably exercised. Publishers of legitimate newspapers and periodicals, along with the postoffice department, should be congratulated."

WARRANT BLOCKS A WEDDING.

Mrs. Charles Hamill, 18 Sholto Street, Mother of Expected Bride, Lands Girl in Jail.

A wedding was "unavoidably postponed" yesterday because the mother of the intended bride appeared with a search warrant and a constable took the girl away and put her in jail.

James Johnson, 490 Wood street, the groom to be, had taken his fiancée, Miss Lizzie Hamill, from her home at 18 Sholto street, to the residence of his sister because the girl's mother objected to a wedding. Then the mother, Mrs. Charles Hamill, had him arrested on a charge of abduction, saying the girl was only 17 years old.

Justice Sabath dismissed the case, and Johnson got a marriage license, giving the girl's age as 19. Before the hour set for the wedding, however, the girl was taken to jail. Johnson found a bondsman, but bail was refused. Mrs. Hamill says she will keep Lizzie in jail a year before she will let her marry Johnson.

WEDS BRAKEMAN INSTEAD OF PROFESSOR.

MISS MABEL GARNSEY.

Scorning the affections of a Northwestern university professor, as well as of a clergyman, Miss Mabel Garnsey of 1844 Ashland avenue, Evanston, eloped with Aubrey Cormick, a railway brakeman, and in the Methodist church of Wilmette was married to the man she loved. Miss Garnsey was in Prof. F. J. Truby's physics class at Northwestern academy last year, and his devotion to her is said to have been marked. She also had for an admirer the Rev. Charles Wentworth of Sycamore, Ill., who met her while he was a student of the Northwestern academy. But in spite of the attentions of the clergyman and the professor, she gave her love to Cormick, the brakeman, and thereby incurred the wrath of her father, Dr. C. A. P. Garnsey, who was planning to send her to St. Louis when the elopement took place. Cormick was first attracted to Miss Garnsey when he heard her singing at the bedside of a sick friend. One day he invited her aboard the Northwestern train on which he was running, and in his conversation with her he neglected his duties, a small smashup resulting. For this he was discharged from the railroad's employ.

END OF ROOSEVELT TRIP.

BACK IN THE WHITE HOUSE AFTER MEMORABLE TOUR.

Makes 265 Addresses in Journey of 14,000 Miles Over the Country—Officials and People of Capital Greet Executive in Washington and He Speaks Briefly, Thanking Them for the Welcome—Not an Accident During Two Months of Travel.

Washington, D. C., June 5.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt's trip of 14,000 miles, during which he made 265 addresses, ended with his arrival at the White house today. The trip consumed sixty-five days, and there was no break in the schedule.

The president was given a hearty reception by the people of the capital city, who lined the sidewalks as his carriage, escorted by a battalion of high school cadets, was driven to the White house. The president cordially responded to the greeting given him and repeatedly stood up in his carriage and waved his hat and bowed his acknowledgements. He looked the picture of health.

Officials at the Station.

There was a large gathering of officials at the station when the president arrived. They included Secretary Root, Secretary Hitchcock, and Secretary Cortelyou and Postmaster General Payne, District Commissioners West, McFarland, and Biddle, Capt. W. S. Cowles, the president's brother-in-law; and Col. Symons, the superintendent of public buildings and grounds. Drawn up in line were Commander in Chief Kimball of the department of the Potomac of the Grand Army of the Republic and a detachment of Spanish war veterans under command of Col. Hodgson.

Promptly at 7 o'clock the train bearing the president and his party rolled into the station. There was a shout of welcome home as Mr. Roosevelt made his appearance on the platform, and it continued while the president was in or about the station. The president spent a few minutes in exchanging greetings with the assembled officials. He talked longer with Postmaster General Payne than any of the others, the latter throwing his arms about the president and apparently whispering to him. The president, accompanied by Capt. Cowles in full uniform, then entered a carriage and with his party, which besides the officials of the station included Attorney General Knox, Secretary Wilson, and Senator Beveridge of Indiana, were escorted by a battalion of high school cadets along Pennsylvania avenue to the White house grounds.

Reviews High School Cadets.

At the entrance to the White house grounds the cadets halted, and the president and his party passed them in review. The avenue was lined with people, and the applause which greeted the president on every hand was cordial. The fire engines of the city were stationed at the intersecting streets on the avenue, and the tolling of their bells added to the welcome to the president.

While the review of the cadets was taking place a large crowd repaired to the rear of the White house, where the Marine band gave a concert in honor of the arrival home of the chief executive. It was expected that the president would appear for a moment to acknowledge the greeting home that had been given him, and in this the people were not disappointed. The band played the "Star Spangled Banner," and then as the president appeared on the portico, struck up "Hail to the Chief."

Brief Speech by President.

The president made a brief speech to the gathering, saying:

"My Friends and Neighbors: I thank you very, very much for coming to greet me this afternoon, and I have appreciated more than I can say the welcome back home that I have received today. I have been absent over two months, and I have traveled many miles. During that time one thing has struck me, and that is the substantialness of the American people. One can travel from ocean to ocean and from Canada to the gulf, and always be at home among one's fellow Americans. I thank you again, my friends, and now I am going in to my own folks."

The run from Pittsburg to Washington was without incident. None but necessary stops was made, and the only speech by the president today was at Altoona, where he addressed a large crowd. Crowds were at the stations by which the train ran and cheered every appearance of the president on the platform of the car.

The trip just completed has been, in some respects, the most remarkable a president ever took. Mr. Roosevelt and his party traveled over 14,000 miles on railroads and several hundred miles in stage coaches and carriages, but not an accident marred the journey.

No Delays During Long Trip.

Not five minutes' delay was occasioned during the whole trip on account of train conditions, and the schedule adopted by Secretary Loeb before the party left Washington was carried out with military precision. Rarely was the train late in reaching its destination, notwithstanding that it passed through the flooded district in Iowa. The health of the president and his party, too, was remarkable. Not one member of the party was seriously ill, and few calls were made on the physician on the train.

During the sixty-five days that the president spent on the road he made 265 speeches, and had it not been for Secretary Loeb's firmness he would have made nearly double that number. From the day the president left Washington requests began to pour in for changes in his program and for additional addresses, but Secretary Loeb in almost every case said no. The successful manner in which Mr. Loeb managed the trip was pleasing to the president, and he warmly congratulated his secretary on the successful outcome of it.

All Thank Secretary Loeb.

The other members of the party also gave Mr. Loeb a vote of thanks for the able manner in which he had conducted affairs.

One of the remarkable features of the trip was the nonpartisan spirit displayed in the reception of the president everywhere. Democratic as well as republican mayors united in extending him a welcoming hand, while at Springfield, Ill., former Vice President Stevenson rode in the carriage with the president. The crowds were orderly and friendly and gave the secret service men little cause for concern. These men were under the command of Frank Tyree, who is detailed at the White house, and the able manner in which they performed their tasks was the subject of general commendation.

RETURN INDICTMENTS FOR LAND SWINDLING OPERATORS.

Columbus Authorities Gather Evidence Against Them from All Parts of the Country—Many Witnesses.

Columbus, O., June 5.—Indictments were returned by the United States grand jury against John A. Cobb of Bainbridge, O., and W. H. H. Miller, S. E. Struble, and G. W. J. Woltz of Newark, O., for misuse of the mails in connection with alleged fraudulent land deals. Several other men, who have not yet been arrested, are under indictment on a similar charge.

The government inspectors who collected the evidence presented to the grand jury claim to have unearthed alleged land swindles of gigantic proportions, which, they say, were carried on by men operating in widely separated localities. Large tracts of timber land, for which alleged fraudulent deeds were given to purchasers, were offered for sale in Tennessee, Kentucky, West Virginia, Missouri, Texas, and Michigan.

Victims of the alleged swindles, it is claimed, are to be found in almost every state of the Union. Witnesses have been summoned in the cases to be tried in the United States courts here from Tennessee, New Mexico, Michigan, Kentucky, Missouri, West Virginia, Iowa, and Arkansas.

ARGUMENTS IN NORTHERN SECURITIES CASE COMMENCE.

State of Minnesota Bases Its Action on the Provisions of Its Constitution, Which Prohibits Consolidation.

St. Paul, Minn., June 5.—Arguments were begun today before United States Judge Lochren in the case of the state of Minnesota against the Northern Securities company, and the roads whose control is merged in the name of the New Jersey corporation, in the United States Circuit court.

The state's case is on entirely different grounds from the federal case. The federal case alleged a violation of the Sherman anti-trust law. The state's case is brought under a provision of the Minnesota constitution, which specifically prohibits the consolidation of parallel and competing lines of railway.

The arguments may last two or three days. Attorney General Douglas opened the state's case and will be followed by George P. Wilson. The defense will then be heard. Attorneys George L. Young, M. D. Groves, and C. W. Bunn will present the side of the Northern Securities company and the Great Northern and the Northern Pacific roads.

M. D. Munn will then close for the state.

NATION IS URGED TO GUARD JEWS.

Citizens of Washington in Massmeeting Ask Action Regarding Massacres.

FOR EQUALITY OF MAN.

Letters from Persons of Prominence Are Read and All Denounce Recent Outrages.

Washington, D. C., June 5.—[Special.]—Strong resolutions denouncing the massacre of the Jews at Kisheneff and urging the United States government to take action to prevent a repetition of such deeds were adopted this afternoon at a massmeeting of representative citizens of the District of Columbia. The resolutions say, in part:

"We protest against the spirit of persecution, rivaling, if not exceeding, that of the dark ages, which has been revived in parts of Russia. In this country the equality of man is recognized, no matter what the race, nationality, or creed. Especially is this true of the Jewish immigrants who have settled in the United States in large numbers and who, as a body of citizens, have become faithful, law abiding, industrious, and peaceable Americans.

"The people of the United States should exercise all their influence with the government of Russia, as the ancient friendship between the two nations should justify, to stay the spirit of persecution, to redress the injuries inflicted, to prevent the recurrence of similar outbreaks—outbreaks which have amazed the civilized world—and to secure, by treaty, the recognition of American citizens of Jewish faith in their right to visit and sojourn, as other American citizens do, in Russia."

Many Religions Represented.

The massmeeting, which was attended by about 1,200 persons, was held in the Columbia theater. Men and women of all classes and creeds united in denouncing the atrocities and in expressing their horror and indignation that they should have been permitted in a civilized country at the dawn of the twentieth century.

"Corporal" James Tanner, former commissioner of pensions, presided at the meeting and spoke forcefully and eloquently for "The Heart and Conscience" of the people of the capital of the United States.

A score or more of letters from men prominent in public life, who were unable to be present at the meeting, were read by the secretary, Dominic I. Murphy. Extracts from some of them follow:

Gen. O. O. Howard—Surely the czar and his council cannot possibly look upon the horrible massacre and the vile conduct of so many of his subjects in any other way than we did when a set of selfish brutes undertook to annihilate the Chinese in Wyoming. I am sure that the persecution of the Jews of Russia and the driving of them out in large numbers are facts that are awakening the interest, and sympathy, and the denunciation of all right thinking men of every civilized nation on the globe.

Deserve Execration of All.

Former Secretary of the Treasury George S. Boutwell—I heartily sympathize with the stricken sufferers in Russia. These outrages deserve the execration of mankind.

Senator L. E. McComas—No humane man, surely no American, can fail deeply to sympathize with the unfortunate Russian Jews.

Senator J. B. Foraker—It would afford me pleasure to join with you in expressing not only sympathy for the unfortunate but a fiting protest against such inhumanity and barbarism.

Carl Schurz—The main question is not whether the Russian government may be in any degree responsible for the Kisheneff horrors. The point is that such atrocities are the natural outgrowth of the anti-Semitic movement—a movement most barbarous in its injustice and most cowardly and contemptible in its intolerance.

Ex-President Grover Cleveland wrote simply to say that his views had been expressed fully at the Carnegie hall meeting in New York. Announcement of the name of Mr. Cleveland was received with enthusiastic applause.

Among those who addressed the meeting were President H. B. McFarland of the board of district commissioners; the Rev. Dr. D. J. Stafford of St. Patrick's church; the Rev. Tunis S. Hamlin, pastor of the Church of the Covenant; Representative Henry M. Goldfogle of the Ninth New York district; the Rev. Dr. Rollin Smith, rector of St. John's church, and Symon Wolf.

All expressed the hope that the United States government might see its way clear to use its good offices with Russia to the end that the Jews in that country might be relieved of the intolerable restrictions by which they now are surrounded.

Police Department Gives Facts.

New York, June 5.—The Christian Herald, in response to a cablegram sent to the czar asking for an official report of the occurrences at Kisheneff, has received a reply from the director of the Russian police department. The reply follows:

"St. Petersburg, June 4.—The Christian Herald, New York: Russia's agricultural and laboring population is ill at ease, living the common life with Jewish inhabitants of widely developed commercial instinct; hence there is constant antagonism, the material differences in racial and religious character coming to the verge of frenzy at the least possible occasion.

"The strained relations existing between the Russians and Jews of Bessarabia were made worse by the fact of finding in an outlying village a murdered Christian boy. The murder was attributed by the population to the Jewish ritual habits. Official denials of the ritual murder were not given credit by the peasants, who attributed other murders of Christians in the towns of Kieff and Kisheneff likewise to the Jews.

Declares Jews Struck First Blow.

"On Easter day, in the market place of Kisheneff, the workers, while holiday making, saw the Jewish proprietor of a carrousel machine strike a Christian woman, who fell to the ground, letting go her infant baby. This incident was the immediate cause of an outburst. The workers began breaking windows and pulling down Jewish stores as a sign of protest. The police, who always leave much to be desired in provincial towns, failed to make efficacious intervention, many thousands of the mass of onlookers and holiday makers approving the riot and hindering the policemen's actions.

"After demonstrators came plunderers, the outbreak lasting from 5 o'clock in the afternoon to 10 o'clock in the evening, and leaving nine Jewish bodies on the place. Night brought the disturbances to an end.

"What goes far to prove the momentous character of the outbreak in letting loose the popular passions with the strength of natural forces is that Monday morning the Jews, wishing to intimidate and inflict punishment on the Christian workers, began assembling on the market place in groups, armed with sticks and other weapons.

Christian Falls; People Aroused.

"The Jews, being the more numerous, had the best of it in the first encounters, and a Christian was seen to fall, receiving a bullet wound. This called for the popular passion in all its abject form and abomination, the Russian peasants, when driven to frenzy and excited by race and religious hatred and under the influence of alcohol, being worse than the Americans who lynch negroes.

"Unfortunately the governor of Bessarabia did not make his appearance in person on Easter Sunday, and on Monday he gave over the command to military men, which he had no right to do, as he in consequence laid the police aside and, on the other hand, left the military forces without actual guidance. Troops can take towns by assault, but cannot carry out police duties without special instructions.

"In the end, the town having been divided into districts, with a special military command in each, the disturbances ceased on Monday evening. By this time the minister of the interior had ordered by wire the proclamation of martial law, and, an unprecedented fact, had sent the director of the police department to investigate as to the responsibilities of the local officials. In consequence the governor, the chief of police, and some other officials were dismissed outright, many hundreds of rioters are in prison, and hard work in the Siberian mines awaits them.

"The minister of the interior has issued a circular to governors all over Russia authorizing them to make immediate use of fire arms in case of anti-Jewish disturbances. The Russian government is the first to disapprove of such acts of violence, but it cannot, in compliance with the requests of a radical and revolutionary press, give the Jews new rights of citizenship, as this would be sure to drive the Russian population to new excesses against the Jews, who are hated by the peasants with such extraordinary force.

Italian Socialists to Hiss Czar.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

ROME, June 5.—There was a stormy scene in the chamber of deputies today when Sig. Morgari, socialist, asked the government whether the czar was coming to Rome. When he was informed that he was, Sig. Morgari said that the socialists would hiss him, owing to the cruelty displayed by the Russians towards the Jews. A majority of the members loudly protested against Sig. Morgari's remarks.

Ignore Order; Are Arrested.

TRIPOLI, North Africa, June 5.—Twenty Jews, comprising a specially appointed commission, have been arrested and imprisoned for refusing to comply with the governor general's orders to assess the Jewish community for a military exemption tax. The Jews have suspended all business as a protest against the government's action.

ENOUGH MONEY FOR KISHENEFF.

Chicago Committee in Charge of Relief Work Ceases Efforts to Raise Funds.

The committee in charge of the Kisheneff relief fund has ceased its efforts to collect money.

"We feel that we have contributed enough," Samuel J. Kline, the treasurer of the fund, said. "We have forwarded $10,000 to the foreign committee and have $9,500 now on hand. This will not, however, be sent until we hear from the people on the ground.

NEW ISSUE BY WESTERN UNION.

Claims Right of Way for Poles Along Pennsylvania Road from Philadelphia to Washington.

Baltimore, Md., June 5.—Isidor Rayner, counsel for the Western Union Telegraph company, today filed on the law side of the United States Circuit court a petition for condemnation of a right of way for its poles and wires along the line of the Pennsylvania railroad between Philadelphia and Washington. Constitutional questions are involved under an act of congress passed on July 24, 1866, which provides for the right of telegraph companies to construct their systems along the post roads of the United States, it being contended that the Pennsylvania railroad is such a road.

Impulse to Charity Brings Arrest.

A man whose name is believed to be James Zana was found wandering about Ravenswood early yesterday morning by Policeman Nessor of the town hall station, and when he was searched $1,182 was found in an inner pocket. Zana said his home was in St. Louis, and he wanted to give assistance to the Kansas City sufferers. The police think his mind has been affected by accounts of the floods.

BIG LINER FREED AND GOES TO SEA.

BROOKLYNITES IN PANIC.

NEW YORK BUREAU CHICAGO TRIBUNE. New York, June 5.

Big Steamer Released and Goes Out to Sea.

After having been aground, imbedded in the mudbank on the east side of Gedney channel, near Sandy Hook, for nearly twenty-four hours, the outbound Hamburg-American liner Deutschland was floated this afternoon shortly after 4:30 o'clock. After an examination it was determined that the ocean greyhound was uninjured and it proceeded to sea at 4:35.

During the enforced detention the passengers made merry, Koclan contributing his quota by playing on his recently acquired violin. When the tug bearing reporters ran alongside and asked for news one woman shouted she would tell them how it all happened if they would give her a newspaper. Mrs. J. Ogden Armour, who was in the group, instead of making promises threw a large bouquet of American beauty roses on the tug and in return she got one of every sort of paper on the tug.

The seventy-fourth anniversary day parade of the Brooklyn Sunday School union took place today under leaden skies and without a ray of sunshine. The celebration was attended with all the enthusiasm which marks its annual outpouring of Brooklyn's Sunday school army. Two hundred and twenty-six schools included in the union were mustered in twenty divisions, and the children, teachers, and officers participating in the various parades aggregated about 9,000.

Small Panic at New York End of Brooklyn Bridge.

In attempting to switch a train in the rush hours this evening at the New York end of the Brooklyn bridge one of the cars jumped the track, and, smashing into the end of the platform, which was jammed with homeward bound Brooklynites, caused a panic that was prevented from becoming disastrous by the fact that the people were too tightly packed to prevent swift moving. The only injuries were to persons ascending the stairs at the end of the platform. Many of them were thrown from their feet by the shock and tumbled down the stairs and were trampled upon. Their injuries were slight. Prompt police work quieted the people, as well as preventing further additions to the crowd. Traffic was blocked an hour, and thousands of Brooklynites had to walk the bridge instead of riding across.

Plans to arouse the interest of women throughout the country in the National Art theater undertaking have been made. Committees will organize massmeetings and lecture course. Individual members will devote their attention to spreading the propaganda in the summer resorts.

Novel Arbitration Plan Proposed.

Unprecedented in the annals of labor is the arbitration proposition submitted today [illegible] by the Building Trades Employers' association to all the unions in the building trades. Briefly, the plan provides for a general arbitration board and joint court of appeals, the latter consisting of four members, two from the employers and two from the employés. Every question arising shall be submitted to this court, the labor representatives of which are to be members of unions that have no direct interest in the point in issue, while the employers' side shall be selected from trades not involved in the dispute to be arbitrated. The document provides for a general plan of arbitration under which the employers and the unions are to deal directly, elliminating absolutely all business agents or walking delegates.

Chicago Girl Braves Water with Sad Result.

Miss Evelyn Cheever of Chicago, who is visiting friends on West Ninety-eighth street, visited Manhattan beach today, accompanied by Miss Margaret Kelly and Miss Mary Carroll. The fact that the season is early did not deter Miss Cheevers from trying a surf bath. Her companions declined to risk the water, which proved too cold, and Miss Cheevers threw up her arms and with a cry for help sank. A young man onlooker, who afterward declined to give his name, plunged into the water and after diving twice brought Miss Cheever to the surface and to the shore. The young lady was soon revived.

Getting Diamonds in Below Value.

An investigation which culminated in a hearing before United States General Appraiser Sharrotts today brought to light a method of importing diamonds into the United States below their real value. The scheme is to bring them in at ports where there are no expert gem appraisers. Much evidence came out at the hearing concerning the practice of certain New York dealers in importing stones through smaller ports. According to government officials the only competent appraiser of diamonds and precious stones is at this port.

"The" Allen's Place Is Raided.

Police Inspector Smith and Capt. Wiegand of the Mercer street station made another raid on "The" Allen's poolroom at 80 Sixth avenue and netted about 250 prisoners. Five patrol wagons laden with officers dashed up, and Capt. Wiegand demanded admission. It was refused, and out came the axes and crowbars. It took about five minutes to batter down the big iron front door. A good many of those who were inside started to run to the roof, but they were met by policemen with drawn revolvers and captured. So far as is known only one man got away. When Detective Farley broke into the top floor a negro jumped from the window, landed on an awning a floor below, and landed in the yard on his head. He didn't appear to be hurt and jumped over a fence.

WOMAN HELD A DIRT MAKER.

Condition of Chicago's Streets Attributed by Mrs. John O'Connor to Her Own Sex.

Woman was held up as dirt maker yesterday by a member of her own sex when a meeting of women residing in the district covered by the South Central Improvement association met at the residence of E. C. Wentworth, 2718 Prairie avenue, to discuss means for cooperating with the association.

Mrs. John O'Connor of the Hyde Park Improvement association in telling of the work of that organization said:

"It is a fact that most of the dirt and refuse in the streets can be traced either directly or indirectly to the women. First we must consider the fact that the women are responsible for the actions of the children, and it must be admitted that they cause most of the dirt in the streets.

"Then, too, the servants, who are responsible to the women, are not as careful in the disposal of kitchen refuse as they might be. Also in many ways we could improve the condition of the streets, alleys, and vacant lots by a careful supervision of the household."

NEWS OF THE RAILWAYS.

ROCKEFELLER-GOULD DEAL IN ERIE SECURITIES.

Despite Denial Belief Is Growing That the Combination Will Secure Control of the Railway—Report That the Standard Oil Magnate Is Trying to Get the Pennsylvania Also—Norman B. Ream and His Friends Big Holders of B. and O.

Notwithstanding the denials that the Rockefeller-Gould interests had acquired a large amount of Erie railroad stock, the opinion is gaining ground that there is much truth in the reports and that before long this combination will be in full control of the Erie. The acquisition of this road will realize Gould's long cherished hope of gaining an outlet to the Atlantic ocean for his system of western and southwestern roads.

The Baltimore and Ohio, which the Gould-Rockefeller syndicate was said to be after a short time ago, would have answered Gould's purposes much better than the Erie, as it would have given him a direct line east via Pittsburg. But it is claimed that the Pennsylvania has too firm a hold on the Baltimore and Ohio to be dislodged. A prominent official of the Baltimore and Ohio, who was in the city yesterday, said that while it was true that the Pennsylvania did not own a majority of the stock of the Baltimore and Ohio, it controls the property through stock owned by friendly interests.

The Pennsylvania absolutely owned 34 per cent of the Baltimore and Ohio stock, and Norman B. Ream and his friends, who allow the Pennsylvania to vote their stock under an agreement, control about 22 per cent. Kuhn, Loeb & Co. and other New York banking firms own about 15 or 20 per cent. He did not think that more than $10,000,000 of the stock could be bought in the open market.

Reported After the Pennsylvania.

A report came from New York yesterday that Rockefeller is conducting a campaign to obtain absolute control of the Pennsylvania. It is said that the Rockefeller interest has been a heavy buyer of Pennsylvania stock during the last two weeks, and that it looks as if this interest and others closely affiliated with it would obtain practically all of the $75,000,000 Pennsylvania stock to be issued at 120. It is believed also that the pressure on Pennsylvania stock is largely the result of the efforts of the Rockefeller syndicate, who wish to keep the stock at a price which will discourage stockholders from exercising their subscription right. With the $75,000,000 new stock to be issued by the syndicate and the stock of the road already owned by the Rockefeller interest, the latter, it is believed, would be a dominant factor in Pennsylvania affairs.

This last report is mystifying, as railroad people here cannot believe that Rockefeller wants to get control of the Pennsylvania in the interest of Gould, as such action would antagonize the Vanderbilts, with whom Rockefeller is closely allied, and would hurt the Standard Oil interests with the big western railroad systems that are unfriendly to Gould.

Row Over Immigrant Business.

The troubles of the Western Passenger association over the cutting of excursion rates for meetings and conventions and the general disregard of the association rules by certain roads are greatly aggravated by a fight over the division of the immigrant business. The affairs of the western immigrant clearing house in New York have become so demoralized as to presage an early dissolution of the organization and the renewal of a free for all fight for the business. A movement has been set on foot to bring about a general reorganization of the Western Passenger association in order to enable the Rock Island, which withdrew from it and the immigrant bureau some time ago, to come back into the fold. If this is not done the association is bound to go to pieces.

Special Rate for Kansas City.

Executive officers of the western roads at their recent meeting received a communication from the Kansas City freight bureau asking that they authorize the making of a special emergency rate on a large quantity of damaged grain stored there in elevators and on cars that could not be removed when the flood came. Much of this grain has been under water and is in bad condition. The communication was referred to the representatives of the various roads at Kansas City with instructions to ascertain how much grain is damaged and needs immediate removal and the destination to which it is to be shipped. Without this information the executive officers say they cannot determine what rate is necessary.

General Railway News.

Traffic officials of the western roads will meet here today to consider the proposition to reduce the minimum weight at which light and bulky articles can secure the carload rate. The present minimum weight is 20,000 pounds, and shippers claim that it is impossible to load that much into a car when such articles as buggies, furniture, etc., have to be shipped. The present rule forces them to pay the less than carload rate, which they claim is exorbitant. The meeting here is preliminary to a joint meeting of the western, official, and southern classification committees, to be held in New York June 11 to take action in this matter.

Much work remains to be done on the new Rock Island-Lake Shore station on Van Buren street, and it will not be possible for the Lake Shore, Rock Island, and Nickel Plate roads to run their passenger trains into the new station before July 1.

Union Pacific Earnings Increase.

Omaha, Neb., June 5.—A statement of the earnings of the Union Pacific railroad for the ten months ended April 30, compared with those of the corresponding period a year ago, shows there was a substantial increase in the net earnings, which amounted to over $18,000,000, and for the month of April there was an increase in the gross earnings of nearly half a million dollars and in the net earnings of $228,854.

PASTORS ARE ASKED TO JOIN FIGHT ON LIQUOR DEALERS.

Hyde Park Protective Association Has an Ally in the Englewood Law and Order League—Plea to the Aldermen.

A new foe to the saloons in Cottage Grove avenue, just north of Washington park, has appeared, the Englewood Law and Order league having joined in the fight conducted by the Hyde Park organization. A letter signed by the Englewood league was sent to every clergyman in Hyde Park and Englewood containing the following request:

"An ordinance has been framed for the protection of the district and is to be considered by the common council Wednesday afternoon of next week, June 10. The council, it is believed, will favor the passage of the ordinance if a strong local representation can be made in its favor. The Hyde Park Protective association earnestly requests the pastors of Hyde Park and Englewood to aid them by both writing themselves and asking their congregations to write letters to the chairman of the license committee on Monday or Tuesday at the latest, asking that the committee take favorable action on the ordinance. The letters should ask that the committee favor the passage of the proposed ordinance introduced by Ald. Mavor on March 2, 1903, providing certain conditions regarding the issuance of saloon licenses in the territory lying between Fiftieth and Fifty-first streets and between Cottage Grove and Prairie avenues."

The ordinance for which support is asked covers the territory from Cottage Grove avenue west to Prairie avenue and from Fiftieth street to Fifty-first street, and provides substantially that no license shall be issued for this territory except on petition of the majority of the property owners in the section mentioned and of the voters thereof.

TEMPEST OVER A HALL SITE.

West End Residents of Oak Park Resent the Action of the Village Board.

Residents of the west end of Oak Park are indignant because the village trustees have accepted C. B. Scoville's offer to provide a lot in the east end upon which the new town hall will be built, and have authorized a $35,000 bond issue to pay for the cost of construction. Nearly every one in the west end of the village opposes the action of the board, which means that the new hall will be nearly a mile from Marion street, around which clusters the main part of the town.

Wednesday evening the west enders met and adopted resolutions opposing the Euclid avenue, or east end, site, but the board paid no attention to the protest.

Mr. Scoville is a large owner of east end property, and his gift of the site of the hall is said by the west siders to be in the interest of his real estate holdings.

COVERS YELLOW WITH GREEN.

Harbormaster McCarthy Shudders When He Sees the Color of a City Craft.

Most any color, just so its green, is the color that suits Harbormaster John McCarthy best. Yesterday the crew of the John P. Hopkins, the only steamer maintained by the city in general traffic, decorated the vessel with a coat of bright yellow paint, and just as they finished their task Mr. McCarthy happened along. What he said need not be repeated, but half an hour later the crew was working like mad covering the yellow with a coat of green. Mr. McCarthy stood near by and shuddered.

FROST FALLS ON YATES' AMBITION.

Local Republican Leaders Say His Renomination Will Defeat the Party.

CHILLY EVEN TO FRIENDS.

Officeholding Followers Unable to Arouse Enthusiasm Over the Situation.

Gov. Richard Yates' statement that he would be a candidate for renomination met with a killing frost among the republican leaders in Chicago. They said the announcement was unfortunate for the party; that he could not secure the support of Cook county; and if he was nominated without that support he would be defeated by the democratic candidate.

This aversion to the governor's candidacy, it was declared, would not be decreased during his European trip, on which he started yesterday. Some leaders said that when he returned six weeks hence he might find abundant opportunity to change his mind.

Invites Party Defeat.

"Cook county has had enough of Yates," said an active republican worker, "and no set of men nor no convention can wring from the party further support of his ambition. To force his nomination in spite of Cook county's protest will be to invite defeat. He has been weak as governor and a failure as a party leader.

"Coming before the republicans of Cook county during his first candidacy, he made promises which he has not fulfilled. Pledging friendship to Chicago and its interests, the only good he granted the city was that which virtually was dragged from him. His two and a half years as governor have been given up to an effort to intrench himself in the executive chair by an alliance with the most objectionable element in the party. To ask republicans to support him again would be the last straw."

Chilly Even to Friends.

Even the men whom the governor pleases to call his friends, the office holding contingent, have received the announcement coldly. It was to them the governor unbosomed himself. They were not expecting it, although it was forecasted the other day in THE TRIBUNE. They were so unprepared they were unable even to take on the semblance of enthusiasm. Some of them feel they were led into a trap.

Invited to Springfield on Thursday, ostensibly to assist in welcoming President Roosevelt, these servants of the gubernatorial household, the masters of the horse, the official tasters of the spoils, the attendants and supernumeraries were assembled in the executive mansion.

Given Doubtful Praise.

There they were presented to the chief executive of the United States as the men who control delegates and state conventions—a graceful recognition of their political usefulness which heralded the coming of things they knew not of.

"Mr. President," said the governor, after the formal presentations had been made, "these men represent districts, and they represent delegates enough to control the state convention, therefore I am pleased to have you know them."

Such distinction was pleasing to the men who "control conventions." It is not recorded how the president regarded the subject. The others accepted it as a merited tribute to their services, and as possibly paving the way for the governor's retirement. But they needed a Daniel to read the signs.

Learn the Whole Truth.

In the evening they again assembled beneath the roof of the executive mansion. The roll was called and the following answered "present":

Leo T. Small, defeated and discredited boss of Kankakee county.
Hanby Jones, pure food commissioner.
Daniel Hogan, state grain inspector.
Col. Thomas A. Scott, recently appointed warden of the penitentiary at Chester.
H. F. Aspinwall, trustee of the Pontiac reformatory.
Ex-Speaker E. C. Curtis of Grant Park.
J. C. Summerville of Quincy.
J. D. Putnam of Elmwood.
Fred Bowe and A. L. French from the Morgan county contingent.

William Lorimer was to have been there, but missed connections at some place in the southern part of the state, where he went on Wednesday to make a speech.

Governor Leads the Way.

"I always have believed," soliloquized the governor, with a side glance at the assemblage, "that John R. Tanner could have been renominated and reelected."

This aside was a cue for Col. Scott, and he responded promptly.

"Governor," he inquired, "are we to understand that you are a candidate for renomination?"

"Most certainly you are," was the executive's reply. "I feel confident that my administration has been satisfactory to the people, and that it will be indorsed by the republicans when their representatives meet next year in convention to select a standard bearer. My ambition is to be my own successor. I shall expect you to go out and bring in the delegates from your respective districts for me.

"First, we want to revive and perfect the organization that was built up around A. J. Hopkins and did such good work in making him United States senator. If you do this I know that we will be able to control the state convention and name the ticket."

It is understood that not a sound was heard, either of concurrence or of protest, and the conferees dissembled.

"He simply called us in," said one, "and practically ordered us to go out and get the delegates for him. It is easy to say, 'Go get them,' but Mr. Yates will find soon after he returns from Europe that getting them is a different proposition."

In the governor's party on the European trip are Mrs. Yates, Col. J. W. and Mrs. Strong, Miss Marguerite Strong, and Dr. Taylor of Springfield. They sail on the Umbria today.

HARRISON SEEKS WIDER FIELD.

Chicago Democracy Picnic to Bid for the Attention of National Leaders.

In a political way Mayor Harrison has determined to enlarge his field of operations. According to the organ of the Chicago Democracy, the new organization of which Controller McGann is president, he is bidding for national attention. This new club expects to command the attention of democratic leaders everywhere with its first picnic, to be held at Brand's park June 18. E. M. Lahiff says acceptances to speak have been received from William J. Bryan, Daniel J. Campau of Michigan, Mayor James A. Reed of Kansas City, Mo.; Congressman South Trimble of Kentucky, and Charles A. Walsh, secretary of the national committee, Iowa.

In proclaiming his attitude the mayor states that the national committee and the platform of principles must stand as they are until changed by the national convention.

The fight for supremacy in this state between the Harrison and Hopkins wings of the democracy is on and the prospects are that it will become one of the bitterest political contests Illinois has witnessed in many years. The Hopkins forces, it is said, will make B. F. Caldwell their candidate for governor and Bob T. Cable national committeeman.

SAYS CHAMPLIN SENT HER TO RICH BROKERS FOR TIPS.

Wife Applies for Temporary Alimony and Suit Money and Gives Another Version of Husband's Charges.

The charges made by Fred L. Champlin, in his bill for divorce, were denied by Mrs. Champlin yesterday when she petitioned Judge Healy for suit money and temporary alimony.

She said the names given in the complaint were not the real names of the men referred to. She asserted that these men are wealthy stock brokers, to whom her husband sent her to get information regarding stocks in order that he might have success in speculation.

A millionaire yachtsman of New York City was mentioned by Mrs. Champlin as one of the persons. On the New Yorker's yacht Mrs. Champlin said she was entertained on one occasion with a number of other persons.

The Hart W. Kennedy mentioned in the bill, she says, is Dr. Bernay Kennedy, 17 Woodruff place, Indianapolis. The charge as to him is denied.

Mrs. Champlin further alleged in the petition that a year ago Champlin rented a house at 171 West Seventy-first street, New York, for her and her 6 year old son, George W. Champlin. The rent, she declares, was $183 a month. Until last August she avers that her husband allowed her $400 a month, but since then he has contributed nothing to her support. She says she has been compelled to dispose of her furniture at a sacrifice and pawn her jewelry.

She alleges that detectives and employés, "even colored ones," were constantly on her trail at the instance of her husband. She was unable to set a figure on her husband's wealth, but said he was largely interested in a mining and dredging company at Bannock, Mont., where he now is, besides having a one-fourth interest in the estate of his father, estimated to have been worth from $2,000,000 to $3,000,000.

Upon prayer of the plaintiff's attorneys one week was allowed them to answer the affidavit, and the court also ordered them to bring in a bill of particulars as to the men named in the complaint.

Mrs. Champlin was Mrs. Tower of St. Louis before her marriage to Champlin. She and Champlin met one summer at Lake Geneva and one year later she secured a divorce from her first husband and married Champlin.

Actress Granted a Divorce.—A divorce from a man who is said to have had three wives and three names and with whom she lived for three days was granted by Judge Haney yesterday to Mrs. Elsie P. Chambeau, formerly a member of the Dearborn stock company. The defendant is Bert A. Chambeau, actor, who is alleged to have been known also as Shambeau and David Strang. The couple were married in Irving Park on Dec. 21, 1901.

Tells of Broken Promise.—Miss Mildred Strong apparently intends to prosecute her $10,000 suit for alleged breach of promise against Harrison F. Noake, son of William H. Noake, varnish manufacturer. She filed a declaration saying he asked her on Feb. 1 last to be his wife and now refuses to marry her. She lives at 47 East Twenty-second street, and was at one time a cloak model.

BOY REPRIMANDED, QUITS HOME

John Klemmer, 777 Herndon Street, Disappears and His Father Advertises for Information.

Piqued by his parents' chiding, John Klemmer, 18 years old, left home on Wednesday and has not since returned. The boy was a varnisher in the Brunswick-Balke-Collender company works. He went to work as usual Wednesday morning and drew his pay for two weeks, $30, in the evening. He had been reprimanded for going to a dance Sunday night and to the theater Monday night without having asked his father's consent. He is the son of Peter Klemmer, 777 Herndon street.

"On Sunday John went away in the morning and did not return until late in the evening," a brother of the missing boy said. "Mother asked him where he had been and he replied so curtly that father objected and told him he had done wrong. He went out again Monday night to the theater. On his coming home father told him he should have asked his parents before going. He told a companion on Sunday that he had had a quarrel at home and could not get along there any more."

The father was so alarmed at the disappearance of his son that he inserted an advertisement in the papers asking for information as to his son's whereabouts.

GIRL IS BEATEN AND CHOKED.

While walking alone at Ada and Kinzie streets last night, Emma Eckhardt, 18 years old, 331 Elston avenue, was attacked by a roughly dressed man, who beat her, choked her into insensibility, and then fled. Pedestrians found the young woman lying unconscious on the sidewalk and carried her home, where Dr. Fowler Grand avenue and Elizabeth street, revived her. Detectives are searching for Thomas Simmons, a character well known to the police, who is said to have been recognized by Miss Eckhardt as her assailant.

SAYS STATE UNIVERSITIES WILL PREVENT CIVIL WAR.

Dr. T. S. Chamberlain Discusses Labor Conditions at Banquet of the Wisconsin Club of Chicago.

That the state universities will save the United States from a civil war on the labor question was the statement made last night by Dr. T. S. Chamberlain at the banquet of the Wisconsin club of Chicago. The banquet was given at the Auditorium for Charles R. Van Hise, the president-elect of the university.

"It is the especial function of the state universities," said Dr. Chamberlain, "to teach respect for the laws of the community and the rights of individuals. This recognition of the right of man, either employer or employé, to manage his own affairs will preserve the country in the labor affairs which are endangering the nation today.

"If there is anything this country needs it is a respect for civil law and obligation, and this alone can save the country from a civil war in the next generation.

"Things are transpiring today in Chicago which are causing the citizens great concern and which can be settled only by a respect for civil obligations. I refer to the labor question and the right of a man to labor where and when and how he pleases and the right of a man to manage his business in whatever manner he may decide.

"The state institution should compel a respect for civil law. It should foster a distinct deference to the right and obligations of citizenship. It should be the ethics of a state university that any violation of the civil law should not be tolerated."

Dr. Van Hise responded to the toast, "Wisconsin." He made a plea for the maintenance of a broader culture in the state institutions. The practical lines, he said, would take care of themselves. He denied that the University of Chicago or Harvard university or the universities of Germany had any higher functions to perform that the state universities.

Arthur Curtis, the football player, spoke on "Wisconsin in Athletics." Other addresses were delivered by J. W. Hines and Miss Anne N. Scriber. Horace K. Tenney was toastmaster.

POLICE LOOK FOR FIREBUGS.

Blaze in a South Canal Street Plant Believed to Have Been of Incendiary Origin.

Fire last night in the H. Kramer & Sons refining works plant, 353-359 South Canal street, is believed to have been the work of an incendiary. When the department arrived the fire was burning fiercely, and before it could be extinguished three horses were burned to death and C. G. Conners, 106 Austin avenue, a night watchman, had been painfully burned in endeavoring to rescue the horses. Marshall Sweeney asked the police to search for the supposed incendiary. The property loss was small.

*Doubtful starters.

Eighteen horses are carded to start in the $10,000 Harlem handicap, which will inaugurate the racing season of the Harlem Jockey club this afternoon. The field will be close to this number. The great McChesney probably will not go to the post, unless the track improves this morning. His owner, although he has come all the way from New York with a party of friends to see his $30,000 beauty run and has bet well on him in the winter books, will not take the risk of sending the horse to the post on a bad track and in such a big field.

The indications are for a fairly heavy track. The course was heavy yesterday. It may possibly dry out enough to be in fair condition this afternoon. These conditions will not affect the remainder of the field to any extent. J. R. Keene's Port Royal may not get here in time for the race. He got into trouble with the revenue officials on Wednesday while crossing the line from Canada and was ordered back to Detroit after reaching Montpelier, O. He may be here in time for the race. Little Scout will start in the Club Members' handicap at St. Louis. The rest of the field as announced in the entry list is expected to start.

Barred Horse Second Choice.

In the advance betting on the race last night in the O'Leary and Weller books McChesney still ruled favorite. Flying Torpedo, the horse barred for in and out running, was the second choice, and may be the favorite this afternoon. He is allowed to start in stake events for which he had been nominated. He will be ridden by the best western jockey, the colored boy, Winkfield, and it is generally understood Owner Ezell and his friends, Messrs. Corrigan and Dunne, think Flying Torpedo has a royal chance to win the race. Last night it was reported that E. E. Smathers would probably buy Flying Torpedo if the ban placed against the horse by the Western Jockey club was lifted.

Next to Flying Torpedo Alan-a-Dale, the Kentucky Derby winner of last season, is most fancied by horsemen. He is a magnificent looking thoroughbred with four bad legs, but these have been doctored by Owner and Trainer T. C. McDowell until the Halma colt is again running soundly. The condition of the track will probably be to Alan-a-Dale's liking, and if he wins it will be a big race won by a first class horse.

Appleby Not at His Best.

Lucien Appleby, because of his recent indifferent showing at Hawthorne, is conceded only a fair chance. In form he, McChesney, and Alan-a-Dale would be the class of the contest, but the son of St. George is not thought to be at his best. Of the other horses in the older division each one, of course, has his supporters, the scale of weights bringing good and bad together to an extent.

Next to the star 4 year olds named the 3 year olds are most fancied. Linguist, Gregor K., and Epicure are all youngsters of class. The first named is highly regarded as an American Derby candidate, while Gregor K.'s ability, especially on a muddy track and under light weight, is undeniable. Epicure made his reputation on the California tracks, and has given some intimation of what he can do at Hawthorne.

The big field will insure the defeat of some of the horses in the first furlong, despite the best efforts of Starter Dwyer. On this account luck may cut more than its usual figure in the outcome. In any event, however, the race will be the most notable contest aside from the American Derby seen on a Chicago track since the Wheeler handicap of 1893.

Nathanson Expects Fast Track.

If the track warrants it McChesney will run. Much depends on the weather. Secretary Nathanson said last night: "If there is no more rain and the sun shines tomorrow the Harlem track will be good enough for any horse in the world to run on."

Speaking of the probable condition of the track and the possibility of McChesney going to the post, Owner E. E. Smathers said: "The colt is not worth a dollar on a heavy track, and although I have bet quite a sum of money on his chances I would much rather lose it than race him on a track which would be apt to throw him out of training for several months. I do not regret the loss of the money I have wagered, but I am disappointed because of my friends who came with me from the east to see the colt run. I have not heard from New York regarding the condition of Bullman, and under the present condition of affairs jockeys are the least of any slight troubles I may have."

THINK IRISH LAD CAN DO IT.

Whitney and Duryea Favor Starting Colt in American Derby—G. B. Morris Says He'll Win.

New York, June 5.—[Special.]—It has been practically settled by Whitney & Duryea to send their great 3 year old colt Irish Lad, winner of the Brooklyn handicap, to Chicago to run in the American Derby. The trip depends wholly on the way the colt fares between now and June 15. He is entered in the Broadway stakes, to be run at Gravesend tomorrow, and if he wins there will be no further deliberation on the part of his young owners.

Green B. Morris, speaking of Irish Lad's chances in the Derby, said today that the Candlemas colt in condition ought to win easily and should do the mile and a half on a dry track in 2:32.

"If I had him," said Mr. Morris, "I would ship him to Chicago at least four days before the race and work him lightly the last two days. The railroad trip is a hardship and the change of climate must be taken into consideration, too; but if Irish Lad can show his Brooklyn handicap form there should be no doubt about the result."

Irish Lad has been heavily backed to win the Derby in the future books by New Yorkers. His owners will probably ship him west in luxurious style not later than June 15.

HENRY PLACED ON PROBATION.

Jockey, Who Was Ruled Off in France, Is Warned by Hawthorne Track Officials.

Jockey Milton Henry, who with Johnny Reiff was suspended by the French Jockey club, was yesterday given a curtain lecture by the Hawthorne officials after listless rides on Tom Maybin and Lord Melbourne. Both horses were played heavily, and, if form counts for anything, should have been in the money. Instead, they finished among the also rans, and, from the judges' viewpoint, Henry was the cause of it. They invited him into the stand to explain. He hemmed and hawed a number of excuses, none of which fitted his rides.

S. S. Bender, owner of Lord Melbourne, was then called and asked whether Henry rode according to instructions, to which Bender replied in the negative. Henry received another invitation to the stand and was informed that hereafter he will ride on probation, and his next suspicious ride will place him on the ground. Henry's work has been far below the standard, and the consensus of opinion is the French Jockey club had good cause for its rulings.

The judges, had they been alert, might have inquired what has detained Reiff at times during the meeting and what has hurried him at other times. A little jacking up for his ride on Galba, in the last race, might have stirred him to better work in the future. In Galba he had by far the best horse in the race, but he sat still on him and permitted H. Booker on Hayward Hunter to steal away on the backstretch, and when he awoke to the situation he was practically beaten.

The last day of Hawthorne's spring meeting was disastrous to the followers of form, especially in the last four races. The first two winners, Sherry and Peter Paul, were figured to finish in the money, but the last four were not, as the prices laid against them testified. Serge, one of Ed Corrigan's Derby colts, won the high weight handicap at odds of 13 to 1. The other winners and their respective prices were: Lola L., 15 to 1; Malay, 30 to 1; and Hayward Hunter, 12 to 1.

Notes of the Hawthorne Track.

Judge Bryan will remain in town for the Derby.

Jockey L. Jackson, who rode Wing Dance, was struck in the eye by a clod.

The manner in which the long shots went sailing over the plate reminded the regulars of getaway day.

Jockey H. Phillips was reprimanded for his ride on Prairie Dog, but nothing was said to Reiff for his ride on Galba.

Starter Holtman left for Latonia last night to wield the flag in place of Dwyer, who will start at Harlem. Holtman will also snap the barrier at the Grosse Point meeting at Detroit.

COLTS BEATEN IN CLOSE GAME.

PITCHERS HAVE BATTLE.

Taylor Does Better Work than McGinnity, but Tinker and Chance Bungle.

For eight innings Selee's Colts, chiefly through the offensive and defensive acts of one J. Taylor, played the New York Nationals to a standstill yesterday, then the strain told, the safety valve blew off and Chance and Tinker undid in the twinkling of an eye all the great work they and their associates had been doing. In that way New York was handed the second game of the series here, the final returns being 5 to 2.

It was two veterans, Taylor and McGinnity, against each other on the slab, and a brilliant battle resulted. Taylor outpitched the "iron man" several points, but was unfortunate in having the hits bunched on him, and also in his support, which was not nearly as steady as McGinnity's. Taylor was hit safely only seven times, and issued nary a pass of any description, while McGinnity was swatted eight times and issued two passes. But the Giants fielded without an error, while the Colts made three.

Up to the start of the ninth inning things were at a complete stand still, the score being tied at two. McGann opened the fateful inning with a whizzing liner to center, good for a single. Mertes hit to Tinker sharply, and a double play was on the cards, but as the ball was passed to Evers, forcing McGann, the big fellow got in the way of the throw to first, and Evers could not complete the play. Babb shot a fast single between short and third, but Chance cut off Lauder's roller, and again there was a double play in sight, but "Husk," in throwing to second, hit Babb in the back. Mertes turned third and made a dash for the plate on the bungle. Tinker recovered the ball in plenty of time to nail "Sandow," but threw over Kling's head, and, when the escaping steam cleared away, there were runners at third and second, one run in and one man out. Gilbert flied, and Harley held the runners to their bases, but Bowerman sent a single to left good for two runs, and the game was gone forever. The Colts could not carry that far in their half.

The Colts were the first to score, turning the trick in the third. With one gone Slagle singled, and scored on Chance's beauty through right center for three bases. The visitors went out three in a row for three innings, then bunched three clean singles on Taylor in the fourth. These with the aid of a long fly scored two runs, and put New York in the lead. Taylor stopped them there, but it was not until the seventh that the Colts could tie up the game. Then it was Jack himself who did it. After Kling was disposed of, the brakeman twirler hit a fly a mile over Mertes' head and traveled to third on it in safety, scoring when McGann cut off Evers' bounder, and retired the youngster by a nose at first. Notes of the Colts' Game.

Jimmy Casey stole the only base of the day.

Kling made a difficult catch off Gilbert's foul in the third, chasing it behind the home player's bench.

Manager McGraw showed himself for the first time in the ninth inning, going to the coaching line when the disastrous ninth started.

Umpire O'Day sent Mathewson to the clubhouse in the ninth for making too much noise on the bench after giving him repeated warnings.

The crowd hissed McGann for blocking Evers' throw and preventing a double play in the ninth. It is a "dirty" trick for a visitor to turn, but all right for a home player. An experienced second baseman avoids it nine times out of ten.

A good opening was lost in the sixth when Tinker led off with a walk and was sacrificed to second. Evers smashed the ball on a line to right into Bresnahan's waiting hands. Tinker was tearing toward the plate, and was easily doubled at second.

CHICAGO GETS THE LAST GAME.

Overwhelms Wisconsin in Final Contest of Championship Series by a Score of Ten to Four.

Madison, Wis., June 5.—[Special.]—By a score of 10 to 4 Chicago took the last of the college championship baseball series from Wisconsin this afternoon in a game that was featureless, except for heavy hitting by both teams. The teams were fairly even in stick work, but the Chicago men bunched their hits, while those of Wisconsin were scattered. Lewis was in the box for Wisconsin and played a good game in many particulars, striking out eight men and giving no bases on balls. Ellsworth also pitched a strong game and fielded his position well. Bezdek did star infield work for Chicago. The

TODAY'S LEADING GOLF EVENTS.

First of the Annual Matches Between Glen View and Onwentsia Is an Important Feature.

Two golf events of special importance are scheduled for this afternoon. At the Onwentsia club the first of the annual matches with the Glen View club will be played, and although both clubs will be handicapped by the absence of many younger players at college, a good match is looked for, with the advantage slightly in favor of the home club. The lineup will be as follows:

Glen View—Phelps B. Hoyt, J. M. Sellers, Gale Thompson, Noel Munn, S. Smith, T. A. Noyes, Percy Manchester, and W. I. Osborne.

WHITE SOX LOSE ANOTHER

BOSTON BEATS CHICAGO IN A SLUGGING CONTEST.

Patterson and Gibson Are Batted Out of the Game in the First Half, White and Young Being Substituted—Final Enumeration of Runs Shows a Score of Ten to Eight in Favor of Collins' Men—Visitors' Errors Prove Costly.

Boston, Mass., June 5.—[Special.]—Try as they will, the White Stockings cannot win from Collins' team on its home grounds. Today they dropped the second game of the series—ten to eight.

Fighting an uphill battle almost from the start, the local club responded gallantly to Manager Collins when the crucial moments arrived, and when the wire was reached it was an easy two lengths ahead. Both clubs did mighty execution with the willow during the grueling contest, Callahan's aggregation pounding out thirteen hits for a total of twenty-one bases, while the home team touched up the visiting box artist for ten safe ones and fourteen total bases.

Patterson and Gibson were driven to the stable unable to stand the pace as the teams rounded the half mile pole, and White and Cy Young were substituted. Each were hit for three safe ones, but two of those allowed by the dentist were triples, and resulted in two men crossing the plate, while Young held his opponents down to a single tally on the three they garnered during his four innings.

In the second inning Callahan cracked a hot liner through the pitcher's box, and Isbell sacrificed. Daly went out by way of Parent to Lachance. Tannehill cracked out a two bagger to left. McFarland struck out.

Freeman singled to right. Parent bunted. Patterson and Isbell went after it, apparently expecting Daly to cover first, but he didn't. Patterson threw without looking and the ball rolled to the bleachers, while Freeman scored and Parent raced to third. Lachance brought him home with a short hit to center. Ferris sacrificed, and Lachance went to third on Criger's short fly to right, Green's arm being too weak to stop him. Gibson walked, and Dougherty lifted an easy pop which Callahan muffed squarely, Lachance smilingly trotting home. This put the locals three lengths to the good until the fourth. With two out Gibson gave Daly a pass, and Tannehill bobbed up with another double. McFarland pounded out another two sacker, Daly and Tannehill scoring.

The teams were again on even terms, but in the fifth Gibson, late of Kansas City, found himself relegated to the barn. Two triples, a double, a single, two bases on balls, an error, and a stolen base figured prominently in this mixup, in which four white legs scampered home.

Boston was not to be outdone, and when Collins' men were done Roy Patterson had been carried off. Every man got a crack at the ball, resulting in three singles and a home run by Hobe Ferris, which scored five men and drove the crowd wild.

White held the locals fairly well, but the White Sox were unable to recover lost ground. Score:

Notes of the White Sox Game.

The White Sox fattened their puny batting average even if they did not win.

Although pounding the ball hard the White Sox were fooled often, nine of them striking out.

Dineen will pitch for Boston tomorrow to make sure of the whole series, while Flaherty will try his luck against the Plymouth Rocks.

Patterson's recent attack of tonsilitis was apparently enervating. While he can pitch well for four or five innings he is not strong enough to work a whole game.

When Jones stole second in the fifth inning Ferris resorted to some dirty work to keep him from advancing to third on Criger's bad throw. Jones slid into the bag and Ferris fell on top of him, putting his arms around him and holding him until O'Brien recovered the ball. Umpire Connolly ordered Jones to take third.

BOYS FLOCK IN FOR THEIR MEET

Nearly 300 High School and Academy Athletes to Compete Today.

HOT CONTESTS CERTAIN.

Coach Stagg Entertains the Lads He Has Drawn to Chicago from Five States.

High school and academy boys from Illinois, Iowa, Wisconsin, Indiana, and even South Dakota were pouring in upon the University of Chicago yesterday for Stagg's big interscholastic meet which is to be held this afternoon. The prep school athletes were taken in charge by the fraternity men of the Midway school, who gladly embrace this opportunity to do a little preseason rushing.

Last night the school lads were given a taste of college life in Hitchcock hall, where they were the center of attraction. An informal vaudeville entertainment, arranged by Atwood, Speik, Matthews, and others of the Chicago athletes was given by the college men. The University Glee club was on hand with a never failing supply of college songs. Popular songs, clog dances, card tricks, and "stunts" of various kinds were given for the benefit of the visitors. At an early hour they were all packed off to bed to dream of victories today and enthusiastic receptions at home.

Auto Rides for Boys.

This morning Stagg will have a battalion of automobiles in readiness to take the boys around the campus, through the parks, and over the boulevards. Some of Stagg's star track men will be with each party to see that the lads have a good time. The Chicago coach is sparing neither pains nor money to make the meet a success and to insure the visiting teams a pleasant time.

Nearly 300 athletes will compete in the meet. The list of entries is the largest and one of the best for any meet held in Chicago, and some great finishes and several new records are expected.

The winner of the meet is as hard to pick as the winners of the events with the Hyde Park, Lewis institute, and Grinnell (Ia.) teams, regarded as the chief aspirants for first honors.

Crack Men for Sprints.

Much depends on the sprints in which the star men of the three schools, Eckersall of Hyde Park, Hogenson of Lewis, and Longshore of Grinnell, are the contenders. Hyde Park is undefeated in track events this season, and will make an effort to end the season with a victory. Lewis won the Michigan interscholastic, and ran Hyde Park a close race at Evanston, while the Grinnell team won the event last season and hopes to repeat the trick.

Instead of medals for the point winners, Stagg will give loving cups. There are also a number of other men in the sprints besides the particular stars. Stevens and Cooper of Milwaukee, Matthews of Northwestern and Deakin of Lewis institute, are all good men, and will make things interesting in the preliminaries.

Great Rivals to Meet.

To the local followers of scholastic sport the meeting of Eckersall and Hogenson will be the biggest part of the meet, as there has been much contention as to which is the best since the defeat of the Hyde Parker by Hogenson at Evanston a month ago. The Lewis institute man won both dashes by the narrowest of margins, but since that time Eckersall has improved much and will try to turn the tables. It will be the last appearance of both sprinters as scholastic runners.

In the quarter mile run Comstock of Hyde Park looks the best, with Barker of Evanston, who won the state meet; Chapman and Cooper of Milwaukee, Jayne of Morgan Park, Adams of Lewis, and Hogdon of Grinnell his strongest opponents.

The half mile will bring together Shipley of Oak Park, Adams of Lewis, and Comstock of Hyde Park, who have already met this season in a close race. Barker of Evanston, Badenoch of Englewood, Anderson of South Division, and Little and Beard of Iowa are the other prominent entries.

Anderson for the Mile.

Harry Anderson appears to have the mile at his mercy unless the Iowa entrants—Andrews, Baird, and Little—spring a surprise. In the hurdles the Helmholz brothers of Milwaukee, Abbott of Hyde Park, Steffen of North Division, and McConnaughy of Morgan Park will make things interesting for each other.

New records for the field events is the prediction, and if the competitors live up to their reputations it will come true. Evvard of Pontiac, who has been smashing all sorts of records in the hammer throw, will have to compete against Williamson of East Division, Thomas, who has the Indiana record; Taylor of Grinnell, and Noel of Henry.

Evvard, with his team mate, Carruthers, is also expected to get points in the shot and discus throw, in which events the stars in the hammer are entered.

Pole Vault to Be a Battle.

Bredemus of South Bend, Morris of Englewood, and Follansbee of Manual Training will have a battle royal in the pole vault. Each has a record of 10 feet 6 inches.

Zimmerman of Lake Forest, McConnaughy of Morgan Park, Hogenson of Lewis, French of Lewis, and Blanchflower of Springfield are the stars in the broad jump.

Eight schools are entered in the relay race, and eleven grammar schools will compete in the grammar school contest.

The Tribune's Vacation Guide

Continuing its series of hints for vacation hunters "The Tribune" presents the sixth installment of a guide to the most desirable spots for summer outings. The series will be continued daily and will be found invaluable to those who are wondering where to go.

CATSKILLS, N. Y.—One of the most frequented tourist points in America, because of their picturesqueness and proximity to the Hudson river. The several resorts in the mountains are reachable by railroad, and the district may be reached after a trip up the Hudson from New York, or by rail from the west. The summer homes of wealthy easterners are there, and there are numerous hotels for the accommodation. Points in the mountains may be reached from Buffalo in from nine to thirteen hours, and for from $14.65 to $15.65 for the round trip. Living is not cheap at any of the points, but is reasonable when the accommodations and the advantages for pleasure are considered.

CHAUTAUQUA LAKE, N.Y.—This famous assembly and summer school center of western New York is an interesting spot for tourists, and a pleasant home for the summer visitor. Low excursion rates to the place prevail during the summer season. Aside from the interest attached to its great summer school and the lectures and the hundreds of students that gather there, the high altitude, invigorating air, and the pleasant drives are attractions. During the summer Celoron is one of the liveliest resorts in New York. The lake may be reached from Chicago by rail, and the regular rate is $20 for the round trip. An excursion rate of $14 will prevail between July 3 and July 24.

CANYON OF THE COLORADO, ARIZONA—It will cost the tourist $80 for a round trip ticket to the mouth of the gorge at Bright Angel, Colo. Points on the gorge may also be reached overland from nearby railroad points. The tourist may put up at hotels at the towns at from $3 upwards, and allowances must be made for conveyances, guides, etc. The cañon, with its chasms, towers, plateaus, and other effects of rock formation, and of cloud coloring, is perhaps as well known to Americans as is Pike's Peak or the Niagara Falls. Indian villages may be reached by short overland trips from the gorge.

CALIFORNIA—Special rates to California cities and resorts prevail on all railroads leaving Chicago and running to the coast. Some of the features of these trips are: Coronado, on San Diego bay; round trip rate from Chicago, including sleeping car and hotel expenses, two weeks' board and lodging at Coronado tent city, at rates ranging from $116 to $188, according to accommodations demanded. For a stay of longer than two weeks at tent city, $10 a week will be charged. California coast—Round trip tickets, taking the tourist to San Diego, San Francisco, and Los Angeles, with layover privilege, are sold during the season at $110. During the G. A. R. encampment at San Francisco, Aug. 17 to 22, a $50 rate will be made. This ticket will be good from Aug. 1 to Oct. 15. A $62.50 rate will be made in July because of the Christian Endeavor convention in Denver. The Yosemite valley and other points of interest can be reached at small expense from the coast points. The Yosemite trip may be figured at $20.

DEVIL'S LAKE, WIS.—Near Baraboo, Cliff house and Kirkland, the railway stations from which the lake may be reached, are about 175 miles from Chicago, a five hours' ride. Lying in the rough country just west of the Wisconsin river the scenery is interesting. Carriage rides and drives to points of interest, boating, fishing, and hunting are the attractions. There are six hotels at or near the lake and two private boarding houses, where the rates are from $4 to $10 a week. Good place to rest.

DOUSMAN, WIS.—Conditions make it a desirable summering spot for families. It is about half way between Milwaukee and Madison and south of the Oconomowoc lake district. Several small lakes near by are good fishing and boating grounds. Dousman is 115 miles, or about three hours' away. Nine hotels, resorts, and boarding houses furnish accommodations at from $5 to $10 a week.

DALLES OF THE ST. CROIX, MINN.—Near Taylor Falls, fifty miles from St. Paul. Taylor Falls is the railway station. Scenery picturesque. Rate from Chicago, $21.35 for the round trip. Hotel accommodations may be secured at Taylor Falls.

DELAVAN LAKE, WIS.—Popular lake northwest of and near to Lake Geneva, Wis., 100 miles from Chicago. The shores are wooded and sloping, making bathing facilities good. The Delavan Yacht club, composed of Chicago cottagers, hold weekly regattas. The Delavan Lake assembly summer school will meet there this summer. The resort is well patronized by Wisconsin and Chicago people, and fishing, boating, bathing, with games and entertainments, add to the attractions of its natural beauty. Board at the hotels costs from $5 to $15 a week, and there are ten hostelries to choose from. The round trip fare from Chicago is $8.75.

DELLS OF THE WISCONSIN—Deep gorge nine miles long, through which the Wisconsin river flows. The perpendicular sides of the cañon and the pinnacles of rock which have resisted the water and still stand in the middle of the stream, sometimes wooded, have made the dells famous for wild beauty. Kilbourn City is the point at which the dells may be reached, and from there a steamer takes the tourist through the gorge. There are a number of small lakes and camp resorts near Kilbourn, which are popular family summering places. Trout fishing is to be had in the streams. The fare from Chicago to Kilbourn City is $8.85 for the round trip. Hotel and boarding house accommodations may be secured there for from $1 to $2.50 a day or from $6 a week up.

DALTON, MINN.—The Ten Mile lake, one of the most attractive of the many Minnesota lakes, is near Dalton. The gradual sloping sandy beaches make the lake a safe bathing place for children, and its banks are favorite summering places for families. There is a daily train service to Dalton, and a bus line to the lake. In September the region is a fine hunting ground. Pike and small mouth bass are the principal fish.

DIAMOND LAKE, MICH.—This resort, in southern part of the state, may be reached by rail from Chicago in three and one-half hours. The station is Cassopolis, near South Bend. The round trip fare from Chicago is $3.95, with lower "party" or "family" rates. It has a shore line of ten miles, dry and partly wooded with beech and maple. Cottage and tent life, fishing, boating, and driving through the beautiful surrounding country are the attractions. Six resorts and hotels furnish accommodations at reasonable rates. There is also a hotel on an island of about eighty acres area in the lake. The island is wooded and dry. A restful family summering place.

EVENTS IN CHICAGO SOCIETY.

Wedding of Miss Katharine Head to Mr. G. W. Breck to Be Celebrated on June 10.

The wedding of Miss Katharine Head, daughter of Mr. Franklin H. Head, to Mr. George W. Breck of New York on Wednesday, June 10, will be quietly celebrated in the afternoon at 5 o'clock at the residence of the bride's father, 2 Banks street. The invitations are for the ceremony only. The Rev. Henry R. Simmons of Minneapolis will officiate. The bride will have no attendants, but two little nieces and a nephew will come into the room with her—Helen and Margaret Perkins and Franklin Perkins. The groom will have no best man, but there will be ten ushers, all of Chicago except two. They are Herbert B. Perkins, Gardner Morris, Arthur C. Field, Spencer L. Adams, Irving K. Pond, Allen B. Pond, William K. Fellows, Herman McNeil, Howard Willcox of Buffalo, and Henry R. Pebbles of New York.

Mr. Breck will arrive from New York this afternoon. As the time intervening until the wedding is short there can be only a few entertainments. Mrs. L. A. Coonley Ward of 920 Division street gave a tea yesterday afternoon for Miss Head. Tonight the bride's sister, Mrs. Herbert S. Perkins of Milwaukee, will give a dinner. Tomorrow evening Mrs. Gardner Morris of Oak Park will give a supper. Monday evening Mr. Head will give a small party, and there will be music and dancing.

A number of young women from other cities are visiting their friends in Chicago and a number of small entertainments are being given for them. One of these is Miss Grace Greenway Brown of Baltimore, the fiancée of Mr. Honoré Palmer, who is in the city to spend a month with her sisters, Mrs. Walter Keith and Mrs. Stanley Field.

Miss Josephine Russell of New York is spending the month with Mrs. Preston Gibson of 471 Elm street, and Miss Houston of Louisville is the guest of Mrs. W. W. Tracy of 140 Astor street. Mrs. Carlton D. McCollough of Indianapolis is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Kerfoot of 127 Astor street.

Miss Catherine Eddy is in New York, the guest of Mrs. Frederick Vanderbilt.

A large number of Chicago people go to Bloomington today to attend the wedding of Miss Charlotte Capen to Mr. Percy B. Eckhart, son of Mr. and Mrs. B. A. Eckhart of 187 Ashland boulevard. The wedding will be celebrated in the evening.

Today Mrs. George Rumsey of 607 Division street will give a tea.

Miss Jane Addams of Hull house gave a luncheon yesterday for Miss Mary Shaw.

Miss Jessie McCarthy of 4800 Kimbark avenue will give a luncheon for Miss Maud Douglass.

Mrs. A. E. Platt and Mrs. Platt Hunt of 106 Astor street have gone east for the summer. They will have a cottage at Bar Harbor.

Theatrical Agent Loses Case.

S. D. Ricardo and Burt Banvard, aerial performers, were found innocent of criminal libel by Justice Underwood yesterday afternoon. Charles J. Carter, a theatrical agent, alleged they had wrongfully attacked his methods of doing business.

TWO MASHERS ARE PUNISHED.

Young Men Fined for Annoying the Girls of the McCormick Plant.

Two mashers came to grief in Justice Dooley's court yesterday when Joseph Clouter was fined $25 and James Kiernan $10. Several young women from the McCormick reaper works, headed by Anna Frederick, 27 Luther street, and Margaret Riel, 3339 Artesian avenue, prosecuted the young men.

"They made eyes at us and wrote us notes," explained Miss Frederick.

"Yes, and what did you do to me?" demanded Clouter.

"I threw a handful of sand on you," answered the young woman, and then, to the court: "'He was a sight, your honor."

The prisoners denied being mashers, but the court believed the girls.

Asks $10,000 to Fight Smallpox.

Smallpox continues to claim victims daily, the total number of cases to date exceeding 275. The finance committee of the council yesterday recommended for passage an emergency appropriation of $10,000, asked for by Health Commissioner Reynolds, with which to fight the disease. The patients at the isolation hospital now number thirty-nine.

Round Trip Via MONON ROUTE From Chicago $12.45

In addition to the Medicinal Waters from the ten famous Springs the Hotel tables are supplied with purest crystal spring waters, filtered and distilled, so that its purity and healthfulness is doubly insured.

FROM CHICAGO DAILY NEWS, May 27, 1903.

Dr. J. N. Hurty, secretary of the Indiana state board of health, has just reported after a careful investigation of the waters and the sanitary conditions in general at French Lick Springs hotel. In his report he says: "The samples of sulphur water are found to be free from germs and organic matter. They could not be the cause of typhoid fever and like troubles, and I understand that no question has ever been raised regarding these waters: 'Pluto,' 'Prosperine,' and 'Bowles,' the medicinal waters. The sample marked 'Springs' is found to contain no disease causing germs. The chemical analysis proves that polluting matter is entirely absent. It is a pure and wholesome drinking water.

"From my sanitary survey of the buildings and grounds of the French Lick Hotel company I will say I found almost ideal sanitary conditions to exist, and although it would be impossible for evil-disposed or thoughtless persons to pollute the fresh spring water even this would not prove dangerous to those who drank the distilled water provided for table use."

The Waters

The healing waters of the numerous natural flowing springs at these twin resorts are corrective of disorders of stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels, beyond the power of drugs, the benefits of drinking the waters being immediate, and if continued for the brief period of ten days or two weeks are rejuvenating to the entire digestive system beyond the possibility of accomplishment by any other treatment. You drink the waters—nature does the rest. Cheaper than the Doctor's bills, more prompt, more efficient and more pleasurable than doping the system with medicines.

APPROPRIATE GIFTS FOR JUNE BRIDES.

Now's the Time to Select Them—Jewelry of All Sorts Is Acceptable—Mandel's Showing Solves Many Problems.

The month of roses is also a month of weddings, and every wedding calls for many gifts. All the friends and all the relatives vie with one another in heaping presents upon the lucky girl, for if "the world loves a lover" the world also spoils a bride. Friendly souls see the happiness shining in the face of Florabelle, Jeanette or Rosamond, as the case may be, and they say to themselves "I must have a hand in this affair—I'll give her a piece of solid silver." And does it add to the joyousness of the occasion? Why, of course, for no bride was ever so thankful for love that she forgot to take account of her pretty wedding presents. If all people aren't as kind as the sort just mentioned, who give from a full and loving heart, but rather because it is expected of them, well—the bride doesn't know that, and she has the gifts!

It isn't always the easiest thing in the world to tell just what will please a bride. It isn't, that is, unless one remembers the general rule that a girl always likes pretty things and never yet had too much jewelry to adorn her fair person. And where could a greater variety of novelties be found than at Mandel's, where a whole department is given to the gold, silver, enamel and jeweled treasures designed especially to delight the feminine eye?

In the first place, a word about the jewelry department. It is in many respects away ahead of the exclusive jewelers' stores. In confidence, the head of one of the wholesale houses declared it had a much finer and larger line than even the big exclusive jewelry houses carry, and it also leads in displaying foreign novelties.

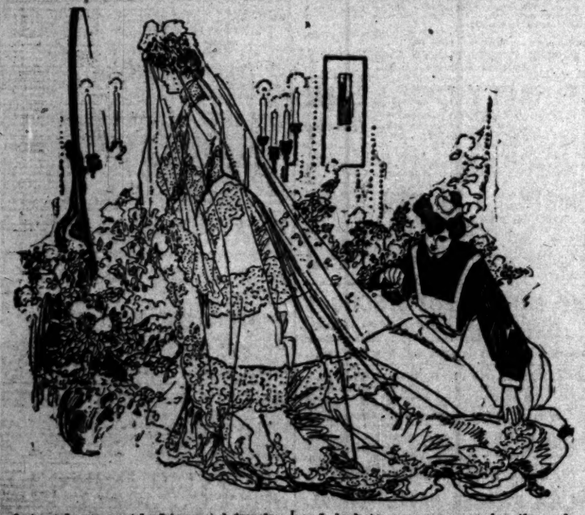

Perhaps in a general way a list of articles may be given for the help of the puzzled purchaser. All these will make excellent wedding gifts: Pearl and diamond hearts, chatelaine watches, necklaces, honor chains, Lavalliers, rings, lockets, mirrors, sterling toilet ware, gold or silver bonbonnieres, brooches, lorgnettes, enamel belt pins and hat pins, gold chain purses, gold mounted combs, gold bracelets and many other things.

The pearl and diamond hearts may either be used as brooches or pendants. They are about an inch across, the entire surface being covered with pearls, except at the exact center, where a diamond glistens. The Lavallier is a fine little gold necklace with pretty dangling ornaments. It takes its name from the French actress who gave it its first vogue. Sometimes the pendants are delicate French enamel pieces in flower designs and sometimes they are baroque pearls. These may be had all the way from $10 to $250.

Among the inexpensive acceptable trifles are the French enamel belt pins on sterling silver frames, worth from $3.50 to $9.50. Another novelty is a silver pendant made to resemble a shell, in which a tiny frog is concealed. Many odd silver bonbonnieres are shown with ornate tops. A silver card case, whose price is $10, is lined with pale blue silk, and has a silver chain to carry it by. Transparent enamel tops on hat pins are charming things at $2.50 and up. A pretty lorgnette frame is made of sterling silver ornamented with French enamel. Brooches with baroque pearl pendants and other jewel settings range from $3 to $7. Rings are always interesting, but especially so now, that so many odd settings are shown, and everything from the simple heavy gold wedding ring to the latest conceit in enamel and diamonds may be seen at Mandel's.

There is really a good deal to be said about the handsome lockets displayed at Mandel's, and lockets are very popular these days. Round, oval, heart-shaped, they come in all sizes and have the aroma of romance about them, which, after all, is as truly dear to the modern girl with her athletic, up-to-date notions as it ever was to the sweet, gentle little beauty who was somebody or other's great grandmother and wore her lover's likeness in a locket suspended from a black velvet band around her fair throat.

Too cunning for anything are the little gold bonbon boxes, large enough to hold a few candied violet leaves and not too large to slip under the glove in the hollow of the hand. Gold purses, too, little flexible chain purses, are to be had from $45 up to $165. Cut glass vinaigrettes with gold tops are useful as well as pretty; gold mounted combs help to hold up stray tresses; plain gold bracelets, to be worn more, perhaps, for sentiment than for show, are also favorite gifts, say, for a girl chum to her dearest friend, the June bride. And these are only a few of the things that would be sure to please. There are all the silver knick-knacks that belong on her dressing table, including silver back brushes, combs and mirrors, manicure articles, curling irons and heater, and a thousand other trinkets. And it would take a whole chapter to tell about the silver ware for the table that might be bestowed upon the young couple. Chests of silver hold a lot, but besides these there are the chocolate, tea, after-dinner coffee, salad and asparagus sets, not to mention terrapin forks, chocolate muddlers and spoons, and hundreds of other equally lovely things.

Is universally conceded to be the best placket fastener in the world, because it positively will not open automatically.

The "Notahook" can be most satisfactorily used on any garment as a fastener instead of buttons or hooks.

It closes with an easy sliding movement and is perfectly flat when shut, leaving no hook or knob.

This perfect garment fastener can be used on the finest waist, as it will not rust or stain the cloth. Full range of sizes in notion section.

DERBY DAY NECKWEAR.

Exquisite creations.

Derby Day will be the time to show off fancy neckwear. The woman who graces the great out-of-door fete will look well to the ways of her neck garniture. No ordinary collars and ribbons for her! No, indeed. She will wear stocks made of priceless bits of lace with satin and silk and pearl or crocheted buttons. A stole of taffeta or voile or liberty with rich lace set in and ends extending almost to the hem of her gown, will be another feature. If she doesn't wear the stole she will have a stunning lace collar, broad and deep and costly. It may be Venetian point, Arabian, Cluny, Irish crochet or yak lace, which comes in either cream or black.

Charming maline bows.

Of course every woman who sits up in the swellest of turnouts will have a jaunty maline bow at the back of her neck just where the little scolding locks cluster in curls. This, however, will not be the ordinary maline bow, but is larger than ever and fuller and has its own special ribbon exactly the same color as the illusion ormaline that fastens around her fair throat.

Graceful feather boas.

Then her boa! Never were feather boas so bewilderingly lovely, so billowy, or so long, and as for chiffon ruffs, well, only those who have been to Mandel Brothers' store and looked over their stock know what ruffs really are. Such beauties in white, cream, accordion plaited or box plaited ruffs, and they come as low as $5 or as high as $50. Some, too, are of liberty silk and in cape effect and they make charming little summer wraps, not too fragile to be worn out in the evening dampness.

Shirt waist neckwear.

Now it is to be supposed that the young woman who owns her own car and drives her own runabout will wear a shirt waist dress of some kind and its appropriate adjunct—a plain linen, piqué or white embroidery stock. Mandel's have these as well as the elaborate furbelows. Many women who think, too, of possible heat and possible dust and an afternoon on the grandstand or in uncovered rigs in the field, are planning to wear simple white linen, duck or pique frocks, "tub gowns," as the English call them, and with these all the pretty embroidered, tucked and hand made yokes and collars come in graciously. They add the necessary bit of daintiness to the crisp, fresh frock.

We run our shop 54 hours per week, and our men have always been satisfied with their pay, surroundings, and treatment.

A number of our men quit work a short time ago under the following circumstances: We were among the first to adopt the 54 hour week in Chicago, and at the time the shorter hours were put into effect we submitted the arrangement of hours to a vote of our employes. Almost unanimously they voted for a division of the 54 hour week which provided for a Saturday half holiday. A vote was taken a second time last fall with the same result. Upon a recent demand by the Machinists' union that we run the shop nine hours each day, we offered to take a vote again and abide the preference of the majority of our men. This vote was taken and resulted in a majority favoring the Saturday half holiday. A number of our employes then quit work, although expressing themselves as entirely satisfied with their jobs. Our shop is an open shop, not discriminating for or against union or nonunion men. Apply to

ORDER FOR ACCOUNTING UPHELD

Appellate Judges Affirm Judgment of Lower Court Rendered Against Columbian Leather Company.

The Branch Appellate court yesterday affirmed the judgment of the Circuit court in the suit of the United States Leather company and Kullman, Salz & Co. against the Columbian Leather company and others to secure an accounting. The lower court found that $6,000 was wholly unaccounted for by the defendants and that A. Rudgear, Mrs. Celeste Haskins, and Mrs. Eleanor C. Turner, other defendants, appropriated a sum in excess of $1,600 to their own use, which, with interest, should be paid by them to the receiver with costs.

Other opinions handed down by the Branch Appellate court were as follows:

10491—J. A. Kemp vs. Northern Trust company; reversed and remanded.

STRICT EXPLOSIVE LAW URGED.

Coroner's Verdict in Case of Explosion of Cartridges at Butler Bros.' Warehouse.

That the laws relating to the handling and storage of explosives have been abused in Chicago and that the accident at Butler Bros.' building on last Monday would not have occurred had more precaution been exercised were two statements in the verdict of the coroner's jury at an inquest over the body of John Swanson yesterday. Swanson was killed in the explosion of a case of blank cartridges at Butler Brother's wholesale house at 7 West Randolph street. The jury recommended in their verdict that hereafter firms handling fire works, cartridges, or any deadly explosive be compelled to secure a permit from the proper authorities.

THE PRESIDENT'S TRIP.

President Roosevelt yesterday finished his 14,000 mile trip. He went to the Yellowstone park, back to St. Louis for the world's fair dedication, then to California, northwards along the shores of the Pacific to Washington state, and thence eastwards to Washington, D. C. It is the longest trip ever made by a president of the United States.

In the course of his travels Mr. Roosevelt has said many wise sayings, seen many interesting sights, and made many new friends. It was during the course of his trip that he gave the famous interview stating that his friends would work for his indorsement at state conventions. As a result Ohio swung into line for Roosevelt in 1904, and the last possible danger of his losing the renomination vanished.

In his speeches the president treated extensively of our foreign relations, breaking another precedent. The keynote of his foreign doctrine was enunciated in Chicago: "Speak softly and carry a big stick." Profound meaning lies in these words, and one thing to be especially noted about them is that they are not belligerent. The president did not urge the using of the big stick.

The president said this country needs a big navy not for war but as a guarantee against it. He says he went west a pretty good expansionist and has come back a better one. The people are with him on those two propositions.

As a result of the trip the president is stronger and more popular than ever before. His renomination and reelection now seem as certain as anything human can be. The people, both democrats and republicans, may well congratulate themselves that this is true.

THE USES OF HISTORY.

"Only the man who has cultivated his history . . . can make a name for himself in the world," said Kaiser William to the people of Frankfort.

Excepting the study of his specialty for the specialist, history is the most valuable study for all men. A doctor can get his greatest benefit from the study of medicine, a lawyer from the study of law (though, indeed, Blackstone itself is largely history), but to the ordinary man history is the most valuable study. And the specialist, when he turns from his specialty, can get his next degree of profit from history.

By meeting in turn the mighty dead, to whom history will introduce him for the asking, a man may gain inspiration from their successes and caution from their failures. He may borrow determination from their iron wills and understanding from their luminous intellects. The study of history cannot achieve miracles. It will not endow the man of average talents with national preëminence, but it will help every man, big or little, to make the most of the talents he has by aiding him to invest them judiciously. It is a matter of record that all great statesmen and soldiers, without exception, who have ever lived have been deep and persistent students of history.

People hesitate to take up history in summer because the name of it sounds dry. But there are many histories far easier to read than the lightest summer tale which treat of romances compared to which the wildest flights of the novelist's imagination are "dull, flat, stale, and unprofitable."

DISCUSS IT WITH THE FARMERS.

Although the United States is a great exporter of wheat it imposes a duty of 25 cents a bushel on the foreign product. Naturally, no wheat is imported, and none would be if there were no duty, except from Canada. The Millers' National federation contends that the exclusion of Canadian wheat is injurious to them and also to the wheat growers of this country. They allege that its free admission would raise instead of depressing the price of American wheat and flour in foreign markets and would not lower the domestic price of either. If the millers can prove their case the retention of the duty will be a grave economic error.

The millers say that there are not in the dominion the facilities for storing and carrying wheat which exist here, and that as soon as it is harvested they throw it all upon the British market whether there is an immediate demand for it or not. The result is to depress considerably the price of wheat in that market, to the injury of the American producer. It is contended further that if the duty were removed Canadian wheat would come into the United States and would be held here until it could be shipped to the best advantage. Much of it would be made into flour here and American millers would make a profit which British millers make now.

The reasoning of the millers seems to be flawless. The duty on wheat is apparently an injury to those for whose protection it was imposed. It may be a difficult matter to get the farmers to see it in that light. If they do not it will be useless to talk about securing the free admission of Canadian wheat by a reciprocity treaty or by the unconditional repeal of the duty. If the millers can convince the farmers, they will have no trouble with congress. It is to the farmers that they should first address themselves.

A WORD OF WARNING.

The interview with Mr. Field, printed in the Inter Ocean yesterday and in THE TRIBUNE this morning, deserves, and will, no doubt, receive, the attention of thoughtful citizens. It indicates a crisis in the condition of affairs in Chicago which is equally menacing to the interests of capital and labor. It is always a misfortune when the workingman is arrayed in conflict against his employer. The interests of both are identical, and the relations of both should be, and must be, harmonious if they are to continue to the advantage of either.

The employers, as a class, feel at the present moment that they are being pushed almost beyond the limits of endurance. While business is not so flourishing as it was a year ago and profits are not so large, demands are made upon them which are prompted by the desire of the wage earners to have what they consider a fair share of the profits arising from the business in which they are employed. But if it is true that the profits are not so large as they were it is not easy for the employer to admit the reasonableness of the demand. Conditions which might have justified an increase of wages a year ago no longer exist. Business in almost every department of trade is suffering from contraction instead of rejoicing in an expansion of profits. While the volume of business may be as large as before, the margin of profit is much less than it was. Feeling as they do in this respect employers consider themselves injured by the demand that they shall give up a still further proportion of their receipts in increased wages.

On the other hand, the wage earners believe that the cost of living has advanced, and as they see much activity about them they believe they are entitled to a share of the additional business. Not being allowed to look at the private books of the employer they are not easily persuaded that profits are less than they formerly were.

Above all, they are more perfectly organized than they were. Being convinced of their power to demand and receive higher wages they are not disposed to refrain from using that power to its full extent. It is a case where, in their judgment, "might makes right." It is a most unfortunate position, because it suggests the opposition of force to force. When two forces of this nature clash there is likely to arise a degree of antagonism which was not looked for and which may have serious results.

Both sides should see the wisdom of conciliation and harmony. Unreasonable demands should not be made and reasonable demands should not be resisted. If the question is simply one of organization it might well be postponed until another occasion. If it relates to an advance in wages or a shortening of hours it should be adjusted through some tribunal mutually agreed upon.

In any case it will be unfortunate for both sides if the public is made to suffer through their misunderstandings. Concerns which are performing a semi-public service, such as restaurants and laundries, cannot be closed without distinct and serious inconvenience to the public, and sooner or later that public will decide which side is in the wrong and will visit the penalty of its disapprobation upon the transgressor. Only when suffering from serious wrong can any body of men be justified in closing places in a city like Chicago which minister to the public convenience.

TRY DORMITORIES.

Grant that the students at Northwestern university are extravagant. Shall the faculty therefore issue a series of edicts, ukases, rescripts, bulletins, firmans, and other official fulminations against social life?

There is a musty story about King Canute and the waves of the sea. The faculty of a university may fulminate with sheet, forked, chain, and greased lightning till the atmosphere is saturated with official electricity. Social life will continue. There are other lightning defiers besides Ajax. Undergraduates have always held that "the philosophy of life's afternoon is a poor consolation for the poetry of its morning." They are not to be restrained by arguments and commands. They justify themselves not by constructing syllogisms and syntheses but by getting together and shouting out something that they call "the everlasting wonder song of youth."

The only way in which to restrain an undergradute from doing a thing you don't want him to do is to inveigle him into doing something else. This means that at a coeducational university unusual facilities must be introduced for the cultivation of masculine instead of feminine society. Now, Northwestern university at the present time has few such facilities. There are no dormitories in which the men would find it hard to escape becoming intimately acquainted with one another. There are no places in which they may congregate for the retailing of collage gossip and wholesaling of college song.

Dormitories seem harmless and feasible. Build the men attractive dormitories. It is impossible to make the girls unattractive. The thing to do is to make the dormitories counter attractive. Throw the men together. Let them live together, study together, eat together, and smoke together. A man's life will develop. And what most coeducational colleges mainly need is a larger life of that kind. Social life they have in full measure. Masculine life they have in exceedingly scanty measure, and they need more of it.

BREAK AWAY!

Do you remember that even before the glory that is the summer resort and the grandeur that is the picnic ground it was possible to go out and chance divinely on a dell, or a dingle, or a brake, or a copse, or some such sylvan institution and there escape for the moment from the urban Wheel of Things?

There are dells, and dingles, and brakes, and copses within a Sunday morning's journey of Chicago. Don't put off your vacation till you have a week, or two weeks, or a month to spend at some remote place. Study the environs of your own city. Detroit street cars carry the sign, "To the wild flowers." Chicago trolley lines are beginning to produce bucolic poetry in honor of the scenery they traverse. Sometimes advertisements contain as much truth as you will find in passepartouted helps to beautiful living. Don't disbelieve the advertisements about the charms of the ravines north of Chicago and of the countrysides west of it. There is more truth than poetry in the poetry produced by the trolley lines which so earnestly desire you to commune with nature via their cars.

But don't go out with a mussy, soggy gang of fellow humans. Don't carry your prison with you like the turtle. Break away. Imitate Walt Whitman in the action which he describes in that delicately chiseled line: "So I stuck my trousers into my boots and went out and had a good time."

That word time, however, conveys still another hint. While you are getting rid of society get rid of time. It is people and engagements that have worn you out. You have had to see a man at 9:17, and another man in another place at 12:33, and a third man in a third place at 3:58. You have been stretched on the Wheel of Things, with times, and dates, and engagements as the spikes that transfixed you. Wrench yourself free. Lie on your back in your dell, or dingle, or brake, or copse, whichever your fancy selects, and be as one of the immortals who have no engagements, who are not fettered with the concept of time, to whom a thousand years are a moment and a moment a thousand years, and to whom it is permitted to loaf in the center of the circle of eternity and with half closed eyes watch it foolishly whirling about them.

Just try this feeling of having been released from time, of having passed from living to being. You will want to try it again. And next winter when you are living every jerky instant you will be sorry you didn't try it oftener.

All aboard for dells, dingles, brakes, and copses!

"THE MERRY MONTH OF MAY."

The month of May in this year of grace will remain memorable for the natural disturbances and destruction in various sections of the country which characterized it. The disastrous work began with the floods in the valley of the Missouri from Kansas City to the Mississippi, the result of copious and long continued downpour in Kansas, Nebraska, and Iowa—and has occasioned the loss of several scores of lives and the destruction of an immense amount of property. Then came the cyclones, one of which tore through the manufacturing town of Gainesville, Ga., killing more than a hundred people.

In the meantime, while the middle west has been deluged with rain and wasted by floods, the east has suffered from an almost unexampled drought, covering Pennsylvania, New Jersey, New York, and the New England states. While these are not great crop producing states, yet they will suffer much from injury to berries, vegetables, and small fruits. There must be a shortage of peaches and apples and serious damage to the hay crop. For seven weeks that large area has been rainless. One paper says: "The soil is as dry as powder, the foliage is taking on the hues of August almost before it fulfills the leafage of June. The crops in the country districts show premature failure. Forest fires are numerous and greatly destructive. The land is withering." May will go into the meteorological records as the dry month in the east and the wet month in the west.

Fire is the natural accompaniment of a dry season. The material is ready at hand in prime condition, and human carelessness and negligence are always ready to start the fire causing widespread forest destruction. The great northern woods of Canada, the beautiful Adirondack forests, and the woods of Connecticut, Vermont, New Hampshire, Massachusetts, and Maine are all ablaze. Millions of dollars' worth of property already has been destroyed and the end is not yet and will not be until the rains come. It adds to the danger from these fires that farm buildings, residence property, and small towns and villages are exposed because of their contiguity to the woods, and it adds much more to the loss that the states mentioned can ill afford to lose any of their sparse forest area. But what can be done? Droughts cannot be prevented. Apparently there is no way to prevent floods, though their destruction could be lessened by more skillful engineering. Certainly there is no way to prevent cyclones. All that people can do is to be patient and hopeful, but while exercising patience and hope there are many who will wish that nature might distribute her rains more evenly and not drown out one section and dry up another.

A GREAT many disrespectful remarks have been made concerning the new 2 cent postage stamp. Considered as a work of art it may have its faults, but as to the gum on its back it is beyond criticism. It sticks.

THE public roads throughout the state could scarcely be worse than they are now if the various township authorities had been "mending" them.

AN accurate map of Illinois at this time would show that its western boundary line has wabbled considerably.

OR, again, you can bring a small luncheon downtown in the crown of your high silk hat.

THE Louisiana Purchase is a body of land largely surrounded by the Mississippi river.

PROBABLY it is too late now to get out an injunction restraining the Hon. Richard Yates from going to Europe to exhibit himself as the governor of Illinois.

EDITOR BRYAN needs a rest. He has been overworking his kicker.

IN A MINOR KEY.

Main Point Settled.

Mr. Nocknoodle—"You are going to call your new society the Earnest Workers, are you? What is the object of it?"

Mrs. Nocknoodle—"We haven't been able to agree on that yet."

Uncle Allen.

"Now that the public mind has had time to cool," said Uncle Allen Sparks, "it is generally conceded that when Ajax went out and defied the lightning he made a darned fool of himself. The lightning never paid the slightest attention to him."

Troubles of the Strike.

The kitchen and dining room workers at the fashionable hotel had struck, and a lot of the guests in evening clothes had enthusiastically volunteered to take their places.

"See here," complained one of the late arrivals, "I called for a rare steak, but this is absolutely raw!"

"I am sorry, sir," said the distracted proprietor, "but we are doing the best we can with nobody in the kitchen but wives and daughters of millionaires and no waiters except railroad presidents and trust magnates!"

Was Chestnutty.

The Doctor—"What did you think of Windsack's lecture the other evening on 'altruism'?"

The Professor—"I thought there was a slight typographical error in the title. It should have been 'all truisms.'"

Era of Good Feeling.

"I always notice people's eyes, Mr. Hankinson. Yours are gray."

"And yours are blue, Miss de Muir. May I presume upon the significance of the—"

Later, when they walked homeward in the gloaming, blue and gray were very, very close together.

Costly.

"Eternal weeding," said the suburbanite philosopher, "is the price of a dinky little 16x20 lawn—and it isn't worth it."

LETTER OF MARQUISE DE FONTENOY.

Copyright, 1903: By the Marquise de Fontenoy.

EMPRESS EUGENIE'S father confessor and principal chaplain and lord high almoner during the days when she reigned supreme at the Tuileries has just passed over to the majority at Paris at the age 74, but not, I am sorry to say, in the odor of sanctity, but excommunicated. For this courtly prelate, Mgr. Bauer by name, who presided at the Christian portion of the religious ceremonies in connection with the inauguration of the Suez canal, doffed his episcopal robes after the overthrow of the empire in 1870 and blossomed forth as a stock broker and as a man about town.

In doing this he was merely harking back. For he commenced his career as a clerk in the banking house of the Rothschilds of Vienna, and, as might be assumed from his name, was a Jew, not only by race but by faith. He, however, was led to forsake both his religion and his calling, became a convert to Christianity, entered holy orders, and, recommended to the attention of Empress Eugénie by her mother, he found so much favor in her eyes that she insisted on having him as her chaplain, inducing Pope Pius IX. to consecrate him as a bishop "in partibus infidelium," and to appoint him as a prelate of the papal household.

Bauer was a wonderfully eloquent, suave, and courtly divine, with the most perfect manners, and imparted to his ecclesiastical vestments a certain elegance and a grace which savored rather of the world than of religion, his laces in particular being a theme of never ending admiration on the part of those numerous court beauties who, following the example of the empress, had selected him as their spiritual adviser.

His influence over them and on the empress was great, and as that of Eugénie in turn was predominant in political affairs in France, he may be said to have played an important rôle, especially during the last ten years of the empire.

Four years ago this ex-bishop, who was a brother of the late Ignatius Bauer, the well known Jew banker at Madrid, and representative of the Rothschilds there, married an ex-ballerina, with whom he had lived for a number of years, and who now inherits the large fortune which he acquired on the stock exchange.

Prince Hugo Hohenlohe, who spent all last year in this country working in the New York office of the German-American banking firm of Ladenburg, Thalmann & Co. without pay, for the sake of making himself acquainted with American business methods, has just formed a partnership with a Berlin merchant named Leonard Schade van Westrum for the sake of exploiting certain patents in connection with the oil industry, the name of the concern being given as the German Oil Works company, and the capital at 900,000 marks. Prince Hugo appears as one of the two partners in this concern in the Berlin Trades Directory for the current year, just issued, and it is the first time that a personage of his rank has ever appeared in the Berlin Trades Directory as the partner of a concern of this kind.

True, Prince Leopold Isenburg became the clerk in a Berlin bank some years ago. But before doing so he renounced the chieftainship of his family and his rank as the member of a mediatized house in favor of his younger brother.

So this is not quite the same thing. For Prince Hugo Hohenlohe retains all his honors and dignities, and has made no renunciation of any kind. He is a capable man, who, dissatisfied with his career as a provincial magistrate, which might in course of time have led him to the governship of the province, resigned his post, and entered the so-called Deutsche bank at Berlin as an unpaid clerk for the sake of learning the business. It was after that that he came to America. He is a member of the Union club of Berlin, of which his elder brother, the duke of Ujest, is president, and is a cousin both of the German emperor and of King Edward, being, in fact, related to half the reigning houses of Europe. He expects to return to this country shortly in connection with his new business.

The Hohenlohe family is extremely wealthy, and the extent of the landed possessions of the prince's elder brother may be gathered from the fact that he is at the present moment advertising for 2,000 laborers for the purpose of setting to rights the damage done in some of his immense forests by the severe storms of last winter. Prince Hugo is unmarried, and it may be recalled that while here last year his name was most unjustly dragged into a scandal in connection with one of those shady brokerage concerns which undertake to negotiate matrimonial alliances between American heiresses and titled Europeans. The prince never had any dealings with these people, and the association of his name with their transactions as that of a client was wholly without warrant.

Emperor Nicholas will go alone to Rome, leaving the czarina and his children at Darmstadt during his trip to Italy, and on his way back from Rome to Darmstadt he will take in Vienna for the purpose of visiting Emperor Francis Joseph. Of course it is difficult to determine anything for certain about the czar's plans beforehand, since they are always liable to be changed at the last minute by political events, by the health of the empress, or by that of the imperial children.

But according to present arrangements the czar will during the first days in August make a pilgrimage to the Saraskaja monastery in the Tamboff province, where the celebrated Father Seraphim, who was solemnly proclaimed a saint last winter, lived, performed his miracles, and now lies entombed. Inasmuch as the monastery is situated some fifty miles from the nearest railroad, a special set of tracks leading from the latter to the monastery is being constructed for the use of the emperor.

Immediately afterwards he will leave for Darmstadt with the empress and the little grand duchesses, nothing having been heard so far of any visit of the imperial couple to Copenhagen, Scotland, or Berlin. At Darmstadt the czar and czarina will meet the latter's sister, Princess Henry of Prussia, and her husband, and possibly her other sister, Princess Louise of Battenberg, whose husband is an admiral in the English navy. Indeed it will be a species of reunion of the reigning house of Hesse—the first in several years.

King Edward, who is now at Windsor during the greater part of the week, spends a good deal of his time on the Thames, and his new launch, handsomely decorated, is now a quite familiar object on the river. It had been arranged that he was to have made with the queen a species of state progress by water to Eton college this month, but it is probable that owing to the fire which took place there the other day, in which two of the pupils lost their lives, this project may be abandoned or at any rate postponed.

The royal boathouse is situated just below the Victoria bridge, which stands at the lower end of King Edward's avenue at Windsor, and which is furnished with a roomy landing place. The prince of Wales has as yet no launch of his own for use on the river, but is having one built. Although a sailor by profession, he is far less fond of the river than the princess, and is seldom seen on the water.

Boating on the Thames has always been a most popular pastime with London society, and in no country in the world can any river be seen which presents a more gay and animated spectacle on early summer afternoons and evenings than the Thames, dotted as it is with every conceivable craft, most of them freighted with beautifully dressed women. Now that the king announces his intention of spending much more time on the river than heretofore, boating on the Thames will become more popular and more fashionable than ever.

"I don't know how I ever did it," replied the poet, who, after a moment's reflection, added: "I think, however, I must attribute it to the fact that I never had any education."

WHY DO HUSBANDS GO OUT NIGHTS?

"Is your wife entertaining this year?"

To the Editor: The reason we husbands go out nights is because, as Dr. Helen Stone has proved, we are more emotional than women. I am so emotional that I continually crave excitement, and the only way I can get it is to go out nights after it. I hate to do it, but I can't help it. C. S.

HASTY HISTORY of CHICAGO

From Circumstantial Evidence.

COLUMBUS BUILDS THE CITY HALL.

The bridge tender crawled out of his house on top of the bridge and addressed a few remarks to the hardy mariner who stood on the poop deck. The bridge tender had passed the civil service examination in high seas swearing and was competent for the occasion.

"You Spanish onion," he bellowed, "don't you think you could have taken the whole bridge down? You've made a mistake. You only took seventeen tons of stone out of the center pier. Back off and try it again. Don't mind me. Don't mind the bridge. Hit it again. Keep on hitting it until you have brought the whole blooming thing down and part of the town with it. Take care you don't go through the draw by accident while you are trying. Hit 'em again."

On board the Santa Marie the sailors were running with all their bed clothing to the nose of the boat and were stuffing comforters and army blankets into the hole which showed where the caravel had bumped into the bridge.

From the poop deck Christopher tried in vain to sooth the bridge tender, but was unsuccessful. "P'lice, p'lice," yelled that irate individual, "here's a skate has busted the bridge."

"All right," said Columbus, as the town marshal led him away. "But I don't think much of your old bridges, anyway. A right minded public would give a man a medal for knocking them down."

When he was brought before the chief of police the explorer said:

"To square the deal I'll have my men build you a fine structure of stone which you can use for a penitentiary, a vegetable market, a dog pound, a cathedral, a junk shop, a fish market, an inquisition, or anything you like. What style will you have?"

Some of the people said they would have Ionic, others said Corinthian, others Arabesque, and others rococo, and there was much confusion.

"We will have a referendum," said Alcalde Harrison.

"Not on your life," remarked Columbus. "This is not the traction question. It's me to Chicago, and I can't tarry around here until next election. I've got a tender little idea which will look well in granite and marble and I'll give you a gentle mixture of all kinds of styles."

So his men toiled for a week and built the building. When it was done Columbus put his statue in front of it.

"I shouldn't like to have even a stone image of me stand looking at it the rest of its days," he said to himself, and he placed the statue with its back to the structure and left with his caravels.

The people were vexed to decide whether to make the building a municipal junk shop or the city hall and county building. Finally the preponderance of opinion was in favor of the latter and it was so determined.

MARQUETTE'S PENANCE.

"Wouldst thou make a killing?" asked the painted savage of Father Marquette.

"I wouldst," said the Father fervently. "Lead me to it."

"Come with me," said the painted savage, and he led him to the corner of Adams and Dearborn streets. There three other painted savages were playing with three shells and a pea.

"It is a cinch," whispered the first painted savage to the Father.

"See, but choose the shell under which lieth the pea and you win all possessed by the three. It is a cinch."

"It's a shame to do it," said the Father. "Such easy money. But a charitable duty at that. They would spend the money in riotous living."

The sun was overhead when the four painted savages left the Father. They went away heavier than they came. He stood and looked at the spot.

"I am an easy marque," he said. "I will build a modern office building in penance."

This being completed he looked at the structure and observed:

"The spot should be memorable, and this will marquette."

LA SALLE AS A PAVING CONTRACTOR.

La Salle was pushing his way across a bog where he surprised five Indians. They were dividing a pile of shells into six heaps, five big ones and one little one.

"O, ho," chortled La Salle. "Some villainy. Your business, kind sirs?"

"An' it please you, sir, we are paving contractors," said the five.

"And the shells?"

"What the taxpayers pay."

"And the big piles?"

"Are what we make in profits."

"And the little pile?"

"Is what it costs us to make the profits."

"O, ho," chortled La Salle again. "I rather would be a paving contractor than a taxpayer." And so he joined them. He taught them that competition was a wicked thing and unbecoming in men and brothers.

"Let us get together," he said. "Unite we skin the world; divided we skin each other. It is better to skin than to be skinned."

So they departed from the ways of competition and dwelt in peace and harmony and sent one bid to the city hall. La Salle also discovered the cedar block pavement and paved La Salle street.

Always Filled the House.

[From the New York Mail and Express.]

The kindly feeling existing between certain theatrical managers is best exemplified by this little compliment, which one of them paid to a brother manager a day or two ago. He had been asked how business was with a certain production.

"It's fine," said he, "there's so much paper in the house you can hear it rustle."

"Mr. Blank has a big circle of friends, and, I guess, he's evening up all his obligations by giving out passes," remarked a bystander.

"Sure," said the manager. "And the best of his free list is that each pass for the seats he gives out is good for a request for two more. He never has any trouble in filling the house."

LITERARY COMMENT OF THE WEEK.

BRIEF OPINIONS ON HAPPENINGS IN THE BOOK WORLD.

No Prejudice Against the West.

Muscatine, Ia., May 28.—Literary Editor of The Tribune: I have been writing stories for the last eighteen months and sending them to the eastern magazines, but with no success to speak of. At the present time seventeen of the lot are again on my hands, although I have sent them to every periodical I could think of. . . . Is there any magazine published in this part of the country which I might send my work to? I am convinced that there is a strong prejudice on the part of eastern magazines against western writers.

This is part of a letter received last week. The woman who wrote it need only have been reminded of her fellow Iowan, "Octave Thanet," to realize that she was wrong. Miss French is one of the most successful magazine writers in America, and it is said that she has never had a manuscript rejected. If Miss French was not called to mind, the writer of the letter might have thought of Booth Tarkington of Indiana, not to take a census of the Hoosiers who are doing so much good work. Or she might have seen the novels and short stories of W. R. Lighton of Omaha, Elizabeth Higgins of Nebraska, Mary Holland Kinkaid of Wisconsin, Will Payne, I. K. Friedman, Harriet Monroe, Elliott Flower, Edith Wyatt, Ethel Reed, and other Chicagoans, Stewart Edward White, and a list of other more or less successful writers of the middle west.

The woman in Muscatine is mistaken in thinking that any prejudice against the west exists in the magazines. It is true that most of the magazine editors are eastern men, but magazine editors, however narrow their personal view may be, are men of business. They know that most of the best writing now being done is the work of western authors, and, so far from ignoring these men and women, they are actually competing for them, sending personally to them for their work, taking options on their future product, and, in some cases, paying them in advance.

This is not altogether because the writers are in the west. If they were in the south or on the Pacific coast the demand for their work would be quite as great. It is because their work is living and true, and because it has the note of the day in it, with life in its veins and the breath of novelty in its nostrils.

Let the Muscatine woman take heart. If seventeen of her stories were rejected it was because of some inherent fault in them and not because of any editorial prejudice.

"'Omer's Bloomin' Lyre" Again.

Many are the men who have tried to adapt Homer to the English tongue. From the press of our college "ponies" to the sounding lines of Chapman every form of translation has been attempted until now comes Prof. Mackail, who has put the "Odyssey" into the quatrains made familiar to us by Fitzgerald's version of Omar. How the old story looks in its new garb may be judged by the first two stanzas of the first book:

His dangerful course through wanderings not a few
After he sacked the holy town of Troy,
And saw the cities and the counsel knew

Of many men, and many a time at sea
Within his heart he bore calamity,
While his own life he labored to redeem
And bring his fellows back from jeopardy.

And the sun left the lovely lake and climb
Upwards across the sky's brass paven dome,
To light the deathless gods and mortal men
That have the acres of the corn for home.

Saw you perchance before the Trojan wall
A valiant man? for next one's kin and blood
Is such affinity most close of all:

Or one knit close to you in friendship's bands,
Gracious of heart and mighty of his hands?
Since nowise lesser than a brother born

Pope's Homer was said to be more Pope than Homer, and some there are who found similar fault with Chapman's, although the latter inspired one of Keats' best sonnets, but in spite of a historical mistake. Mr. Mackail is too scholarly to do anything poorly, and we may rest assured that he did not undertake this task lightly and without due thought to what his predecessors had done. It may be doubted if his translation will make us feel as Chapman's did Keats, but it will be received with the respect due to a scholarly task well done.

There seems to be no end to the demand for new editions of Walton's "Compleat Angler" and White's "Natural History of Selborne." Hardly a year passes when the publishers do not issue reprints of these works, with introductions and notes by distinguished persons. It is doubted if the old philosopher who made a book out of his fishing lore and the contemporary poets, or the quiet provincial rector who occupied his leisure noting the birds and trees of his parish, thought they were writing for the future. It was enough for them to know that they were doing something for the present, and that, perhaps, is one of the reasons why we are still reading their books.

These two volumes have enjoyed an almost unbroken popularity to the present time. The greatest men of all ages have enjoyed the quaint style of Walton, and English literature today is full of quotations from his pages, while White's sound knowledge and close observation of nature have served as incentives and models for those who have written similar books.

These men may be called the fathers of the "nature school" of writers, which has increased immeasurably in the last ten years and which numbers some of the most distinguished authors of England and America. New editions of Walton and White are on the market at the present time, sumptuous works, illustrated with photographs of the actual places and things described. The first edition of the "Compleat Angler" has just brought $2,025 in a London auction room.

Books for Hearty Boys.

Within a few months two useful books for boys have been published. One of these was "Rob and His Gun," by W. A. Linn (Charles Scribner's Sons), and the other "Trapper Jim," by Edwyn Sandys (the Macmillan company). The prime object of each book was to teach the young American how to shoot a gun, what to shoot with it, and when to shoot it. The average city boy knows little or nothing of country life, and still less of life in the woods, where a gun is a handy thing to have. These books are not for the namby-pamby, the pampered boys who are brought up to abhor sports of any kind, and who look on the killing of a duck, or a deer, or even a bear, as the anti-imperialist looks upon the warfare in the Philippines. They are for the hearty, healthy, normal American lad, the son of a father with the same qualities. They not only instruct him in the mechanism and use of firearms, but they teach him also what to shoot, and the season, both from an ethical and legal point, when it is proper that it may be shot. They teach him something of the joys of the chase, the exhilaration of the hunt, and a great deal about the habits of game birds and animals which every one, even the city dweller, should know.

No one who has not stood knee deep in the trout stream with every nerve in action and every drop of blood tingling, or who has not lain gun in hand behind the marsh grass in duck time, can guess at the excitement and pleasures these things mean to the sportsman. There are at least two men of prominence who would approve of these books most heartily. One is president and the other an ex-president of the United States.

Clipping Bureaus and Their Founder.

Henry Romeike is dead. You may not know him, but that must be because your name never got into print in connection with a book, a magazine article, a lecture, a theatrical appearance, a political nomination, a patent, or almost anything else. Romeike was, we believe, the father of the clipping bureau industry in the United States, if not in the world. At one time he had a monopoly of it; now there are hundreds in the business. In his capacity of keeper-track-of-things he was in communication with all the writers of the country. Every newspaper mention of an author was clipped out and sent to him for so much a year. For those who wished to keep a record of their work and the comments it excited his function had some value, but the business grew so that much had to be intrusted to not too intelligent clerks. For instance, the publishers of an edition of Milton received a circular addressed to John Milton, in their care, offering to furnish Mr. Milton with all the press comments on his new work. The same advantages were offered to Samuel Johnson in regard to his recently published book, "Rasselas." But in spite of these blunders the clipping bureau has its uses.

A London cablegram says: "Beatrice Harraden is writing a comedy about which she has been meditating a long time." The dramatist who meditates is lost.

Sir M. E. G. Duff's "Out of the Past."

By JEANNETTE L. GILDER,
Editor of The Critic.

SIR MOUNTSTUART E. GRANT DUFF has given us two more volumes of his recollections, which appear more or less in the form of biographical essays. "OUT OF THE PAST," the book is called, and Messrs. E. P. Dutton & Co. are the American publishers. His previous book, "Notes from a Diary," was a little more intimate than this, but not any more interesting or valuable as records of his contemporaries.

There is no more interesting chapter in the book than the one on Empress Frederick, a woman and an empress whom he much admired. In addition to the influence which she shared with so many of her own age, there came into her life, through her father, a stream of German thought. The future empress imbibed this stream at every pore, and long before her marriage it became the most natural thing in the world that all the best minds in Germany should begin to hope that she might become the wife of the heir to the Prussian throne.

Sir Mountstuart mentions a curious anecdote which shows what some of them were thinking at this time. The queen of Prussia happened to be staying in London when Baron Bunsen went to pay his respects to her. He was ushered into a room on the table of which lay a great many engravings sent for her majesty's inspection. As he looked over these he perceived a portrait of the crown prince of Prussia and one of the princess royal of England lying amongst them. He moved these two so that they just covered a French engraving of the battle of Waterloo, allowing nothing to be visible except the name by which it is known to our neighbors, "La Belle Alliance." When the queen came in her eye fell upon the table; she and her visitor exchanged glances, which told everything, but nothing was put into words for some time afterwards.

The Empress Frederick more than any others of her family appreciated the great achievements of Germany in literature and science, as well as the steady intellectual striving. It was not, however, with the intellectual striving that she was brought most into contact.

To quote directly from Sir Mountstuart:

"Wiser or better objects than those she set herself to accomplish could not be imagined, but from the earliest day the dice were loaded against her. In the first thirteen years of her married life no less than three wars were waged by Germany, in all of which, in my judgment, Germany was right. In the first, the war of the Elbe duchies, the feelings of the vast majority of Englishmen were most vehemently excited in favor of Denmark and against Germany. We, who took the opposite view in the house of commons, were a mere handful. In the case of the second there was no strong public feeling in favor of Austria, but London society was thoroughly persuaded that she would remain victor in the contest. In the case of the third war opinion was much more divided, but still Germany had many enemies amongst us. We should remember these facts when we read the frantic outpourings of the German press against Great Britain. They are, of course, much worse than anything for which we have to reproach ourselves, but then we must remember that the average German, in spite of his intellectual training, belong to a distinctly lower type of civilization than the Englishman."

This sketch of the Empress Frederick is short, but it is appreciative and made by one who understood the situation.

Sir Mountstuart E. Grant Duff writes with an easy pen. He has been a man of affairs all his life, and in England men of affairs are apt to be writers. He is no exception to the rule. His book is in two volumes, the second one being a little more personal than the other, though neither, as I said before, has as much of the personal element as the Diary.

When Messrs. Harper & Bros. arranged with Mr. J. J. Bell ot publish his "Wee Macgreegor" in this country they were doing what many people thought a foolish thing. They were paying a man a price for an uncopyrighted book which they had hardly got on the market before a dozen pirated editions cropped up. But they knew what they were about. They saw how tremendously popular the little book was in England, how it had sold up into the hundred thousands, at a shilling a volume, to be sure, and they not only (being the first in the market) got a fair sale for it at $1, having bound it in cloth and printed it in good style, but they cultivated the friendship of the author, and now they have his next book, which you may be quite sure is thoroughly copyrighted. There are times when virtue is something more than its own reward. This is one of them.

There has been a good deal of competition in the publishing world to get "The One Woman," the forthcoming novel by Mr. Thomas Dixon, whose "The Leopard's Spots" reached in the course of a few months a circulation of over 100,000 copies. The new book has finally gone to his original publishers, Messrs. Doubleday, Page & Co., who, I imagine, offered him as good terms for it as any one else could offer, for they knew better than any one else could know the value of Mr. Dixon's worth as an author. They wanted "The One Woman" before they saw it (should I say her?), but after they read the manuscript they were keener for the book than ever before, and, I understand, paid Mr. Dixon unusual terms.

Once make a success in the world of books and you may smile at fate. With "When Lady Peggy Goes to Town" Miss Frances Aymar Mathews jumped into the ranks of successful authors. She had always made money out of her writings, but had never been one of the popular successes till the publication of that book. She had also written plays, but her greatest success was "Pretty Peggy," which was instantly followed by a dramatization of "Lady Peggy." Both of these are successful and will run through several seasons. Miss Mathews has her plans now laid out for the next four years for plays and novels. Every minute of her time is taken up. If you want her to write you a novel or a play you will have to wait until 1905 or 1906.

Miss Frances Powell, who wrote that thrilling romance, "The House on the Hudson," is not really Miss Frances Powell, but is some one else who prefers to use that pen name rather than her own. "The House on the Hudson" is, I believe, her first book, and it has made an instant success. It is a melodrama, but then who cares as long as it is interesting and holds the attention from chapter to chapter. I find it is a little overdrawn, but melodramas usually are. I also find it unpleasant in spots, but that does not detract from its popularity as a story. I don't like negro blood used as an ingredient in the making of fiction. Mr. Dixon used it in "The Leopard's Spots," but he wrote that book for a purpose. It was the first novel of any importance, or certainly the first to attract any attention, written from the southern point of view, and he did not put in the drop of colored blood for sensation but to illustrate a point as it could be illustrated in no other way.

Every year the publishing season runs further and further into the summer. When I first began writing notices of books and mingling with the publishing trade, few books were published after the first of May. Now, with the exception of October and November, there are almost as many books published in May, June, and July as at any other time of the year. I see some important novels announced for August. I don't know what this change means, except that the craze for novel reading exists over the entire year, and is perhaps at its height in midsummer. Novels are about the only books that are published in the "dog days," and about the only books that are read then.

According to one publisher, novels are about the only books that are read at any time. He is reported to have told an author, who brought him the biography of a famous American, that he would take it, but that he would not guarantee to sell more than 5,000 or 6,000 copies, "but," said he, "if you will turn it into a novel, making your statesman into a hero of romance, I will sell 50,000." He was better than his word; he sold 75,000.

Whigham's "Persian Question."

Has Great Britain Lost Prestige?

By GEORGE C. HOWLAND,
Professor of Romance Languages, University of Chicago.

MR. H. J. WHIGHAM, who is personally well known to many Chicagoans, has abandoned bunkers and brassies and caddies and the other diversions of his exile in America, for the even more characteristically British sport of writing a book to show how his government blunders. He, too, sees Russians in the air. This time they are preparing to descend upon the Persian gulf in search of warm water. "THE PERSIAN PROBLEM" (imported by Charles Scribner's Sons) is a collection of the letters written by Mr. Whigham for the London Morning Post, carefully revised by the author.

The value of Mr. Whigham's book lies greatly in his habit of taking nothing for granted. Instead of discussing the reasons for decline of British trade in the Persian gulf, he first inquires whether there has been any such decline, and maintains the negative. Similarly the reports of an increase in Russian trade with Persia are, in Mr. Whigham's opinion, exaggerated. The fact appears to him be that "it suits M. Witte to make us believe that we are in fact losing ground rapidly in the trade of northern Persia, knowing perfectly well that if that belief becomes a settled point of view the whole campaign is practically finished. The Russian government has the wisdom to see that, once our commercial interest in Persia is gone, the British public will never raise a finger to prevent Russia following up her economic victory by a political conquest."

The overland route to Persia by projected Russian or German railroads is not a serious menace to British trade, because the water route will always be the cheaper. We, in Chicago, are in a position to realize that, when goods are sent from the Atlantic seaboard to Europe for less money than is required to bring them by rail a third the distance.

The languid interest felt by an American in British commercial problems, even when intensified by a consciousness of their intimate relation with political problems in which his own country may be involved, would not be enough to carry him through Mr. Whigham's book if it were not for the spell of the orient. Sir William Jones, breathing in the spice laden air that came from the unseen land, took pleasure in the thought that Arabia lay behind him, India before him, Persia to the left, as he sailed on into the east. The comical old lady who felt a charm in the sweet word "Mesopotamia" was not different from the rest of us. Milton's words, "The wealth of Ormuz and of Ind" have a vaguely rich and splendid sound. So when Mr. Whigham tells of the crumbling fortress of Ormuz, when he goes to Bagdad, and Bassorah, and Babylon, when he visits the islands of the pearl fishers, we are on enchanted ground. But our confidence is not abused. The author actually has something to say.

The best book on Persia is the one written some fourteen years ago by the present viceroy of India. Mr. Whigham's book is, in a sense, a supplement to that, adding other regions and more recent information. In some matters he corrects Lord Curzon's statements, but is not himself infallible. For instance, in spite of his residence in America, he seems never to have heard of the explorations in Assyria carried on by American universities, but mentions the Germans as the only workers in that field.

Incidental to a discussion of trade routes a consideration of some of the leading Persian industries is in place. The chapter on Persian carpets is perhaps the most interesting thing under that head. The reason why rugs should be imported from Persia when material, design, and skill are better in England is simply stated: It is the cost of labor. A rug that can be sold for $60 in London would cost $600 if made by British workmen. It has taken the labor of four or five women for a year.

To sum up, Mr. Whigham's book is of especial interest to the student of international politics, but contains much that would be of interest to any one.

"BELGIUM AND THE BELGIANS," by Cyril Scudamore (E. P. Dutton & Co.), is not a guide book. It is not a record of personal experiences interesting chiefly to the author. It is a well ordered stock of information such as a man thoroughly acquainted with his own country might produce for the benefit of an intelligent foreigner—a great mass of facts, which are preserved from tediousness by the agreeable voice, the gesture, the personal charm of the narrator. There is a slender thread of travel on which are strung Antwerp, Brussels, Bruges, and the other cities whose names are so familiar that we are hardly aware of our real ignorance of them. Some forty illustrations make the casual turner of the pages pause and read here and there. But the book contains much that pictures cannot aid in presenting. The chapters on the Belgian military system, religious bodies in Belgium, political parties in Belgium, and Belgium folk lore are all important. The most valuable thing in the book, however, though it occupies comparatively few pages, is the chapter on "How Belgium Is Educated."

The first school of higher commercial education established in Europe is the Superior Institute of Commerce at Antwerp, dating from 1853. The course of study, as given by Mr. Scudamore, seems admirably adapted to its purpose, and one may well believe his statement that a large proportion of the graduates of the institute are among the leaders of the commercial world. There is no doubt that a commercial high school in the city of Chicago would in the future benefit the city as much as it would immediately benefit the fortunate students.

One defect in Mr. Scudamore's book is its belated publication. Apparently written about three years ago, it does not in every case give the present state of things. Not to speak of matters political or commercial which have moved on since May, 1900, the date of the latest footnote, we find no mention in the chapter on "The Belgian Abroad" of the interesting fact that since March, 1900, and in part since 1898, the Persian custom houses have been in Belgian control. It is inexcusable to date a book 1903 when it is really between three and four years old, and especially when its value in its present condition makes it worth bringing up to date.

The early history of Texas is but little known even to citizens of that state. Prof. George P. Garrison of the University of Texas has written for the American Commonwealths series (Houghton, Mifflin & Co.) a volume called "TEXAS, A CONTEST OF CIVILIZATIONS." The conflicting civilizations are, first, European and Indian; second, Spanish and French; third, Anglo-American and Mexican; and then follows the development and history of the state as a member of the American union.

It is interesting to note that Nuevas Filipinas or New Philippines was the first official designation of the region afterwards known as Texas. Now we have both the new and the old Philippines, but only New Mexico as yet.

The narrative is so greatly condensed that the volume cannot rank with our classic American histories as a work of art, but it is a convenient manual of the history of our largest commonwealth. There seems to be material here for a Prescott, if there is one living, to expand into a thrilling story. The author is to be congratulated on the skill with which the condensation is here accomplished.

Mr. Frank Jesup Scott has done a work possible only to one who adds to great enthusiasm for a subject financial independence. His "PORTRAITURES OF JULIUS CÆSAR" (Longmans, Green & Co.) is a study of all the extant busts or statues of Julius Cæsar, with photographic reproductions of the more important likenesses. That it was a labor of love is proved not only by the thoroughness of the work itself but by the introductory "Brief of Cæsar's Life." This "brief" is a defense of the character of Cæsar and of his conduct in the decisive moments of his life. It is a sufficient explanation of curiosity concerning the personal appearance of the man whom Mommsen is quoted as calling the perfect man.

The conclusion of the study is that no statue is certainly known to be from life. There is great diversity among the existing representations of Cæsar. Some, however, while differing in the qualities they choose to emphasize—strength in one, serenity in another, military genius in a third—are enough like each other and like our idea of Cæsar for us to be reasonably sure that they are genuine. Of these the best is in the Chiaramonti gallery of the vatican palace. The eighty-six pictures, of which thirty-seven are full page photographs, aid us materially in following the author's criticisms. The likeness on a number of coins are given, but they are more or less conventional and defaced as well.

It is a pity that the book contains many errata, especially in the Italian and Spanish names, as "Bibliotheka," "Archiologico," "Alemada," "Guilio Cæsare," "Ludivisi," and "Racolta." These are not likely to embarrass any one, as the correction is obvious.

BOOK GOSSIP IN LONDON.

Output in British Metropolis Increased by Large Number of Novels by American Writers.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

[Copyright: 1903: By the New York Herald.]

LONDON, June 5.—Now that booksellers have got their reports made up for the last month it would appear it has been a fitful period, though they claim their sales have been quite up to the normal times of comparative briskness, having alternated considerably with those periods in which trade has been slack. The output, however, has been greatly accentuated by increasingly large percentage of works by American authors which now reach the English market. The six shillings novel has been fairly prolific. It has, as usual, formed the most important item of business. Among the most successful of recent issues over here have been "The Conflict," "The Stay at Homes," "The Hebrew Typhon," and "Pigs in Clover."

Referring to the new movement which was mentioned last week for the improvement and dispersal of literature in this country, the Bookshops company has now established itself at 34 Norfolk street, Strand. Writing from there, Frederick Whelen says:

"The new bookshops will endeavor to provide that stimulus for readers which the German system has proved so useful in Germany. In a lecture delivered by William Heinemann before the Associated Booksellers of Great Britain, he said the local bookseller in Germany, particularly in the smaller towns, has an establishment which every educated person in the place visits from time to time. On the arrival of the Leipsic parcel he inspects the newest publications. He sees them within a few days of their issuing from the publishers and he is able to handle them."

The founders of the new enterprise believe there is no reason why the same system should not be successful in England to the mutual advantage of authors and readers.

Incidentally, writing of publishers, a movement is on foot to found a Pepys club after the fashion of sundry other clubs devoted to the memory of literary men. There is, for example, an Omar Khayyam club. There is a Johnson club. It is understood that the Pepys club will be characterized by gayety and song. If so, the idea undoubtedly would be popular. H. B. Wheatley, who edited a complete edition of Pepys in nine volumes, is believed to be the originator of the project.

Satisfactory accounts are at hand of the health of Herbert Spencer. He is now over 83 years of age and lives in retirement at Brighton. It is more than forty years since he began work on his synthetic philosophy, which he has lived to see completed. At one time he had bad health and suffered greatly from insomnia, but in recent times there have been better reports of him. His favorite recreation used to be billiards, which he once played a great deal at the Savile club. He still takes a deep interest in the game, but his chief recreation now is watching it.

The Emerson centenary naturally is causing a big boom in Emersonia of various descriptions. In many magazines opinions, valuable and otherwise, have been published as to the position and significance of Emerson today. Another reminder of this centenary is coming from John Albee. In remembrance of Emerson a volume of appreciation shortly will be published. It will indicate the influence of Emerson and his effects upon the thoughtful young men of his time.

Lessons in Hygiene.

William O. Krohn of this city has written "Graded Lessons in Hygiene" (D. Appleton & Co.). The keynote of the book is health, and the author presents in simple language for children a knowledge of the conditions which tend to preserve and strengthen the body. While the facts of anatomy and physiology in the book have been made secondary to hygiene, yet they embrace the results of the latest investigations in these departments of research and are ample for a clear understanding of the subject. There are many illustrations, and the book seems eminently adapted for the designed purpose.

Study of Textile Design.

Aldred F. Barker, head of the department of textile industries of the Bradford (England) Municipal Technical college, has written "An Introduction to the Study of Textile Design" (E. P. Dutton & Co.), a technical work on the subject of weaving. The information which he imparts is that which he thinks a student should thoroughly master during the first two years at a textile school. There are hundreds of illustrations and diagrams of the standard weaves, twills, etc., and pictures of the machinery. A series of examination papers of great educational value is given in an appendix.

Howells' "Questionable Shapes"

A Pleasing Return to His Old Manner.

By ELIA W. PEATTIE.

AFTER "The Kentons," Mr. Howells' "QUESTIONABLE SHAPES" was a relief—and something more. Perhaps, with certain of his old friends, it even amounted to a reconciliation. Some hint of ideality lent to the lives of the characters in this latest book such a charm as each of us find in life. In "The Kentons," it must be confessed, there seemed no reason why any one of the persons should have continued an existence so lacking in dreams, fine hopes, and amenities. But in his new book, something of his oldtime grace has returned to Mr. Howells. He has remembered, by happy chance, that life is not all frivolities and trifles. There are three stories, and each one is pervaded with an enchanting delicacy of mystery. Though all of the themes are psychological—such themes as, by a rough calculation, come under the head of "ghost stories"—not one is repulsive, or morbid. They have about them the qualities of impalpability, evasiveness, and spirituality which belong to the new psychological understanding—which are part and parcel of our latter day spirituality.

Moreover, the stories are alive with ideas. At almost every page Mr. Howells says something which one would fain debate with him, or upon the conception of which one is eager to congratulate him.

Here, for example, is one of the points upon which one would like to disagree with him. He speaks of "That comparative indifference to death in the old, to whom it is so much nearer than to the young. . . . They may not care so much because they have no longer the strength—the muscular strength—for caring. They are too tired to care as they used."

I am not able to agree with Mr. Howells in this observation. I have, on the contrary, noticed a reckless, often a gallant disregard of life in the young. It is always the young who are eager for war, though they must, of course, be aware of its dangers. The very young often commit suicide. It is the young who sacrifice their lives to save others. They have not, for all their expectancy, learned to attach so much importance to life as have the old. And they are more generous with it and less insistent upon the continuance of their own personalities. They may even recognize a sacrificial death as a "chance" and take it proudly, quite content with swift and heroic obliteration.

The old have not such imaginative powers or such capacity for heroism, as a general thing. I have known them to show almost abject fear of death, though they were forever expressing a desire to die. It has sometimes seemed to me that as every other avenue for their egotism had been closed to them, they insisted upon making much of this one—the avenue of their escape. They occasionally die peacefully, but not often gallantly, and they cling to the days which afford them so much more time for their accustomed occupations. They have come to dread change.

If there is any one living who can present in its small yet essential details the character of the cultivated, thoroughly civilized man, that writer is Mr. Howells. The fashion in which he presents the gentleman's code, and in which he causes any transgression of it to assume the proportions of a crime in the estimation of the offender is the perfection of literary adroitness. With his women, it is unnecessary to say, he is not so skilled. There are, however, in this book two women who are not rhetoring—which is a good thing for Mr. Howells' admirers to think upon. Rosalie Hernshaw, the heroine of the first story in the book, "His Apparition," is one of the most charming women Mr. Howells has ever created—piquant, fearless, truthful, magnanimous, with the clean, high code of a true hearted gentlewoman. How many silly, hair splitting, niggering female creatures did I forgive Mr. Howells when I became acquainted with this excellent girl! Marion Alderling, the heroine of the last story, "Though One Rose from the Dead," is lovable, too, and most convincing—a silent, beautiful woman, with red hair, a milk white skin, a love of occult argument, and an overhearty appetite. The curious story of her life and death is told with more of sympathy and admiration than Mr. Howells commonly permits himself. As for the men, there is not a one of them who is not believable, interesting, and well personified. (Harper & Bros., New York.)

"THE LOG OF A COWBOY" comes near being a "corking" piece of work. It is written—so the title page says—by Andy Adams. But there is something the matter, though I am not quite astute enough to find out what it is. Perhaps, as is the case with the books of McCutcheon, they purport to be written by the author, but are not. I imagine that as in Mr. McCutcheon's case, the ideas were furnished by the ostensible author and the style and grammar by some one else. The verbiage of this book has nothing to do with the case, as Mr. Gilbert would have said. It is stilted, bookish, and distinctly a detriment to fine stories of the long trail, the camp, and the roundup. If Houghton, Mifflin & Co. considered it necessary for these brisk and heartening tales of the brave boys of the sombrero and the lariat to be retold by some one with an academic education, then that some one should have been a person who had smelt sagebrush, known the thunder of the stampede, and felt the smart of the alkali dust. Of course, it will be quite easy for the publishers to say that I am wrong, and perhaps I am. But such sentences as, "Nothing daunted by this rebuff, my father argued the point at some length, when the ferryman relented so far as to inform him that ten miles higher up, the river was fordable," seems to have something out of key to it in the log of a cowboy. Especially since the cowboy was a poor mountain white, who, having more virility than belongs to his kind, went thrashing off to see the world.

All this solemnity and overpropriety of phrase is interspersed with fine stories and stirring incidents. These have the true western touch. The men seem alive. Their odyssey is the history of the west. It is impossible, in spite of all, not to enjoy the book. But one would a "heap ruther" have heard Andy Adams telling the stories around a campfire. It doesn't seem to be too late yet. Perhaps a few dozen of us might arrange for such a thing. I am convinced it would be worth while—and I'll gather the wood for the fire.

"THE SAMARITANS," by J. A. Steuart, is far from being a negligible novel. It is written by a young Scotsman of wide experience—a Highlander who knows Scottish banking, American journalism, and cosmopolitan benevolence. He has not written his book idly, but with the earnest desire to make plain to a casual world the condition of the most miserable of human beings, the dwellers in the slums of the great cities. When Mr. Steuart is eloquent, it is in the descriptions of these nether retreats of the wretched, or in the delineation of the "submerged" themselves. True pathos, some humor, a grim realism which never, however, becomes offensive, mark his descriptions of London's terrible east end. It is in these portions of the novel, too, that the author's originality is most clearly shown.

In some particulars the work is hackneyed. The remorseless rack renter Herstein is too conventional a type of the Jew; Mrs. Cadwallader Roy and her brother, Asaph, are equally conventional and impossible Americans. Miry of the slums, with the gleam of womanhood stirring in her breast, is too strong a reminder of poor Nancy Sykes; and the infant martyr, little Peterj'n, and the equally pathetic victim of the world's cruelty, the parson Emmet, also seem like old friends. Mr. Steuart has, indeed, followed beaten paths, but what makes his book worth the reading is the up to date description of the most unspeakably wicked spot on earth, the slums of London, and the fine palpable desire of the man to awaken in the hearts of the indifferent a consciousness of their moral responsibility toward society's outcasts.

The Jew, Herstein, is the dominating character. He has climbed from poverty and neglect to a position of eminence in the London banking world and in society. He makes his millions out of the pestiferous tenements, treating his tenants with fiendish cruelty, but ashamed of his connection with a business so unsavory, poses before his Gentile friends as a banker pure and simple. The manner in which these friends unconsciously circumvent him and the exposure of his true character compose whatever of plot there may be in the book. The affection of the reader is invited to center upon little Peterj'n, a 5 year old victim of darkest London, and upon Emmet the Irish pastor, and Dalrymple, a Scotch dissenting minister who also devotes his life to "the least of these."

The story has no actual love interest, but, notwithstanding this fact, it is likely to enjoy much popularity. And not the least reason for this will be the familiar quality of the characters. The man who says a new thing, who makes a new joke, or ventures on a new diagnosis of national traits, must expect to suffer neglect. But the man who produces ideas and types already familiar, pays the public a subtle compliment, for which it frankly shows its gratitude.

Of course the British idea of the American never ceases to amaze. It is seldom varied. It consists of absurd patrynomics, a tendency to exclaim "say" and to employ the expression "I guess," and a general cheapness of social quality, combined with a good deal of the sterling and efficient in intellectual and moral matters. In this, as in other things, Mr. Steuart has followed set literary models, although he avows a frank admiration for "a people beyond all example lithe, nimble minded, electric nerved, original, daring, energetic, successful."

The book is the work of a man full of his subject, and determined to regard his ability to write as an opportunity to serve his kind. Such books carry within them their own justification, even in this day of the writing of countless volumes. ELIA W. PEATTIE.

ANOTHER ELIZABETH BOOK.

But It Is Not by the One Who Wrote the Visits.

To the list of "Elizabeth" books one more is added, again the product of an anonymous hand. "Elisabeth's Children" (John Lane) is evidently the work of another than she who wrote the "visits." Indeed, it has been recorded that Mrs. Elinor Glyn, whose name appears on the title pages of the works last mentioned, denies the soft impeachment of responsibility in the present case and that with some asperity, too. As to the identity of the author there is small concern, for it is with the book that we have to deal.

In effect it is a novel, though the love tale is kept well in the background until the denouement permits the lovers to step down to the middle stage and bow in happy acknowledgment of the presumably loud acclaim of the audience. But the heart interest is a trifling issue, at least in this instance.

To the spacious country house of a staid English bachelor came three little lads, sons of an old flame who has contracted an international alliance. Temperamentally, the youngsters are Gallic, having inherited the mercurial characteristics of their French father. Despite the dutiful attendance of a governess who accompanies them the burden of their care falls upon the shoulders of their temporary guardian, and his days are made interesting through their ingenious attempts at his entertainment. For themselves the bachelor's home is joy pure and unalloyed, and most of the narrative is taken up with the recountal of their pranks and mishaps. In the main there is a trifle too much of it, tending to lessen the interest of the reader.

The little chaps speak a sort of macaronic dialect, and their patter is alluring. In the elder lad the character has been the least bit overdone, in allotting to him an owlish wisdom beyond his years. The younger lads are natural, quite as adequate an interpretation of child life as may be found elsewhere. All lend their efforts to the furtherance of the love affair, and they really deserve thanks for the part they play in aiding their suffering host in his own romance.

CHARMING LOVE STORY.

"The Land of Joy," a Delightful Variant on the Old Theme.

Ralph Henry Barbour, who for a number of years hid his identity under the pen name of Richard Stillman Powell, or something like that, when he was writing short stories for the Smart Set and other publications, is the author of the most charming American love story which it has been the lucky lot of this reviewer to read in many a day. It is called "THE LAND OF JOY," and if you cannot afford to buy it, then borrow it, or steal it, and give it to the judge to read. It will procure your acquittal.

The chief reason for the unalloyed charm of the book, aside, of course, from the author's delightful art, probably is based on the fact that the lovemaking is all between two couples, no individual of the quartet being over 24 years of age. They are all young, healthy, pure minded, and unsophisticated Americans indulging in passion from elemental causes in an elemental and elementary way. There is no problem in the book except the problem of pure, first love. The atmosphere is uncharged with the slightest taint of anything inimical to proper living or proper thinking, and you simply watch the mating of creatures as free and as innocent as the birds of the air, and quite as frank and ingenuous.

The two men in the case are in Harvard, the chief hero a rich senior, North by name and habitation; the second, a Virginia junior, called Ryerson. How these two quite dissimilar persons are brought together, how each falls in love, and how their love course runs is told most charmingly in the book. There never was a prettier or more nearly original variant of the old, old story than this.

Nor were there ever more charming and piquant love scenes written than those between John and Margaret and Phillip and Betty. The girls are quite as dissimilar as the men, and both are bewitching. The dialogue in the book has all the crispness of the dramatic form without any of the artificiality of the play. The scenery is described in vivid touches, and the narrative flows smoothly at all times.

A FEMALE PIRATE.

A Racy Dish, Well Seasoned, Set by Helen Milecete.

Though the practice of piracy upon the high seas be strictly prohibited, Helen Milecete undertakes to demonstrate that buccaneering is not yet to be classed among the lost arts. Her novel, "A DETACHED PIRATE" (Little, Brown & Co.), proves most conclusively that a certain modern feminine type is a creature well nigh as fearsome as the bloodthirsty gentlemen of the Spanish main, of whom we may read in the quaint old writings of John Esquemeling. To describe it as milk for babies were rash, indeed, for rather should it be placed upon the index expurgatorius as concerns the very wrong. Not that it is immoral or indecent, for, being the work of an estimable young woman, it could not well be either. But it is a racy dish, spiced and seasoned with fiery condiments, flavored strongly with the risque.

Gay Vandeleur, whose first name is an index of her temperament, unfolds her own romances in a series of letters. To choose the epistolary form of architecture for a novel usually results in dullness, or at least an occasional cessation of interest; but Miss Milecete has been able to eliminate the accustomed defects of this form. In rapid fire missives she tells the only person who remains to her in steadfast friendship the events of her checkered career. Freed in the English divorce courts, she hies herself to Halifax—literally, though the figurative application be not inept. Scarcely has her ship left its moorings when her depredations begin. At her feet falls a dignified old general, who is a person of much importance in Nova Scotia; and a younger and more sophisticated male carves on a campaign of insidious siege with brazen effrontery. On land the contest wages vigorously; the visitor is accepted, while the lure set by the rake narrowly misses liming the feet of the bird.

At this interesting stage of the game, Gay's late husband turns up in Halifax. Drawn together by the lodestone of chance—kismet, perhaps—the twain seem in imminent possibility of reconciliation. But the nasty fellow whose craft has failed sets up a cry of scandal; the murder is out, and society ostentatiously drops the erstwhile "miss" who has queened it among them. With spirits at lowest ebb, Gay goes back over the old trail of the waters, her money exhausted, and nothing in sight. She drops into a living as teacher in a riding school, where she supplements instruction in the noble art of equestrianism with her manipulative skill, which enables her to pick up a bit on the side, when she induces callow youths to purchase her employer's horseflesh. In this delectable employment her husband finds her, allows that he desires her to be reunited to him, and so they are once more joined together. As a salve to conscience, the pirate explains that her divorce was due to a bit of foolery in masquerading in masculine garb—really, there was no co-respondent, or anything of that horrid sort.

Aside from general unfitness for the mind of youth, the book is markedly clever. The author delivers herself of her opinions without a trace of embarrassment. Her philosophy is sparkling, in spite of its frequent triteness and inversions of the truth. For reading in the heated term, it furnishes all that can be desired in the way of entertainment.

JOLLY STORY FOR BOYS.

Mr. Caster Writes a Stirring Tale of Adventure.

Books for boys are curious things. Year after year a goodly crop comes forth, but after the harvest has been garnered there is mighty little wheat among the chaff. Of course, the same thing is truly to be said of books for grownups. In the appeal to more mature minds there are fewer hampering influences, and, though naturally the number of volumes produced for the edification of adults far exceeds the output of juveniles, the proportion of successes is in inverse ratio. A good boys' tale is the event of an epoch, not the regularly recurring incident of successive seasons.

Andrew Caster appears as a stranger in the literature of youth. With "PEARL ISLAND" (Harper & Bros.) he makes his initial bow to a legion of healthy lads, who will cherish his name as that of a man who has told a stirring tale of hardy fellows like themselves. He does not trouble himself or his red cheeked readers with moral homilies, nor does he bother with elaborate delineations of character. A wise entertainer is Mr. Caster. "Character to the boy," said Stevenson, speaking of his first masterpiece, "is a sealed book." More than a half truth is comprehended in his words.

Belonging to the order of "Robinson Crusoe," the tale is of the myriad adventures of two boys who are marooned by shipwreck on a marvelous island in the Indian ocean. Fortunately, the comfortable resources of the well stocked vessel are available, the accommodating elements casting the craft up high and dry upon an accessible part of the island. Day after day passes rapidly, filled with kaleidoscopic experiences. Without hindering the movement of the story, interesting descriptions of the strange animal and vegetable life of the place are cleverly worked in, and some knowledge accrues in the pursuit of entertainment. Tigers, sharks, serpents, Malay pirates, and hordes of other more or less terrifying living things keep the boys busy, and to cap the climax, a store of rich pearls is found, permitting the remainder of their happy lives to be spent in the joys of wealth. Like all the shipwrecked people of whom we read in books, they escape from their enforced imprisonment—if so disagreeable a term may be applied to a land of pure delight—and return to the life of crumpets and tea.

A jolly good story is Mr. Caster's, and it is to be hoped that he will not desert his eager young readers for the illusive rewards of tales of the heart. Florence Scovel Shinn keeps pace with the movement of the text with her drawings, and there is an impressive map or two, adding immensely to the effect of sincerity.

DECADENCE OF SOCIETY.

It Is Illustrated in Alice Duer Miller's New Novel.

Never has the decadence of New York society been better illustrated than in "THE MODERN OBSTACLE," by Alice Duer Miller (Charles Scribner's Sons). Brilliant in the sense of highly polished veneer or gleaming varnish thickly spread over decaying material, it is insincere, unimpressive, unwholesome, almost nauseating. If it be "thoroughly modern," then let us revert to medievalism.

Pauline Gale, a girl of unimpeachable position, superficial talent for epigram, and, of course, surpassingly beautiful, is an equivocal heroine. Love to her is a secondary element, money being the chief requisite to happiness. Warming to Rapier, a clever musician, who hovers about the flame in the blind flutterings of fascination, she gives herself over to the semblance of passion for the moment. Before the embers kindle into a blaze her grandmother, a charming old pirate, commands the presumptuous suitor begone. Meekly he slips out of sight. Meanwhile an insipid gentleman vapidly pursues the game, with some useful millions as weapons of the chase. So far as lovemaking is concerned, his part is anything but the quest of the huntsman. To him love is not even a diversion. But with a bird willing to enter none but a gilt encrusted cage and a Machiavellian old lady holding a seat in the game the result is inevitable.

About the time when the social schedule calls for the wedding of Pauline and her prize, Rapier has the bad taste to turn up. Needless to say, his coming is most inopportune. With his return the reader ceases to tolerate the heroine as a decent person, for she steps from drawing room to hall, from the listless peck of her fiancé's lips to revel in passion in the arms of the inconvenient musician.

Next day the vultures pounce upon a pretty tidbit of scandal. Rapier tells a fanciful yarn of a visit to a specialist—six months to live—has $60,000 in his pocket—marry him, to live in love and luxury for six months—and then, with checks going to protest, his passing will clear the way to dashing widowhood and its attendant joys. They are married and drift away on a yacht, with the lovely Pauline presumably happy in her short lived tie.

Rapier has secured the assent of the lovable grandmother to his plan, after assuring her that he really is as sound as the Lord can make a man; and she takes him at his word when he agrees to die self-assisted at the appointed moment. As time passes her knees tremble and she tells the girl. Ah! how Pauline gratulates herself in the thought that Rapier really has not to die—then she talks over the matter with him as if it were the cut of a coat. Strangely enough, she makes the discovery that really she would suffer should he keep his word. Rapier lives on.

Six months last not forever, and when the yacht lands the precious pair at New York Rapier goes back to South America to make a new fortune. He makes it. That is, a friend leaves it to him, and immediately the musician slips off the coil. Pauline, the entrancing is left to other conquests, equipped with the spoils of the easily surmounted obstacle.

Rather let us read of the men and women who work with their hands, who may be guiltless of epigram and unsmoothed by meretricious gloss, for these are of ourselves.

MEXICO IN ROMANCE.

Francis Newton Thorpe Writes of the Days of Cortez.

Among the historians there seems to be a growing tendency to dabble in fiction. Constant research will not invariably deaden the power to construct romance. Repeatedly it has been averred that to a serious mind there is relaxation in writing in the lighter vein, and when one recalls the number of thinkers and investigators who have written novels the truth of this assertion is apparent.

Best known in the literary world as a writer on United States constitutional history, Francis Newton Thorpe now enters the lists as a novelist. Possessing the knack of choosing an attractive title, he calls his tale "THE SPOILS OF EMPIRE." Mexico, in the pagan days of Montezuma II., is the scene, though the real story begins and ends in the old world.

Sailing from Spain with Cortez, in the hope of making his fortune in the golconda of the golden west, Juan Estoval reaches the splendid superstitious court of Mexico in the nick of time. To satisfy the ancient traditions of the Aztecs, the cruel emperor is about to sacrifice the flower of his bosom, that the gods may be appeased. In the eruption of a volcano Montezuma believed he saw a signal of the destruction of his empire. Lovely Dorothea went unhesitatingly to the altar, buoyed up by the superstition of her race, ready to die as the savior of her father's people. But the dashing Juan intervenes, proclaiming himself as the messenger of the true God. Stopping the sacrifice, Montezuma receives the stranger into the royal favor.

With this melodramatic opening the story begins. Advancing rapidly, the tale is absorbingly interesting in its succession of incidents. Conspiracies, bloodshed, and battle, religious struggles, all these are present, tempered with the sweetness of the heart interest, which is in turn overwhelmed with the consuming greed for riches. The horrible cruelties of Cortez and his followers in the conquest pale into insignificence beside the fiendish ingenuities of the inquisition, and the wealth of history furnishes a rich setting for the tale. Mr. Thorpe's Mexico is the country depicted by Prescott; his Aztecs and their customs are true to the buried centuries, though their drawing is that of romance.

Frank B. Masters illustrates the book, which is published by Little, Brown & Co.

GOOD LITTLE NOVELS.

Miniature Romances by Owen Wister and F. Marion Crawford.

The Macmillan company has done a good thing in publishing "Little Novels by Favorite Authors," at least it has started well, for two more delightful stories—and delightful in different ways—than "Philosophy 4," by Owen Wister, and "Man Overboard," by F. Marion Crawford, it would be hard to find. The stories can both be read in an hour and there is enjoyment in each.

Mr. Wister's tale is of two Harvard sophomores who have selected the philosophical course, why, they do not know, and who are cramming in the last remaining days before examination. They have a fellow "soph" as coach, one of those sleek fellows always found in colleges, who is letter perfect in his studies, but who misses the spirit in attaining, parrotlike, the letter.

How Billy and Bertie succeeded in getting the spirit while knowing little of the letter is told in the author's own delicious way, and is entirely too good to be anticipated in a review.

Neither can we disclose what is revealed in Mr. Crawford's creepy story of the sea. But it will be read at one sitting, and you will be glad you read it. Each volume has a portrait of the author and a sketch of his life with some comment on his work.

Advice on Dress.

"What to Wear and When to Wear It" is the title of a little volume by Mrs. Alfred Praga (Charles Scribner's Sons, importers), which endeavors to advise women of all styles of beauty or of no beauty at all what they should or should not wear in order to accentuate favorable characteristics or tone down faults of figure, features, or complexion.

The fun, the whimsicality, the queer doings, the very delightful people are such as his readers have been entertained with for so many years. The fertility of invention and ingenuity is as fresh as in the early stories, and perhaps Mr. Stockton never came nearer to success in trying to keep a long story together to the end without digressions or a break in the plot. The heroine is a charming girl, her married hostess still more charming, and there are plenty of others the reader will be glad to meet."—New York Sun.

MR. HAMILTON W. MABIE, writing in the Outlook from advance sheets, says:—

"Since the publication of 'Red Rock,' Mr. Page has given us nothing so important as 'Gordon Keith,' a novel of serious purpose and generous dimensions, crowded with actors and full of incident. . . . It is a strong, sincere and deeply interesting novel of character and of manners as well."

MISS JEANNETTE L. GILDER, writing in the Chicago Tribune, says:—

"It takes no effort to read it, it is full of thrilling situations and bright dialogue. Mr. Page is a born story teller, and though he apparently writes with the greatest of ease, he does not allow his pen to run away with him. He is unusually reticent for a successful novelist."

THE PHILADELPHIA PRESS says:

"Mr. Page has chosen a large canvas which is crowded with characters and incidents that move rapidly. The book is written with that grace and delicacy which have always distinguished Mr. Page's writings."

DECIDE TO TAKE PROFITS.

PRODIGIOUS SELLING BY HOLDERS CHECKS GRAIN ADVANCE.

Wheat Reacts in Spite of Continued Rains and Floods, but Recovers Part of Loss on Sharp Rally at St. Louis—Corn Close Is Firm—Oats Higher on Continued Shipping Demand from the East—Provisions a Shade Higher.

Profit taking on a heavy scale seemed to be the order of the day in all the grain markets, and as the markets opened strong and higher on continued rains in the southwest there was a big trade and prices did not at first feel the weight of offerings. There were reactions in wheat and corn which showed moderate losses, but these were partly or altogether regained. The declining tendency in wheat was encouraged early in the session by a moderate break at St. Louis, but that market became sensationally strong for July, closing 1¼c higher for the day and the premium over this market, the strength there contributing to a moderate closing rally, with prices unchanged to ½c lower. The July was the strongest delivery and the old style futures gained ⅛c on the new. The strength in July at St. Louis was apparently due more to speculative conditions there than to crop conditions and did not prevent a loss of ¾c in the September price there. There seemed to be as much selling as buying for St. Louis account here, although the long lines held here might not have been materially reduced. On the early upturn Armour was a free seller of new September, but on the break he was a buyer of old September, transferring hedges or short sales at scalping profit. Local professionals were liberal sellers.

Expect Improved Weather.

There were light showers through the west, a heavy rain at Springfield, Mo., and heavy rains in Tennessee and the Ohio valley, with showery conditions forecasted for today, but the temper of the trade was to look for the clearing weather, which it was felt must come some time, and probably soon. Receipts in the northwest were liberal, 283 cars, compared with 256 last year, and the northwest markets were inclined to be easy, ⅛c to ½c lower. Primary receipts were 321,000 bu, compared with 394,000 bu a year ago. Clearances were liberal, 562,000 bu for the day, and for the week 4,709,000 bu.

The export demand continued tame, the export sales at the seaboard variously reported from 8,000 bu to 160,000 bu. There were sales of 55,000 bu here. Foreign markets were moderately higher, Liverpool up ¼d to ½d, and London ½d, Broomhall reporting less satisfactory reports in the united kingdom and an average yield impossible. Paris was ¼c to ½c higher. Argentine shipments were 1,712,000 bu, including 624,000 bu to non-European points, compared with 88,000 bu a year ago.

Corn Longs Take Profits.

On the continued wet weather through the west and the continued delay in farming operations, there was an excited opening in corn, July selling up to 49½c. On the advance there was prodigious profit taking, and the market broke 1c to 48½c, but rallied at the close to 48⅜-⅞c, unchanged from Thursday. Deferred deliveries closed ⅛c higher. There were no country acceptances, but the disposition to take profits and the belief that perhaps the advance had been carried fully far enough to discount all present and some of the prospective damage forced a decline. There were 429 cars here, with 26 contract, and 375 estimated for today. The cash market was ½c lower to ½c higher, the shipping demand moderate, with sales of about 200,000 bu. The seaboard reported sales of 80,000 bu. Clearances were 208,000 bu for the day and 1,014,000 bu for the week. Primary receipts were 385,000 bu, compared with 387,000 bu a year ago. There was heavy selling on the early advance by Bartlett-Frazier, Harris-Gates, McReynolds, and pit traders, while the market was supported on the break by Cudahy, Pringle, and Comstock. The buying for country account was on a smaller scale. Argentine shipments were 1,598,000 bu. Liverpool was ⅞d higher.

East Still After Oats.

There was a wild opening in oats, shorts anxious to cover on the continued dry weather in the east and the sharp shipping demand from that section, July selling at the start from 36¼c to 37c, the top figure a gain of 1¼c over night. There was heavy profit taking through McReynolds, a line of perhaps 1,000,000 bu sold out, with other selling, under which the market yielded again to 36¼c, but there was buying here by cash interests and the close was at 36½-⅝c, a gain of ⅜-½c, with the deferred futures ⅛-¼c higher. The cash market was strong on eastern buying, fully ½c higher, and shipping sales 150,000 bu. Acceptances in Iowa were more liberal. Clearances were 33,000 bu. There were 138 cars in, with 14 standard, and 155 estimated for today.

Light Trade in Provisions.

A slow, dull, and featureless trade marked the day in the provision pit, though at the close prices were slightly higher than at the end of Thursday's session. Pork gained 5@10c, lard advanced 2½@5c on the July and 5c on the September, ribs closed the day 7½@10c higher. About the best buying of various product was attributed to stockyards interests. Influences on prices were about evenly divided, a firm corn market offset by cheaper hogs. Receipts were 30,000, with 15,000 estimated for today. Western points (Kansas City missing, as usual) reported 63,000, as against 80,000 a year ago. Shipments of cured meats were 1,383,900 lbs, as against 1,944,000 lbs last year, and of lard 798,200 lbs, compared with 848,900 lbs last year.

There was a firmer market in rye, with prices 1@1¼c higher. Inspection was 4 cars, with 123,400 bu of No. 2 withdrawn from regular elevators. Sales of June were at 50¾c, with July ranging from 51¼@52c, closing 51¾c bid.

There was a firmer tone in the barley market, especially for low grade, which was from 1@2c higher, the advance in oats being given as the cause. Screenings ranged from 30@41c for poor to choice, and 42@45c for fancy city. Feed and mixing barley was quotably 42@45c, low grade malting 46@49c, fair to choice 50@53c, and fancy possibly 54c.

Seeds were generally quiet and unchanged to a shade easier, September timothy at $3.40 and contract $3.80@3.85. Clover was entirely nominal at $8.75@9.25 for October and $11.50@11.75 for contract.

No quotable changes were developed in flaxseed. There were no receipts here, 36 at Minneapolis, and 19 at Duluth. No. 1 northwestern was nominally $1.14, southwestern $1.11, July $1.12 (sales at that), and September $1.14. Rejected quotably $1.06@1.09.

Trade Gossip on 'Change.

There is at present a bullish wheat situation in the southwest, against a bearish situation in the northwest, where the conditions of the growing crop are practically perfect and the disposition is, as usual, to expect them to continue so until harvest. With altogether too much rain in the southwest and altogether too little in the east, where crops are drying up, where farmers are praying for rain what time they can spare from fighting forest fires, and where New Yorkers are worrying about their water supply, the meteorological situation is unevenly balanced.

Samples of new wheat were received yesterday from Oklahoma, where the harvest is under way, advices from some sections claiming improved prospects on account of recent rains, with yields of 15 bu to 28 bu to the acre.

Grain speculators are in danger of being without the services of some of the best brokers in the business next Monday, owing to the rashness of a nine of board of trade "has beens" in agreeing to play baseball with the Chicago Beach hotel team this afternoon at 3 o'clock. The game is likely to be short, as there has been difficulty in securing substitutes. The following nine will start the game for the board of trade, barring cases of heart failure: A. V. Booth, third base; Hal Greeley, right short; E. B. Bliss, second base; H. A. Foss, first base; F. Badger, left field; F. A. Paddleford, right field; G. A. Wheeler, pitcher; C. E. White, catcher; T. W. Browning, left short; W. C. Gibhardt, center field.

The Modern Miller's summary of the progress of the winter wheat crop for the week, while admitting damage by rain and flood, claimed improved conditions in the southwest and southeast, and was generally considered a bearish statement by the local trade.

Bradstreet's reports exports as follows:

POTATOES STILL ADVANCING.

Prices Five Cents Higher than Thursday, Dealers Taking Stock Because of Depleted Supplies.

Burbanks and Rurals sold up to 75c yesterday on the track market and a fair carlot business was transacted at the higher prices, supplies in dealers' hands being generally small. The strikes in hotels and restaurants made a slow market for dressed lambs and veal. Berries came mostly from Michigan, about 15,000 cases. The quality was improved and prices a shade higher.

FOR ADMISSION OF SHAW.

MEMBERS CLEARING HOUSE COMMITTEE TAKE ACTION.

Adopt a Resolution Recommending Subtreasury Be Admitted to Membership for a Trial Period of Three Months — Meeting of Association Called for Next Tuesday to Act on Recommendation — Stock Exchange Standing Committees Appointed.

Members of the clearing house committee at a meeting yesterday adopted a resolution recommending to the association that the local subtreasury be admitted to membership upon the same terms as those enjoyed by the banks. The action was unanimous, the full membership of the committee being present as follows: J. B. Forgan, chairman; E. A. Hamill, Orson Smith, J. J. Mitchell, James H. Eckels.

The committee issued a call for a meeting of the association to be held next Tuesday, when the resolution will finally be acted upon. There are some banks opposed to the admission of the subtreasury, but it is believed so many will be in favor of the resolutions that no adverse vote of consequence will be recorded.

It is recommended by the clearing house committee that the subtreasury be admitted for a period of three months. This will afford sufficient opportunity to determine whether the membership will be regarded as mutually advantageous. The action of the committee yesterday was taken upon the request of Subtreasurer Williams, who presented his petition for admission at the suggestion of Secretary Shaw.

As to the benefits resulting from the subtreasury being a member of the clearing house, various views are held, but it is thought that it may make more harmonious the relations between the banks and the treasury department. What is most desired here is that the subtreasury shall exchange in the fall small bills for large ones and for silver when country banks make demand for bills of $5 and $10 denomination. The subtreasury in New York responds freely to demands of this character, and it is seldom that in retail transactions silver is offered in change to purchasers except for fractional amounts of one dollar. Again Chicago banks are forced to call on the New York correspondents for small bills. If the subtreasury here would do for the banks what it does in New York its membership in the Clearing House association would be readily considered a desirable move.

The question of its admission has been discussed for a great many years. Lyman J. Gage, who as president of the First National bank prior to becoming secretary of the treasury, was familiar with the entire situation, but he never sought to have the subtreasury admitted to the association.

Buy Plant and Avoid Duty.

In order to avoid the payment of 30 per cent duty on watch cases imported into Canada, the American Waltham Watch company, the Elgin National Watch company, the Crescent Watch company, and the Keystone Watch company have purchased a controlling interest in the Watch Company of Toronto, which concern has a practical monopoly of the Canadian watch case business.

The four United States watch companies have been unable freely to sell their movements in Canada without an accompanying case, it being the desire of purchasers to have a case and movement of one make. The four companies mentioned have been accustomed to buy freely of the Watch Company of Toronto. Recently the manager of the company died and a considerable block of the stock was placed on the market. These shares and others sufficient to constitute control were secured, and now it is possible to sell movement and case of the same make without paying the duty of 30 per cent on the latter.

Stratton's Independence.

At the recent annual meeting of Stratton's Independence mine in London the following income account was presented for nine months ended March 31, 1903:

Gross income	$1,426,110
Expenses	979,570
Improvements	167,915
Surplus	288,625
Total surplus	724,480

Some of the stockholders at the meeting wanted a 5 per cent dividend declared, but in the end the directors were given two months to consider the proposition.

Bank Statement Forecast.

According to the forecast of today's bank statement wired yesterday from New York the banks lost through gold exports $7,140,000. The banks gained net from the interior, $4,065,000, leaving an apparent net loss for the week of $3,075,000.

The stock market believed the statement would be bad. The surmise will probably prove correct. Exchange on New York at Chicago has gone from 50c premium to par.

Dividends Declared.

The International Steam Pump company declared a regular quarterly dividend of 1½ per cent on its preferred stock and 4 per cent for the year, payable in four quarterly installments on the common stock. In the year ended on March 31 the earnings were larger than ever before.

The Chicago Junction Railway and Union Stockyards company declared the regular quarterly dividends of 1½ per cent on its preferred stock and 2 per cent on its common stock, both payable on July 1. Books close on June 11 and reopen on July 2.

The Chicago and Alton railway has declared the usual semi-annual dividend of $2.00 per share on its preferred stock, payable on July 1. Books close on June 13 and reopen on July 1.

The executive committee of the Sloss-Sheffield Steel and Iron company recommended to the board of directors the payment of the regular quarterly dividend of 1¾ per cent on the preferred stock. It made no recommendation regarding the dividend on common stock, preferring to leave that matter to be discussed by the full board, which meets on June 9.

General Financial News.

It is estimated gross earnings of the Texas and Pacific railroad for the fourth week of May increased $36,000. The wheat harvest in Texas is beginning and consequently this crop is considered practically beyond damage.

The executive committee of the Western Union will meet next Tuesday and recommend the declaration of the regular quarterly dividend of 1¼ per cent.

If a quorum can be secured the directors of the United States Realty company will meet next Tuesday and declare the regular dividend of 1½ per cent on the preferred stock.

The Cincinnati, Richmond and Muncie railroad and the Cincinnati and Indiana Western railway companies have consolidated as the Chicago, Cincinnati and Louisville railroad company.

New York had a report that a well known Chicago operator was long 20,000 shares of Norfolk and Western and expressed himself as becoming tired of his load.

President Clowry of the Western Union Telegraph company has accepted an invitation to become a director of the Kansas City, Mexico and Orient railway and he will be elected in a few days.

Deny Calling Loans.

Officials of the National City bank denied yesterday a story to the effect that the bank had been calling loans. On the contrary, it was asserted the institution was lending several million dollars in the street.

American Shipbuilding Common.

Uncertainty over the labor outlook has caused a drop in the price of American Shipbuilding common to 38 on the theory that the quarterly dividend of 1 per cent on the common stock may be discontinued.

President Brown was not willing yesterday to make a definite reply on the subject. The company has about one year's work ahead, but it is impossible to foresee what losses may be occasioned through relations with labor.

Chicago Stocks.

New York exchange sold before clearing at 5c premium; after clearing, at par.

IN THE NEW YORK MARKETS.

Quotations on Dry Goods, Poultry, Butter, Coffee, and Other Special Lines.

NEW YORK, June 5.—The dry goods market has been more or less conservative, and yet here and there considerable business has been effected. Buyers have been willing to pay the advance, as a rule, but are not purchasing any more than sufficient to cover their current requirements. The supply of cotton is growing depleted in many southern mills especially, and the increase of those who will curtail production is material.

In the Coffee Market.

The market for coffee futures opened dull at a decline of 5 points under lower European cables and eased off a partial 5 points in the absence of demand. The market closed dull net 5@10 points lower. Sales were 3,750 bags, including June at 3.70c; July at 3.75@3.80c; September at 3.95c; October at 4.00@4.05c; March at 4.00c.

Poultry, Alive and Dressed.

Poultry—Alive—Slow; western chickens, 25c; fowls, 15c; turkeys, 10@11c. Dressed—Strong; western broilers, 26@28c; fowls, 14½c; turkeys, 13@15c.

In the Provision Line.

Butter—Receipts, 17,178 pkgs; firm; state dairy, 17@21½c; extra creamery, 22½c; creamery, common to choice, 18@22c. Cheese—Receipts, 5,308 pkgs; irregular; state full cream, fancy, small, colored and white, 10½c; large, colored, 10⅝c; large, white, 10¼c. Eggs—Receipts, 13,853 pkgs; market steady to firm; nearby firsts, 16½c; western extras, 17½@18c; western firsts, 16@16½c.

In the Cotton Exchange.

The cotton market opened barely steady at an advance of 3 points to a decline of 2 points. The advance was on southern support and covering, while the declines were influenced by the better weather. Spot closed quiet; middling uplands, 11.50c; middling gulf, 11.75c. Sales, 761 bales.

Copper and Other Metals.

Tin turned weak today, closing at $28.30@28.50c. Copper nominal at $14.75@15.00 for lake and electrolytic, and at $14.50@14.75 for casting. Lead quiet and unchanged at $4.37½. Spelter unchanged at $5.75. Iron, No. 1 foundry, northern, $20.00@21.00; No. 2 foundry, northern, $19.00@19.50; No. 1 foundry, southern, and No. 1 foundry, southern soft, $19.50@20.00.

NEW YORK STOCKS FALL.

ANOTHER DAY OF LOW RECORDS IN WALL STREET.

Continued Declines Show Conclusively That Even at the Present Low Levels Liquidation Has Not Run Its Course—Trading Marked by Breaks in Sugar, Consolidated Gas, General Electric and the Lower Priced Gould Shares.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

NEW YORK, June 5.—[Special.]—Another day of new local records marked the stock exchange today, with the general market weak throughout. Copper dropped at one time to 51, a point below yesterday's low record. The continued decline today showed conclusively that even at the present low levels liquidation has not run its course. Instead there were evidences of it extending to parts of the list not heretofore affected, as witness the 5 point drop in Lackawanna, a 7 point decline in Linseed Oil preferred, a 2 point break in Sugar, and further weakness in such shares as Consolidated Gas, General Electric, and the lower priced Gould stocks.

It is a fact, however, that representative bankers are in no wise disturbed because of present conditions or the continuing market decline. They say that if there must be liquidation it is better that it be gradual—as it now is—and not panicky, and further, that any attempt to stem the tide would be unprofitable and unwise. This liquidation, it is pointed out, will go far to relieve the situation by bringing prices down to a basis where new and more permanent buyers will be found, and where finally talk of "undigested securities" will be much less heard.

After the close of business today there was some curiosity to determine the authority for the statement, officialy denied after the close of business, that the Standard Oil interests had called in $15,000,000 to pay for stocks bought. While it was not possible definitely to determine this, it is hinted that the "news" came from a loading bull interest (largely given to pool manipulation), with the object in view of stemming the tide of liquidation sales, and if possible of forcing short covering.

In a measure the purpose was accomplished, for not a few shorts were induced to cover, while some speculative buying for a "turn" appeared in the industrial department.

The heaviest selling outside of copper was in sugar trust stock, where trade conditions were reported not encouraging, because of the poor outlook for fruit crops, and, therefore, for the canning season. In addition it is known that some large Boston speculative accounts are in process of liquidation. As for the report that no dividend is contemplated in the stock because of the poor business, the street did not give any heed to it, it being pointed out that the last dividend came off the stock only today, and that any talk of what may happen next quarter at this time is absurd.

Short covering was said to be largely responsible for the late strength in Amalgamated Copper. To continued unfavorable crop news was set down the liquidation in and selling of the granger shares. Many stop loss orders were uncovered on the decline.

IN NEW YORK MONEY MARKET.

NEW YORK, June 5.—The bears had a field day on the stock exchange today and the professional operators sold stocks with such enthusiasm that they found themselves overextended towards the close and had a scramble to get back stocks to cover their shorts sales.

There was heavy liquidation during the day. Part of it was forced by extensive calling of loans. The forecast of the bank statement gave a plausible reason for this contraction of credits in the decline in cash resources for the week.

Bonds were weak. Total sales, par value, $2,760,000. United States old 4s and 2s advanced ¼ per cent and the 3s ½ per cent on the last call.

Money on call ruled firm, but closed easier, ranging from 1½@4 per cent, closing offered 1½. Time money firm; sixty days, 3½ per cent; ninety days, 4; six months, 5@5½.

Prime mercantile paper, 4½@5¼. Sterling exchange steady at decline, with actual business in bankers' bills at 487.95@488 for demand and at 485@485.10 for sixty days' bills. Posted rates, 485½@486 and 488½@489. Commercial bills, 484⅞. Bar silver, 52⅛. Mexican dollars, 42. Government bonds strong. Railroad bonds weak.

BOSTON, Mass., June 5.—[Special.]—The Boston list was active but weak, liquidation of coppers continued, and they went off, although Utah held up well. Copper fell in London. Metal market in uncertain condition and plainly shows results of manipulation. American Telephone grew stronger after noon and rallied to 150. Little doubt the decline in this stock has been caused by manipulation. Call loans, 3@4 per cent; time loans, collateral, 4½@5 per cent; time loans, mercantile paper, 4½@5 per cent; clearing house loans, 4 per cent.

CROPS RETARDED BY BAD WEATHER

SUN'S RAYS ARE NEEDED.

Altogether the Conditions of the Week Have Been Decidedly Unfavorable.

[BY B. W. SNOW.]

Weather conditions of the week ending Friday have been abnormal in practically every district of agricultural importance except the northwest, and, broadly speaking, the period was in every way unfavorable for crop growth and current farming operations.

Temperatures ranged below the normal throughout the whole country east of the Rocky mountains, with light frosts in the more northerly districts.

In the matter of rainfall it was a period of violent extremes, severe and continued drought in the north Atlantic and New England states, general rains ranging from showers to moderate downpours in the Ohio valley, unprecedented rainfall in portions of the Missouri and north Mississippi valleys, and less than normal precipitation in the northwest.

Where Rain Is Needed.

The eastern drought, from Pennsylvania to New England, has now continued from seven to nine weeks, and is yet unrelieved. Light and scattered showers have touched a few districts, but practically it continues in its full intensity. This drought is almost unparalleled as an early summer experience, and coming as it has, at the beginning of plant growth, when vegetation is lacking in root growth, its effect upon all plant growth has been severely destructive.

To fully appreciate what the experience has been and to measure its probable effect upon spring crops, the following statement, showing actual rainfall this year between April 30 and June 1, and the normal rainfall for the period at scattered points in the territory affected may be studied to advantage.

	Rainfall, inches. 1903.	Normal.
New Haven	.3	4.9
Albany	.7	4.1
New York	.7	4.3
Rochester	.5	4.3
Harrisburg	.4	6.1

The month of May should be, and in the average year as shown by the above table is, a month of frequent showers, which means that at the beginning of plant growth development may be rapid and root growth sturdy. This year during this critical period there has been no surface moisture, and as a result the hay crop is largely a failure, wheat, oats, and rye have made little or no progress, and the general agricultural situation in the New England and north Atlantic states could hardly be worse.

Too Much Rain Here.

In striking contrast with this record of drought is the present situation in portions of the Mississippi and Missouri valleys. For two weeks there have been heavy excesses of rainfall throughout the great central valleys, generous everywhere and rising to phenomenal downpours over large areas west of the Mississippi river.

The whole wheat and corn belt has been included in the visitation, but the damaging excess was confined to Iowa and Missouri and to eastern Kansas and Nebraska. In these districts the record is without a parallel since accurate weather observations have been kept.

Precipitation ranging from two to nearly seven inches in a week occurred at many points, and while such excessive figures were the exception, yet so generally was the rainfall distributed that the average depth of water falling over whole districts was from two to more than three inches, or as much as should fall in five weeks.

What the Figures Show.

Taking all weather bureau stations in the wheat and corn belts and dividing them into the districts tributary to each central station we can secure a fair idea as to the actual average rainfall for the whole district. Such a showing for the week ending Friday is as follows:

	Stations.	Total rainfall, inches.
Chicago	22	1.16
Columbus	18	1.00
Des Moines	10	2.84
Indianapolis	11	2.30
Kansas City	16	3.44
Louisville	17	3.10
Minneapolis	22	.32
Omaha	12	2.52
St. Louis	13	2.46

The only exception to the rule of excessive rainfall last week was in the spring wheat districts of the northwest, where a little less than the nominal supply was received. Here showers were light, but well distributed, furnishing ample surface moisture and keeping plant and soil in almost perfect condition.

The winter wheat situation is moderately less promising, but the decline in prospect is not nearly so great as the alarming reports of the week would indicate. The heavy rainfall over the greater part of the belt was on the whole favorable instead of otherwise, as it relieved a growing moisture deficiency in important districts in the Ohio valley.

Damage Reports Overdrawn.

The damage to the wheat crop by the southwestern floods is greatly exaggerated, both as to the actual injury wrought and as to the importance of the area involved. As a rule bottom lands in Kansas and Missouri are not seeded to wheat, and only the lowest river land will be under water long enough to destroy wheat.

When fields are overflown and receive a heavy silt deposit the damage would be severe, but the acreage of wheat upon such fields is too small to cut any material figure in the aggregate.

The overflowed district in Kansas involves only a portion of the eastern and northeastern counties, and this is not the wheat growing section of the state. In fact, with the exception of Ottawa and Dickinson counties, which are but slightly involved, there is not an important wheat county in any of the flooded districts. The aggregate wheat acreage in all the counties which even touch the swollen rivers is less than 750,000 acres, out of a total for the state of 6,000,000 acres, and the percentage of their area which is overflown is too small to cut any figure. The loss to the Kansas wheat crop because of river overflow may be dismissed as insignificant.

Sunshine Is Needed.

The feature of the week which has resulted in some lowering of general promise was lack of sunshine. The crop is headed out as far north as central Illinois, and is ready to ripen in the lattitude of the Ohio river, and sunshine and warm weather are required at this stage of crop development to hasten and perfect ripening.

This has been entirely lacking for nearly two weeks, and partly, as a consequence reports of the appearance of rust are disturbingly frequent. These reports are coming from many districts from Ohio to Kansas, and should the present period of excessive moisture be followed by hot, muggy weather the possibilities of a serious visitation are present. The actual damage at present, however, is small, it being a matter of apprehension rather than actuality.

Drought conditions in California have been only partly relieved, and a crop no larger than last year is now probable. On the Atlantic coast, from New York to Virginia the long continued drought has worked great loss, and a rate of yield decidedly under the average is now in prospect. Local returns under date of about May 25 indicate a general average of condition of around 85. Conditions during the last week of May probably reduced this figure slightly, but the winter wheat promise could hardly be now placed at less than 450,000,000 bu as a minimum.

Spring wheat conditions continue little short of perfect. Rain fall is sufficient for current needs and the plant is making fairly rapid and very sturdy growth. A possibility of 325,000,000 bu is not an extravagant estimate of the present possibility.

Corn Situation Bad.

The corn situation is distinctly bad. The planting season, already delayed, has been further retarded in the districts where the delay was greatest and where it is a serious matter. There is a considerable acreage yet to plant in Nebraska, Iowa, and northern Illinois, and some in Missouri.

The last week leaves bottom lands so saturated that plowing will be impossible for some time under most favorable conditions and the chances are that a considerable percentage of bottom lands, the best of corn land, will not be planted at all. It is easy to overestimate loss of acreage from this cause, but it may be important.

Cool and wet weather has followed planting this year, and complaint of rotting of seed and consequent poor stand is frequent. Replanting in overflowed fields will be general, while more than usual will be necessary generally. The crop is coming up at a time when wet ground interferes with working and weeds are securing a strong start.

It is too early to attempt any definite estimate of present condition of the crop, but it may be safely assumed that the prospect is now less promising than usual.

Oats Below Normal.

Oats do not show any improvement. The crop is spotted, uneven in growth, thin on the ground, and shows marked lack of vigor. Bad conditions at time of seeding are responsible for the poor stand, and drought just when the plant was sprouting and taking root hold account for lack of vigor in the plant. The general condition is below the normal for this date. Complaint of weedy fields is general, frequently so bad that plowing up would follow were it possible to plant to corn.

CHICAGO LIVE STOCK MARKETS.

Movement of Cattle, Hogs, Sheep, and Lambs, with the Range of Prices and Comparisons.

A surprising run of hogs arrived yesterday at the stockyards here, but offerings of cattle and sheep were not above normal figures, the estimated arrivals being 3,500 cattle, 28,000 hogs, and 6,000 sheep. The market for cattle was active and steady to strong, hogs 10@15c lower, sheep about steady, and lambs around a quarter lower.

TRADE REPORTS ARE HOPEFUL.

Conditions at Leading Cities Are Encouraging, Say Dun and Bradstreet's.

STEEL AND IRON LOWER.

Railway Earnings for May Larger than in Same Month a Year Ago.

New York, June 5.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade tomorrow will say:

"Dispatches regarding trade conditions at the leading cities are generally encouraging. Railway earnings in May were 12.7 per cent larger than last year and 25.4 per cent greater than in 1901.

"There is still an inclination to defer the placing of contracts for iron and steel. The United States Steel corporation has bought 105,000 tons of pig iron, chiefly for delivery during the third quarter, but the recent readjustment of quotations has not stimulated general activity in the industry.

Little Gain in Textiles.

"Textile industries show no material improvement. Sellers of cotton goods are unwilling to accept contracts for distant delivery, and even in immediate business there is little disposition to accept the prices offered.

"Interior trade reports are less favorable, western business being affected by floods, while droughts at the east and numerous strikes restrict consumption.

"Failures this week in the United States 182, against 206 last week, 119 the preceding week, and 218 the corresponding week last year, and in Canada 24, against 7 last week, 14 the preceding week, and 16 last year."

As Seen by Bradstreet's.

Bradstreet's tomorrow will say:

"Wholesale trade is still seasonably dull, and disastrous floods have checked trade and transportation in the southwest. The situation as a whole, however, is still far from unfavorable. Higher prices for farm products of all kinds favor some compensation to producers from this source.

"The country's foreign trade promises well, failures are down to a low minimum, and bank clearings, though reduced by dullness in stock speculation, point to record totals outside of a few important speculative centers.

"Relatively the best trade reports come from the northwest and the country between the Ohio river and the lakes and the Mississippi and the Alleghenies. Men's wear woolen goods are in fair demand and worsteds are slow. Dress woolens are doing well. New wool is active at the west and dealers are reported free buyers at prices relatively higher than current quotations.

Metal Prices Tend Lower.

Iron and steel prices tend lower. Southern iron has been formally marked down this week $2 a ton. Bessemer pig has remained fairly steady, but steel billets are reported easier at Pittsburg and at Chicago. Present prices of iron and steel would seem to preclude liberal imports.

"Numerous strikes in the building trades limit demand for lumber, brick, builders' hardware, and, in fact, all classes of building material, but structural material remains surprisingly good.

Exports of Grain.

"Wheat, including flour, exports for the week ending on June 4 aggregate 4,708,995 bushels, against 4,677,678 last week, 4,600,055 this week yast year, and 6,644,644 in 1901. Wheat exports since July 1 aggregate 210,280,805 bushels, against 238,024,901 last year, and 200,501,639 in 1900. Corn exports aggregate 1,013,871 bushels, against 1,179,739 last week, 86,254 a year ago, and 2,455,102 in 1901. For the fiscal year exports are 62,450,712 bushels, against 25,986,851 last season, and 167,624,209 in 1901."

Gains in Bank Clearings.

COAL COMBINE AT AN END

PERPETUAL INJUNCTION AGAINST IT BY JUDGE KOHLSAAT.

Illinois-Indiana Operators Say the Contract Which Brought Them Into Court Last Winter Has Been Dissolved, but They Are Restrained from Making a New One—Ten Companies Defendants in Proceedings—Settlement Agreed On at Conference.

A perpetual injunction restraining the Illinois-Indiana coal operators from entering any combine to fix prices or control the output of their mines was issued by Judge Kohlsaat yesterday in the United States District court.

The order sets forth first that the defendants entered into a contract to fix prices and to sell through one distributing agency. The operators admitted this. The court next finds that the defendants had ceased to operate under this agreement, prior to the filing of the government's bill. Then, declaring that it was not the desire of the defendants to carry out the contract in future, the court issued its order.

Names of Defendants.

The defendants in the case, all of whom were parties to the contract, are:

The Crescent Coal and Mining company.
The Bruillete Creek Coal company.
The Wabash Valley Coal company.
The Oak Hill Coal and Mining company.
The Coal Bluff Mining company.
The Glen Oak Coal and Mining company.
The Nevins Coal company.
The Parke County Coal company.
The Indiana Fuel company.
McClellan Sons & Co.
Ten individuals connected with these concerns.

Settled at a Conference.

This settlement of the coal case, which attracted so much atention last winter, was brought about at a short conference in the judge's chambers, at which United States District Attorney Sol H. Bethea was present for the government and Attorneys Ullmann and Hacker for the defendants. The coal men said the contract on which the proceedings were based was no longer in force.

Prior to the filing of the bill against the operators in the federal court, the individuals and the corporations had been indicted in the state court, but the indictments were quashed later through a technicality. Soon after District Attorney Bethea had started the action in the federal court last March a temporary restraining order was entered by consent.

UNION TRACTION TO DROP FIGHT ON FIVE CENT FARES.

As Result of Judge Grosscup's Instructions Oak Park Will Get Its Demands Without a Struggle.

In compliance with the instructions of Judge Grosscup the receivers of the Union Traction company will offer no objections to formal demands made for one fare privileges on all street railway lines controlled by the corporation. As a result residents of Oak Park will get a five cent fare to the city without opposition, this being demanded in the ordinance passed Thursday night by the Oak Park village board. The double fare will continue to all points west of Oak Park, including Maywood and Melrose Park. It is stated, however, that these villages will make demands for a five cent fare.

The willingness of the receivers to reduce fares is laid to two reasons—that increased traffic will result and allow better competition with the elevated roads, and that the reduction will tend to turn public sentiment in favor of the corporation and its franchise renewal efforts.

Certain aldermen of the north and west side wards are considering introducing the franchise problem into the council Monday night by presenting resolutions protesting against the subcommittee on franchises negotiating solely with the Chicago City railway, and declaring against such negotiations being conducted at executive sessions. They contend that they do not want the franchise problem settled with the City railway until the Union Traction, too, is brought to settlement and assurances of improved service thus given north and west side residents.

The highway commissioners of Niles, Maine, and Wheeling have given permission to the promoters of the Chicago, Milwaukee Avenue and Inland Lakes Traction company to run their proposed line through these villages.

WHISKY CAUSES JAIL TROUBLE.

"Bad Man" Flaherty Gets a Few Swallows and Then Attacks Another Prisoner.

The jail's "bad man," Patrick Flaherty, who has a long criminal record and is now waiting trial on a charge of murder, sustained his reputation Thursday afternoon. By means of a rubber tube two visitors managed to smuggle a few swallows of whisky through a wire netting to Flaherty, and he proceeded to celebrate by attacking and severely beating Ditto Gunther, another pisoner, who is awaiting trial on a larceny charge. Before guards could interfere Gunther had been given a severe drubbing, and it took the combined efforts of several men to subdue the crazed Flaherty. The men who gave Flaherty the whisky were reprimanded and barred from the jail.

Number of Risks Burned Was 103,715 and the Property Destroyed Was Worth $161,488,255.

The Chronicle Fire Tables for 1903 show that the fires in the United States last year numbered 76,625, compared with 80,379 the year before. The number of risks burned was 103,715, against 111,738 in 1901. The value of the property destroyed was $161,488,255, and the insurance paid was $94,775,045. By percentage comparisons the fires were 95.33 per cent of the record of the preceding year, the risks burned 92.85 per cent, the values 92.72 per cent, and the insurance paid 88.44 per cent.

After fighting the cases in the state and federal courts for two years, the insurance companies involved in the losses resulting from the collapse of the Luce block, in Grand Rapids have given up and will make no further contest, the United States Court of Appeals having sustained the original decision in favor of the plaintiffs. The building was insured for $30,000, and the stock for $108,500. The companies held that the fire resulted from the collapse, not the collapse from the fire.

The new fire patrol house at 25 Michigan avenue is now in service, protecting the wholesale grocery and dock district, and responded to an alarm before it had been in service an hour. The Chicago underwriters are preparing a housewarming for the middle of the month, when the men have finished their interior decoration.

Clarence S. Pellet will address the Fire Insurance club of Chicago Tuesday night on "Some of the Limitations of Schedule Rating."

The joint committee of the Western union and the Pacific coast board, in charge of the mountain field, is considering an increase in rates on all property affected by the new law of Colorado forbidding subrogation rights to an insurance company. Some hold that the law is unconstitutional, but the companies will increase the rates to suit the conditions and allow the citizens of Colorado to test their law.

OLD LUMBERMEN'S EXCHANGE TRANSFERRED FOR $110,000.

Harvey B. Hurd, Who Acquired It from George S. Lord, Sells to Equitable Trust Company—Other Transactions.

The old lumberman's exchange property at the northeast corner of South Water and Franklin streets, which has been the subject of several deals during the last year and a half, has been sold by Harvey B. Hurd to the Equitable Trust company, as trustee of the estate of John D. Jennings, for $110,000. The sale is subject to an incumbrance of $70,000, held by the Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance company.

The property has ground dimensions of 80x55 feet, and the improvement is a three story building. Mr. Hurd took title to the property last year from George S. Lord at a given consideration of $125,000. The board of review for 1902 valued the property at $124,800.

The Illinois Central railroad company has purchased from the Pullman Land association a tract of 140 acres at Wildwood, just south of Kensington and south of the Chicago and Eastern Illinois railroad crossing, for $160,000. The land is to be used for additional terminal facilities.

The Throop Polytechnic institute has sold to Harry E. Dunn the property at 3846-3850 Ellis avenue, with 66x243 feet of ground, for $65,000.

The Milwaukee Mechanics' Insurance company bid in at foreclosure sale at the auction room of the real estate board yesterday 250 feet, southwest front, on Elston avenue, running through 807 feet to the north branch of the Chicago river, for $65,000.

The estate of Cornelia J. Williams has taken title from W. B. McCluer to the property at the southwest corner of North Clark and Division streets, 78x150 feet, for $75,000.

TAX LIST OF LONG AGO FOUND.

In 1853 the Property Where the Masonic Temple Now Stands Was Valued at $14,000.

A tax book for the year 1853—supposedly the only record of the kind saved from the Chicago fire—was found yesterday in a vault in the county clerk's office. An inspection of the old record shows that there were just as many citizens who neglected to pay their personal property taxes as there are today, about 30 per cent of those assessed having become delinquent.

Norman B. Judd, Abraham Lincoln's friend and companion, in those days paid a personal property assessment of $2.56. The personal tax paid by D. B. Fisk was $5.85, while "Long John" Wentworth paid $31.31. Conrad Seipp contributed $2.06, and Dr. J. A. Kennicott $5.14. The amount of Charles B. Farwell's assessment was $4.10. George Smith, the banker, who died a few years ago in London, paid the largest personal property tax in the city, $3,378.41.

The piece of property on State street, between Washington and Randolph streets, now occupied by Marshall Field & Co., was valued by the assessor at $26,500 that year, and the property where the Masonic temple now stands was valued at $14,000. The land now occupied by The Fair was given a valuation of $12,400.
